Opening reception will take place 6-8 p.m. Saturday, May 21. Hors d'oeuvres and entertainment. Closing ceremony will take place 3-5 p.m. Sunday, July 24. The event will include dessert and entertainment including auto poetry reading by John Alberts.

Blood drives — As spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in May, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). In May, everyone who comes out to donate has a chance to win a $125 gift card to Lowe's for Dad as part of a "Dad's to-do List" promotion. The Red Cross has also partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Is it curtains for Cinema III?

Foreclosure could lead to downtown movie theater's closing

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A looming foreclosure deadline is threatening to close the curtain on a decades-old entertainment era in downtown Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Cinema III owner Bill Supernaw told the Courier recently that he needs to come up with about $50,000 by early July to prevent a bank foreclosure on his three-screen theater on Antrim Street.

Supernaw said the theater's money troubles have come from a combination of rising costs, overall declines in movie attendance across the industry, a sluggish economy and the seasonal nature of the economy in Charlevoix.

He said over the past two years his ticket sales have been down by about 25 percent and that about 70 percent of his annual business is during a 6-8 week period in the summer.

The clock may be ticking, but Supernaw isn't giving up yet.

He said the bank has been very understanding and is willing to work with him if he can make some arrangements with a financial backer. He said he's been talking to several people and is still hoping to come up with a solution that will allow him to keep the business.

Until then, he plans to keep the projectors lit right up to the last day.

"I hope I can work something out to keep it going," Supernaw said.

And he still thinks the business can be successful.

"I'd like to do some things like put in new seats, some paint, maybe 3-D movies, but first I have to get the mortgage taken care of."

Word that the theater might be closing comes at a time when some downtown business owners and city officials have been discussing the importance of maintaining a collection of businesses on Bridge Street that bring people to the downtown in the evenings.

Recently when city planning director Mike Spencer suggested that the city's zoning code be amended to allow a few service-based businesses such as hair salons on Bridge Street, some on the commission and some downtown business owners expressed concerns saying it is important to leave the area limited to retail and restaurants to keep people coming to the downtown in the evenings.

Deadline sinks updates on parking, yachting stories

The next chapter in two notable stories the Courier has been following had not yet been written at the newspaper's press time Tuesday.

The Charlevoix City Council was slated to conduct a special meeting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 31 to consider what, if any, fee-for-parking system it might establish for the 40-space DeWitt parking lot on Park Street near Bridge St. Several city council members have expressed a desire that the lot generate revenue, while other city officials and downtown business owners have said the lot works well as a free parking lot that is used extensively by downtown employees, thus freeing up valuable parking spaces on Bridge Street. At Tuesday's meeting the council was expecting to hear about options and costs from staff and input from the community on the matter.

In the other story, at press time, voting was just hours from ending in Yachting magazine's poll for the title of "World's Best Yachting Town."

As of 9 a.m. Tuesday, Charlevoix was in second place trailing Oxford, Md. by about 300 votes.

Voting on the magazine's website began on April 21 after Charlevoix was named one of the top 50 finalists in the publication's six-month-long preliminary round of voting.

Earlier this month, the contest had become a three-way race between Charlevoix, South Haven and Oxford, Md. Hosever in the past week, Charlevoix and Oxford have pulled far ahead of South Haven. Those watching the race online have seen

County board moves to reduce comp time liability

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders moved to change two personnel policies that will impact most employees.

Commissioners on Wednesday, May 25 approved both a reduction in maximum sick time accrual and the elimination of comp time in lieu of overtime. The changes will impact all non-elected and hourly county employees.

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt said he recently spoke with county residents at a local restaurant and the "straw poll" suggested taxpayers are in favor of the comp time elimination.

County employees previously were allowed to bank up hundreds of hours of comp time, instead of being paid overtime when they worked more than 40 hours per week. The issue came to light when a couple of employees retired and contended they were owed a great deal of continued full-time pay as comp hours.

Commissioner Chris Christensen said he'd much prefer department heads to budget for overtime so an unknown, unfunded and unmonitored financial liability stopped growing.

Commissioners also reduced the cap on sick hours to 200 hours, a sharp decline from the previously allowed 520 hours, or 65 days. Employees can voluntarily choose to sell their excess sick hours back to the county at half-value, up to 40 hours per year, to reduce their stock of sick time.

"Most of them think it's very fair ... They said so long as we made it voluntary," said commissioner Ron Reinhardt, about employee opinions on the change.

Those who don't exchange their excess sick hours can keep them until they are used, but will not accrue any more of the benefit until their balance falls beneath the 200-hour maximum. Christensen underscored that point — employees will fail to earn any more sick hours until they have less than 200 hours in reserve.

Employees will continue to earn sick hours at the same rate they do now, but only once their sick hours drop below the new cap, said Kevin Shepard, county human resources coordinator.

"I think it's being pretty generous with taxpayer money," Drebenstedt said.

Commissioner Shirlene Tripp opposed both measures, the sole dissenter in the two personnel policy votes.

"I still think this needs to be talked over with the employees," she said. "I just think that pushing it through is going to stir up the beehive."

Tripp said she remains concerned that county employees do not understand the intricacies of the personnel policy changes and would prefer to have more time for explanations before the changes happen. Both changes become effective on Oct. 1.

The next Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, June 8.

History of golf presentation tees off

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a fully-illustrated program on the history of golf in Charlevoix from the establishment of the first course by the Chicago Club resort in 1896 to the present. The program will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday June 7 at the Depot, Depot Beach.

Speaking on the history and development of the municipal course, now the oldest in the state of Michigan, will be Tom Heid, course director of golf and grounds. Once the 18-hole Chicago Club Course, it was sold to the city for $1 in 1937 because of the financial burden of the Great Depression. The city also found it could not maintain 18 holes, and was forced to reduce the course to its present nine-hole size in 1941. Designed by soon-to-be-legendary course architect Willie Watson, at its peak the Chicago Club course was considered to be one of the finest in the nation.

Thirty years later, Willie Watson opened a partially-completed Belvedere course, likewise achieving a nationwide reputation. Recent champion Tom Watson claims it is his favorite course, and its 16th hole one of the best holes in golf. Golf legends who have traveled to Charlevoix to play the Belvedere are Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Sam Snead, Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, and Ken Venturi. The Michigan Amateur tournament has been played at the Belvedere more times than at any other course in the state.

Speaking on the Belvedere's history will be Steve Braun, retired Belvedere head pro (2008). Braun has served as tour director of the American Junior Golf Association. He co-founded the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association and is now its president. In addition, he is also assistant secretary of the Golf Association of Michigan. A history major at Alma College, for a number of years Braun wrote golf history columns for the American Junior Golf Association's publications.

There will be no admission charge for the program, but donations supporting the society are welcome. Light refreshments will be served. For more information call (231) 547-0373.

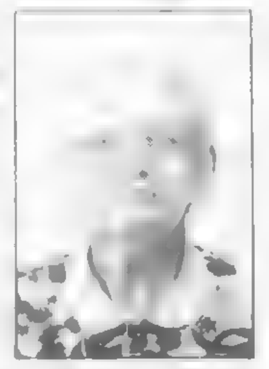
With time and age, it's all is relative



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Almost everyone my age or older tells me that time seems to just fly by. It apparently goes faster now than it did when we were younger, and a summer vacation from school seemed to stretch out almost to infinity. I now think I understand why.

As a botanist with a shaky background in mathematics, I have struggled for years to come to some understanding of theoretical physics. I was pleased some years ago when a commentator proposed that only four or five people in the world really understood Einstein's relativity theory. It seemed that I was with the majority in not understanding. In recent years relativity theory and even quantum mechanics have become part of what almost everyone claims to understand, or at least write about. I liked Einstein's remark that quantum mechanics involved what he called "spooky action at a distance." It is not necessary to understand spooky things.

Einstein's theories, and other proposals from science, rise and fall on the finding of some sort of physical evidence supporting them. Among the outcomes of relativity theory was the seemingly unlikely notion that as anything or anyone moved faster and faster and approached the speed of light, time would slow down. Time was not an absolute; it was relative.

Determination as to the truth of Einstein's speculation depended on the development of almost incredibly accurate clocks. We now have such clocks and have done the critical experiment. Two matched clocks, one on the surface of the Earth and one whizzing around in orbit, are set to the same time and then allowed to speed along. After some time the clock in orbit, traveling faster, shows a slower time than the one on Earth.

It was at that instant that I had my "Aha!" moment about the passage of time and advancing personal age. If time goes more slowly as speed is increased, it must be equally true that time goes faster if speed is very slow. I have slowed down a great deal in the last 10 years, just as the pace of time itself seems to be accelerating. Obviously It is not just an impression that time seems to be fleeting as we grow slower with age, according to Einstein, it is true. And that truth also provides a solution to the problem of time moving faster as we get older. All we have to do is keep moving at a good pace and time will slow down a bit.

It is not often that theoretical physics and human experience coincide so perfectly. Hurrah for relativity.

Bergmann Center says 'Thank you'

Editor:

Several people have been asking "how did the auction go?" It went great! We appreciate the local communities for all of their support in making our 9th annual "Starlight" dinner and Auction held at the Emmet Community Building located in the Fairgrounds in Petoskey on May 1. This is the 9th annual fundraising event, which would not have been made possible without the generosity and support from our surrounding communities.

John Murray did an outstanding job with auctioneering and Grey Gables catered a fantastic meal. This event resulted in Bergmann Center raising a little more than $13,500 after expenses. Funds raised will be used to provide a variety of community inclusion opportunities to persons with a mental and/or physical challenge that reside in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Opportunities provided at Bergmann Center include but are not limited to recreational activities, volunteering, club membership, community employment, self-employment and enrichment classes. For more information about Bergmann Center, Bergmann Center Resale Shop, volunteer opportunities, or a tour, please stop by 08855 Martin Road, Charlevoix, Monday-Friday 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. or call (231) 547-2979 or visit www.bergmanncenter.org.

Garden club grateful for mayor's proclamation

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, No one can be indifferent toward a charming garden, abounding with colorful flowers, dancing butterflies, and delightful fragrances; and

Whereas, Gardens enhance the natural beauty of Charlevoix the Beautiful, inviting everyone to take a pleasant and fascinating walk throughout the city; and

Whereas, Gardeners beautify the community by creating, planting, and maintaining private and public gardens; and

Whereas, Gardeners support gardening and science programs, which educate children for a continuing and flourishing environment; and

Whereas, Gardeners promote the Art of Gardening as a healthy activity for everyone in our community;

Now, Therefore to acknowledge the importance of gardening and the benefits provided to our community by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, I, Norman L. Carlson, Jr., hereby designate the week of June 5-11, 2011 as National Garden Week

Date: May 20, 2011

Signed by: Norman L. Carlson, Jr., Mayor, City of Charlevoix

The members of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club appreciate the support of the mayor and the community and look forward to another beautiful summer in Charlevoix.

Sincerely,
Marge McGoff, president,
Charlevoix Area Garden Club

ecutive Director Keith Carey said losing the theater would be a big blow to the downtown.

"We are very fortunate to have a downtown theater. Many downtowns have lost their theaters completely or they've moved out of town," Carey said. "I've talked with (leaders) from other communities who are jealous of the fact that we have a grocery store, family-owned pharmacy and a movie theater in our downtown."

Cary said the theater is a key component in the entertainment amenities the downtown offers.

Carey said he, like many people in the community, has many fond memories from his childhood of going to see movies in one of Supernaw's theaters.

Supernaw has been involved in running a theater in downtown Charlevoix since 1972 when he and his cousin bought the single screen theater at 220 Bridge Street. Later, in the mid-80s Supernaw bought his cousin out and in 1995 he moved the theater to its current location where he made a three-screen theater out of a former car dealership.

Aside from some part-time help manning the counter, Supernaw said he runs the majority of the business himself — from ordering the movies, splicing the reels of film together an manning the projector room, to selling tickets and popcorn.

Supernaw, who said he'd like to see the city make more efforts to foster a more year-round economic base, said the theater's become so much a part of his life, he's not sure what he'll do if he ends up losing it.

After seeing thousands of movies over the past nearly four decades, this is one story Supernaw is still hoping will have a happy ending.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Sights like this one, of patrons entering the Charelvoix Cinema III theater in downtown Charlevoix to take in a movie may be short lived if the theater's owner Bill Supernaw can't work out a deal to re-finance the mortgage on the building by early July.

Woman injured in car-deer crash Monday

A Charlevoix woman sustained minor injuries when the car in which she was riding collided with a deer Monday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the woman as Cristina Staats, 66.

Deputies said Cristina Staats' husband, John Staats, 70, of Charlevoix, was driving his vehicle on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road near Old U.S. 31 in Hayes Township around 8:30 p.m. when a deer ran into the side of the vehicle.

Police said when the deer struck the vehicle it came in contact with Cristina Staats over the side of the car, which was a convertible with the top down. Cristina Staats sustained a minor injury to her forehead. She was driven to Charlevoix Area Hospital by her husband to be evaluated for her injury.

John Staats was not injured in the crash. Deputies said both occupants were wearing their seat belts at the time of the crash.

Dubiel-Kochanny engagement

June 18, 2011 is the date that has been chosen for the wedding of Matthew Kochanny and Kelly Dubiel. Their proud parents are Timothy and Karen Kochanny of Charlevoix and James and Theresa Dubiel of Howell. Matthew is a special education teacher in Traverse City and Kelly teaches students who are visually handicapped. Both are graduates of Michigan State University. The wedding will take place at St. Francis Church in Traverse City and the reception will take place at the Haggerty Center. The couple plans to reside in Traverse City.

Major East Jordan road project to begin Tuesday

After two years of planning and design, construction of the Maple Street water and sewer improvement project was expected to begin Tuesday, May 31 in East Jordan.

According to an East Jordan Chamber of Commerce news release, Team Elmer's, of Traverse City, will be working between Bartlett and State streets for the next three to four weeks, typically from 7:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Work crews are expecting the road to be open to two-way traffic at the end of each work day. However, the roadway will be gravel and motorists must use reduced speeds and proceed with caution.

Motorists are encouraged to use the detour (Rogers Road, M-66 and M-32) as much as possible.

Public Information meetings will take place every Thursday, 9 a.m. at city hall while the project is ongoing.

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, the Courier has been publishlishing photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles. The series is expected to conclude at the end of the month.

Community foundation awards youth grants

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee recently distributed $17,500 in grants to nonprofit agencies with programs for young people.

The committee is comprised of 16 students from across the county who review and evaluate grant proposals. The process also includes interviews with representatives from agencies that seek financial support.

This year the five awarded grants went to four organizations. They include the following:

— $1,862 to the Bay Area Substance Education Services' Teen Center in Charlevoix to support the publication of "BASES Brain Training for Addiction Recovery" books to utilize in its recovery high program.

— $2,560 to Camp Daggett on Walloon Lake to provide scholarships for low-income children to attend summer camp.

— $5,678 to Michigan State University Extension in Charlevoix County for scholarships for low-income families to participate in summer 4-H programs.

— $3,500 to Raven Hill Discovery Center in rural East Jordan to develop and deliver the Michigan Coral Reefs art experience to area school students.

— $3,900 to Raven Hill Discovery Center for the program that connects science, history and art for area youngsters.

Started in 1992, the Youth Advisory Committee was organized to engage local high school students in philanthropy. Sixteen (16) students, representing Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Northwest Academy high schools, comprise the group.

"We're fortunate to work with an amazing group of talented and thoughtful students who take their grantmaking role very seriously," noted Jennifer Booher, the foundation's Youth Adivsory Committe program advisor.

"We learn a lot about the organization's needs in those interviews," said Erin Boyle, a Beaver Island Community School sophomore and committee member.

Call (231) 536-2440 or visit www.c3f.org online for more information about the foundation and how to make a contribution to its Youth Fund.

Castle to host Women's Resource Center fundraiser

The Women's Resource Center will host its fifth annual Women Can/Women Do fundraising luncheon on Wednesday, June 15, at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Twenty-six Charlevoix County designers are donating their talents in creating theme tables for the luncheon. Each table will consist of a table captain with seven other guests who donate a minimum of $150. Anyone interested in becoming a table captain is encouraged to contact the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067. The luncheon will be catered by Grey Gables.

Last year's luncheon raised more than $26,000 for the Women's Resource Center, which provides a multitude of programs and services to improve the lives of women, children and families in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Otsego counties.

This year's table designers include: A Matter of Taste, A Touch of Spring, The Backdoor/A Floral Studio/Deer Creek Junk, Boyne Mountain Solace Spa, Boynes' Beyond Borders, C & M Cards, Castle Farms, Charlevoix Circle of Arts, Charlevoix Area Garden Club, Charlevoix Area Hospital Gift Shop, Connie Carr, Consign Design, Curves of Charlevoix, Discovery Toys, East Jordan Girl Scout Troop No. 10364, Elements, Hearts to Holly Quilt Shop, Inspired Living, Kilwin's of Charlevoix, Lake Street Market, Marvin's Gardens, Merry Makers, Panache Hair Studio, Petals Custom Floral Designs, Raven Hill Discovery Center, and Upsy-Daisy Floral.

The Women Can/Women Do committee chairperson is Toni Felter and committee members include Susan Flanders, Karen Kimmell, Chris Kempton, Brandy Malpass, Pat Poineau, Nancy Porter and Denise Schlitt.

Anyone interested in attending the luncheon should contact the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

OBITUARIES

Auffant

John Joseph Auffant, 89, of Charlevoix, died Tuesday, May 24, 2011, at his home. Funeral took place at 2 p.m., Monday, May 30, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, where friends visited with John's family from 1 p.m., until the time of the service. The Rev. Chip Sauer officiated, with burial in the Undine Cemetery in Hayes Township.

John was born in New York City Nov. 2, 1921, to John B. and Maria (Millan) Auffant. He served as a sergeant in the U.S. Army during WWII.

On Oct. 7, 1943, he married Evelyn J. Ramu in New York. They made their home in Irvington, N.Y., where John worked as regional vice president for the National Housing Ministries, providing housing for low income and elderly people. Throughout his life, John has cared a great deal for the elderly and their needs. John and Evelyn began spending summers in Charlevoix in 1984, moving here permanently in 2000.

John was a member of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, and a member of Rotary International in Bridgeport, Conn.

Contributions may be made to the Community Reformed Church Memorial Fund, 100 Oak Street, Charlevoix, or to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Those wishing to share a memory of John, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Helen Rose VanRaaphorst: March 19, 1919 - May 13, 2011

Helen Rose VanRaaphorst, age 92, passed away May, 13, 2011 at the San Diego Hospice Impatient Care Center in San Diego, Calif.

Helen was born March 19, 1919, in Riley Township, St. Clair, Mich. to the late Guy and Mabel Finch. After attending a one-room schoolhouse for 12 years, Helen graduated from High School in 1936. An excellent student, Helen applied to and was accepted by Michigan State University however, the financial effects of the Great Depression denied her the chance at a college education.

Helen then went to work as a bookkeeper where she later met her future husband who, just happened to be working next door. On Nov. 12, 1938, Helen Married William John VanRaaphorst in Port Huron. Helen and Bill remained married for nearly 61 years. At the outbreak of World War II Helen's husband enlisted in the U.S. Army and was sent to fight in the European theater. Shortly thereafter, her first son, Richard was born. Two other sons, Robert, and Ronald would follow over the years to come.

Following the war, Helen and her family moved from Port Huron to Mount Clemens and later to Charlevoix where they settled in 1950. Helen's husband Bill began his long career in the steel and aerospace business working for American Mold Engineering. Away from work, Helen and Bill became active in golf, sailing and outings with family and friends. Charlevoix quickly became their "favorite place" and even though they would eventually move, they spent the rest of their lives visiting whenever possible.

In 1960 Helen and her family moved to Ligonier, Penn. as her husband's career continued to expand. Over the next 22 years, Helen worked in tireless support of her husband hosting countless guests, cooking wonderful meals and attending to her role as wife and mother.

By 1982, Helen and her husband Bill retired to Rancho Mirage, Calif. where they lived together until her husband's death in 1999. Helen continued to live in Rancho Mirage for the remainder of her life, all while surrounded by family and friends.

Helens greatest joy in life came from watching her sons, grandsons and even great-grandsons and great-granddaughters participate in sports. Helen was quite the athlete herself, especially when it came to golf, which she played into her 80s. Outside of sports, Helen was especially proud to see her three sons and five grandsons, attend eight different colleges. As they all made their own lives, Helen was so excited to welcome nine great-grandchildren into the family and for once, there were girls, Haley, Caroline, Alexis and Taylor.

Helen is survived by her Cousin Jenaveve Vasiu and her extended family in Howell, her husband's sister, Anna VanRaaphorst-Johnson and her husband and extended family, San Jose, Calif. Three sons Richard, San Diego, Robert, Pittsburgh, Pa, and Ronald, Coronado, Calif., five grandsons, Jeff, Billy, Mike, Bobby and Tommy and nine great-grandchildren, Jacob, Haley, Cade, Michael, Caroline, Grant, Alexis, Taylor and Jack.

No immediate plans for a memorial service have been made at this time. The family would respectfully ask that anyone considering a memorial donation in her name to please select an organization most important to them.

Finally, the family wishes to express their sincere appreciation the staff of The San Diego Hospice and the Institute for Palliative Medicine. Their care and compassion is sincerely appreciated.

Monday Movies by the Marina returns

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority recently announced that it will again host a series of three movies in East Park's Odmark Performance Pavilion on select Monday evenings this summer.

Huntington Bank is the sponsor for the film series.

"The 'Monday Movies by the Marina' series has been one of the more popular activities we've offered in downtown," downtown development authority executive director Keith Carey said. "Huntington Bank's continued sponsorship of the series will once again allow us to offer these terrific family experiences in a wonderful outdoor setting."

The films are projected on a large screen erected on the pavilion stage with sound provided by the pavilion's state-of-the-art audio system. Moviegoers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs and/or blankets. Huntington Bank will also offer free popcorn before the start of each movie. New this year will be fun giveaways of movie-related items to children prior to each showing.

— 8:30 p.m. Monday, Aug 22, "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl" (PG)

"Venetian Vision" will also make its third appearance as part of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. The Venetian Vision movie will be shown at 9:15 p.m. on Monday, July 18 and will again be selected by the community through an online polling by the Charlevoix Courier and Downtown Charlevoix's Facebook page beginning in mid-July. Past selections have included "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Back to the Future."

Evans

EAST JORDAN — Charlevoix County's Grandvue Medical Care Facility administrator Kevin Evans resigned, much to the chagrin of some and the delight of others.

The county's Department of Human Services board accepted his resignation on Thursday. His last day will be Thursday, June 2.

Evans' resignation comes amid public accusations of poor management and potentially illegal treatment of employees that sparked multiple lawsuits. Contrarily, he also recently received a state award for providing a safe, caring environment for both Grandvue's residents and staff.

Department of Human Services board member Carl Bloom said all bosses have some employees who like them and some who don't.

"Kevin has been an aggressive leader," Bloom said.

Regardless, Grandvue has strong administrative organization and is in fine financial shape. That's thanks to Evans, Bloom said.

"We looked at all of the allegations and worked with Kevin Evans. We feel he's been responsive and we were comfortable with the progress we were making," Bloom said. "We were saddened to receive his resignation."

Evans declined to discuss himself, but said he was not forced to resign. He will pursue one or more jobs in the Lansing area, he said.

Grandvue will continue to provide quality, resident-focused care once he's gone, Evans added.

"My focus has been on helping my residents and staff with the transition," he said. "There are so many great, caring people there."

Numerous unfair labor and wrongful termination lawsuits were filed against Grandvue during Evans' five-and-a-half-year tenure, including the one by Janet Renkiewicz of Charlevoix that settled for $25,000 in October.

Renkiewicz filed suit in April last year under the Whistleblower's Protection Act. She claimed she was wrongfully fired from her position as manager of Grandvue's dementia unit in early January 2010.

She said it will be good for employee morale when Evans is gone.

"I think that it will be a benefit to Grandvue because he did not treat the employees the way they should be treated," Renkiewicz said.

After all, bad employee morale leads to diminished quality of care, she said.

County commissioner Shirlene Tripp said she received during the last year more than a dozen letters from Grandvue employees who pleaded for somebody to intervene on their behalf. They alleged uncommonly hostile treatment by Evans and the wrongful termination of some just before retirement benefits kicked in, Tripp said.

"And nobody did anything," she said.

Eric Beishlag, who is Renkiewicz's significant other and whose mother lives at Grandvue, said he's championed efforts to rein in Evans' behavior and is pleased the administrator will soon be history. Beishlag is an Eveline Township trustee.

"It's something that needed to be done. The employees, whether they admit it, were fearful for their jobs," Beishlag said. "I think the employees needed more representation and I hope they'll get it now."

Beishlag said he attended the board meeting when Evans submitted his resignation. The reason Evans' last day is June 2 is because he is required to testify in another lawsuit, he said.

Bill Olstrom, another Department of Human Services board member, said it's time to move forward and remember Evans did "a lot of great things for Grandvue."

Meanwhile, the board appointed Judy Martin, former Antrim County Medical Care Facility administrator, to serve as the interim administrator while a search begins for a permanent replacement.

Olstrom said he expects very little impact to Grandvue when Evans leaves next week because Martin will already be in place.

Beishlag contends Evans' departure is good news for both the facility's residents and workers. Many problems at Grandvue originated with Evans, he said.

"There were lawsuits and people who resigned under duress," Beishlag said.

Tripp said she knows there are people on both sides of the fence when it comes to Evans and his coming departure.

"I can see it being good, but some might think it's bad," she said.

TRACK

Twice as nice

Rayder boys and girls teams win conference championships

EAST JORDAN — It was a double dip for the Charlevoix Rayders as both the boys' and girls' track teams each ran to victory Wednesday, May 25 at a rain-filled Lake Michigan Conference championship at Boswell Stadium, capturing the league title.

The Rayder girls held off Harbor Springs and won by a six-point margin, 128-122; while the Charlevoix boys finished well ahead of runner-up Elk Rapids, 179-143.

The Boyne City girls were third with 105 points, while East Jordan was eighth, 28.

The Harbor Springs boys placed third with 127.5 points, while East Jordan was fourth, 57; and Boyne City was eighth, 26.5.

Eric Buday paced the Charlevoix boys as he took first in four individual events including the 1,600-meter run, 4 minutes, 41.16 seconds; 400, 51.61; 800, 2:06.15; and the 3,200, 10:32.35.

For the Rayder girls, Molly Jeakle won three events including the 1,600, 5:21.50; 800, 2:30.63; and 400, 1:00.85. The Charlevoix girls also won the 3,200 relay (Olivia Certa, Anna Voci, Hilary Way, Annie Dipert), while adding wins for the Rayder boys were Matt Klooster, long jump, 18 feet, 1.5 inches; ,3,200 relay (John Shea, Will Larsen, Jackson Buday, Vinny VonLau), and 1,600 relay (Klooster, Larsen, Shea, VonLau).

"This was a very exciting and excellent way to end the track season for the team and especially for the seniors," track coach Mary Plude said. "It was raining and really quite miserable, but we were having so much fun with the challenge, that the girls did not let it effect their performances. They were ready and out there reaching for every point. The whole team wanted to win the conference."

Plude added, "That's the best way to end a season: with the whole team in on the excitement and everyone having a part in the win."

Next up 10 Rayders will compete at the state championships on June 4 at Comstock Park

SOFTBALL

Team gears up for district tournament June 4

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity softball team, who recently finished in a three-way tie at the top of the Lake Michigan Conference, took three of four non-conference games last week as they get ready for a run at a district title.

On Tuesday, May 24, the Radyers swept Newberry 5-2 and 16-1.

Katie Hybl had two hits in the opener and two more in the nightcap helping the Rayders imporve to 20-5 at the end of the day.

Jennifer Archey also had two hits for the Rayders in game one, while Maddie Zimmerman and Kelsey Pischner each singled.

Winning pitcher Hannah Hybl struck out nine and allowed eight hits.

Hannah Hybl had three hits including a triple to lead the Rayders at the plate in the nightcap. Katie Hybl struck out five and walked four in tossing a three-hitter for the victory.

Emily Mielke singled and doubled for the Rayders, Zimmerman had two hits, and Archey and Rachel Schull each singled.

On Thursday the Rayders split a twinbill with Central Lake winning the opener 6-3 and losing the nightcap 7-4

Hannah Hybl hit a two-run homer and Katie Hybl added two hits in the opener opening game victory. Winning pitcher Kristen Mielke struck out four, walked one and surrendered seven hits.

Kristen Mielke doubled, while Emily Mielke, Anna Moon and Chelsie Hoffman each singled for the Rayders.

Hannah Hybl allowed eight hits, struck out eight and walked on in taking the loss in game two.

Maddie Zimmerman hit a two-run homer and Kristen Mielke had two hits to lead Charlevoix at the plate. Katie Hybl, Hoffman, Hannah Hybl, Emily Mielke and Paige Montgomery each singled.

The Rayders, who are now 21-6 are now gearing up for district tournament play. Charlevoix will open against Boyne City in Boyne City at noon on Saturday, June 4.

BASEBALL

Herriman sets Rayder strikeout record

Coby Herriman turned in a memorable pitching performance for Charlevoix on Friday and in the process put himself in the school's baseball history books.

Herriman struck out 14 in tossing a one-hitter as the Rayders beat Traverse City Christian, 2-0, in the nightcap to earn a non-league doubleheader split. The Sabres won the opener, 7-1.

Herriman struck out 14 and became the school's all-time career strikeout leader with 182. He passed Mike Loper, who fanned 177. On the season, Herriman has 95 strikeouts, 13 shy of the single-season school record held by Chris Waha.

Jordan Farmer doubled to lead the Rayders at the plate in game two on Friday, while Herriman and Tommy Zipp each singled.

Andrew Potter doubled and singled to lead Charlevoix at the plate in game one, while Herriman and Farmer each singled. Dylan Sladek walked four and struck out one over two innings in taking the loss. Potter struck out five and walked two in four innings of relief.

On Thursday, the Rayders dropped the opener against Central Lake 5-2 but then broke it open with a 12-0 win in the nightcap.

Freshman Shane Sutherland tossed a one-hitter in the nightcap earning the win in the nightcap. Sutherland walked three and struck out four. The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run mercy rule.

Tommy Zipp led the Rayders at the plate with a single, a triple and three RBI, while Paul Stolt added two hits and drove in two runs.

Also for the Rayders, who broke the game open with a nine-run second inning, Coby Herriman had two hits, Jesse Drost had an RBI double, Morgan Stewart smacked a two-run single, and Sutherland and Andrew Potter each singled.

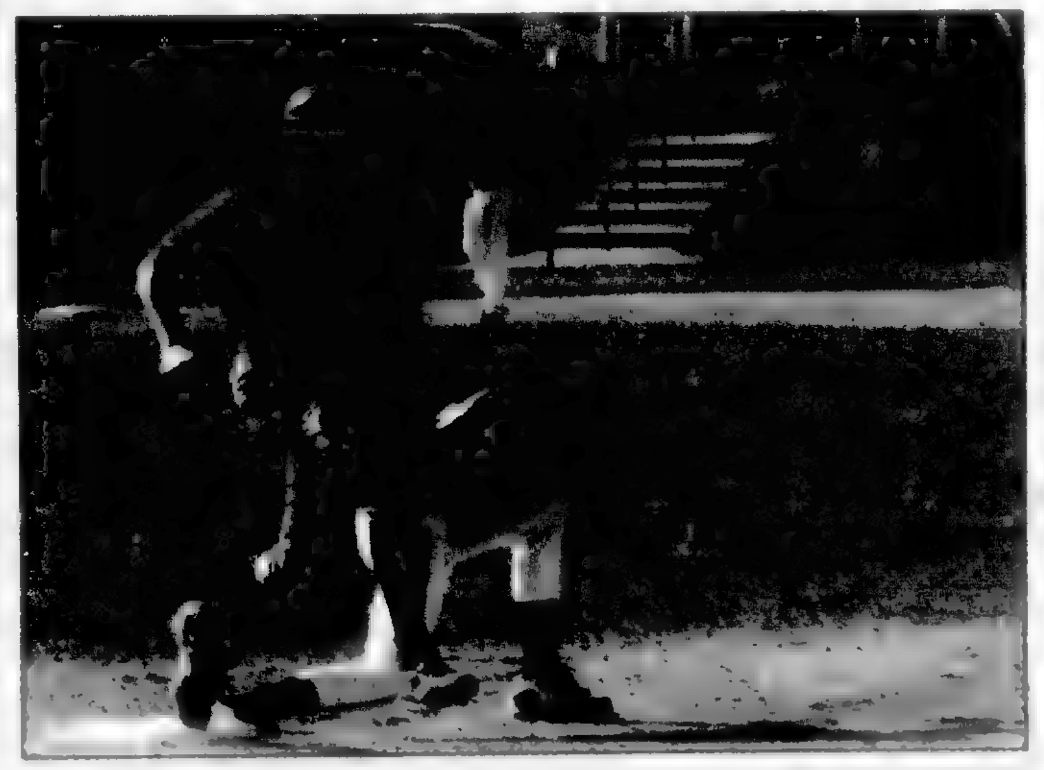
Zipp struck out five in taking the loss in the opener. Drost pitched in relief. Herriman and Drost each had an RBI single, and Jordan Farmer also singled.

On Tuesday, May 24, the Rayders dropped the opener against Newberry 4-1 but then won the nightcap 3-1.

Andrew Potter's two-run triple and Coby Herriman's RBI double highlighted a three-run third inning for Charlevoix in the second game. Potter struck out five and walked two for the victory. Tag McCreadie had two hits for the Rayders, while Dylan Sladek, Morgan Stewart and Luke Klinger each singled.

Herriman allowed four hits, walked four and struck out 12 in taking the loss in game one. Jordan Farmer doubled in Charlevoix's lone run, while Shane Sutherland, Herriman and Potter each singled.

The Rayders will start district tournament action at 10 a.m. on Saturday against Boyne City on their home field.



Charlevoix first-baseman Jesse Drost catches the ball for a force out in the first game of a double-header against Central Lake Wednesday, May 25.

SOCCER

The score was tied at halftime, but the Rayder broke it open in the second half. Hallie Bills started the scoring off a Hannah Doan corner kick. For the second goal Hannah Herboldsheimer set up Taylor Smith for a tap in past an out of position Liberty goalkeeper. Abbey Barnes closed out the scoring with a well placed left-footed shot off a Hallie Bills drop pass with 2:18 left in the game. Barnes shot sailed over the head of the Liberty goalkeeper and into the upper left corner of the goal. All three goals were scored by seniors, a fitting coincidence as the game was also senior parents night.

On Wednesday, May 25, Petoskey scored a pair of first half goals en route to shutting out Charlevoix, 2-0, Wednesday in a non-league match at the Charlevoix High School.

Kelsey Ance and Rachel Schappacher picked up the goals for the Northmen, who close out the regular season and improve to 13-2-4 overall with the win.

Senior goalkeeper Kate Johnson picked up her 12th shutout of the season in goal.

"We possessed the ball very well through the middle third of the field," Jonker said. "But Charlevoix made it difficult for us in the final third. They defended very well and their keeper played an outstanding game."

Charlevoix goalkeeper Lynzie Gotshall finished with 16 saves in goal.

"She really did an outstanding job," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "She really kept us in the game and made some key saves."

Madison also lauded the defensive efforts of center back Savannah Joseph, along with that of Carolena Elowsky and Kelly Greyerbeihl.

"It was a really good game for us and this should really help prepare us for districts," Madison said.

"I looked at the scores and they (Petoskey) defeated Elk Rapids 8-0 and the Liberty 4-0. We gave them a good challenge."

Charlevoix finished its regular season 10-6-3 overall finishing third in a close conference race behind first place Harbor Springs and second place Elk Rapids.

The Rayders are slated to open up district tournament action against Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy at 5 p.m. Wednesday, June 1 at Harbor Springs. The winner of that game will go on to play the winner of the Harbor Springs-Maple City Glen Lake semi-final game on Friday. Last week Harbor Springs clinched the league title for the second year in a row with a win over the Traverse City Liberty. On May 18 Charlevoix lost to Harbor 2-0 in overtime. The Rayders defeated Glen Lake 1-0 earlier this season.

"We play Burt Lake Wednesday night and they are not to be overlooked on the way to the final Friday," Madison said. "They have a very good goalkeeper and they know how to put the ball in the net. If we are successful this week it would be our fourth district title in a row which would be accomplishment. Harbor has to get through Glen Lake to get to Friday's game and that will be no easy task either."

TENNIS

Rayders finish 3rd at conference

TRAVERSE CITY — The Charlevoix High School girls' tennis team finished third in the Lake Michigan Conference Championships on Tuesday, May 24.

Harbor Springs won the tournament, while Traverse City St. Francis was second. Elk Rapids, Boyne City, and Grayling finished behind the Rayders.

Charlevoix's Cassidy Stebe-Ashley Louiselle reached the championship match at No. 4 doubles, where they fell to St. Francis' Emily Walters-Bethan Janik, 6-3, 6-2.

Charlevoix's Kelsey way, No. 1 singles; Jordyn Fassett, No. 3; Kelsea Stevens, No. 4; and Karley Pearsall Cassidy Peebles, No. 1 doubles, each won their respective opening-round matches before bowing in the semifinals.

"Our girls had several tight matches and many tie breaks situations, continuing to show their competitiveness and desire to improve," head coach Audra Randall said. "Our team is already talking about what needs to be done for next year to move up to first or second place. I like the challenge they have put before themselves and what they are planning for 2012.

The Rayders finished the regular season at 6-5.

CHS names 2011 Senior Scholars

Charlevoix High School officials have named eight members of the class of 2011 as "Senior Scholars."

In recent years the school has been using the Senior Scholar program in lieu of naming a valedictorian and salutatorian. Students qualify as a Senior Scholar through a formula that factors in their grade-point-averages and their ACT test scores.

The school's graduation ceremony will take place at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 5, in the high school gym.

Bills

Hallie Bills, the daughter of Keith and Becky Bills, will graduate with a 3.817 grade point average. While in high school Hallie has been active in soccer, cheerleading for four years, and has ridden on the equestrian team for three years. She has served as class co-president for four years and is an active member of the student council. Hallie also has been involved in Quiz Bowl and Future Problem Solvers, and is a member of National Honor Society. As a senior her grades have earned her a position on Charlevoix High Schools' Academic All-Conference Team. After graduation Hallie will attend Central Michigan University where she plans to study psychology.

Boss

Connor Boss, the son of Jim and Linda Boss, will graduated with a 3.974 grade point average. While in high school Connor has played golf for three years, participated on the Quiz Bowl team for two years, and played basketball for one year. He has also participated in the robotics program and competed in the Alternative Energy Vehicle Race. Connor has been a member of the National Honor Society for the past two years as well as being a member of the Charlevoix High School Academic All-Conference Team. After graduation Connor will attend Michigan State University where he plans to study electrical and computer engineering.

Larsen

William Larsen, the son of Kent and Lin Larsen, will graduated with a 3.827 grade point average. While in high school William has played soccer for four years and twice earned all-conference honors. He has run track for four years, achieving all-conference three years, as well as all-state and academic all-state honors. He also played basketball for two years. William participated in marching band for five years and concert band for three years. He has volunteered three summers at Camp Daggett. William is a member of the Charlevoix High School Academic All-Conference Team. After graduation William will attend Michigan Tech University where he plans to study mechanical engineering.

Laway

Lindsy Laway, the daughter of Bill Laway and Alan and Lisa Crow, will graduate with a 3.967 grade point average. Opening reception will take place 6-8 p.m. Saturday, May 21. Hors d'oeuvres and entertainment. Closing ceremony will take place 3-5 p.m. Sunday, July 24. The event will include dessert and entertainment including auto poetry reading by John Alberts.

Blood drives — As Spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Children's House has a home

Partnership with school district keeps Charlevoix Children's house afloat

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Leaders with Charlevoix Public Schools and the Charlevoix Children's House Montessori school are hoping that a second attempt at public-private partnership will help bolster the balance sheets for both organizations.

At a special meeting Monday, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Eduction approved a one-year agreement under which the school district will take over the kindergarten class at the Charlevoix Children's House.

Under the terms of the agreement the school district would rent a portion of the Charlevoix Children's House Mercer Road building for $16,000 per year and pay the salary and benefits totalling about $40,000 per year for the school's teacher. The district would then be able to add students enrolled in the kindergarten program at the Children's House into its student count figures used for per-pupil state school aid funding calculations.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik explained that the district would get the benefit of additional state aid revenue and the ability to offer another type of kindergarten experience, while the Charlevoix Children's House benefits from the additional rent income, the fact that the compensation for the school's teacher, Molly Arnold (who also oversees the preschool age children who attend the school) will be paid by the district and the ability to offer an additional year in the Montessori program which is appealing to many parents already in the program.

Janik noted that under the contract, Arnold will become an employee of the school district, she will receive the same health plan that district administrators get, but she will not become part of the local teacher's or support staff unions. He added that union representatives had submitted a letter giving their blessing to the arrangement with Arnold.

Janik noted that right now Charlevoix Children's House staff is expecting about 12 kindergarten students in the fall. Another term of the contract stipulates that if enrollment in the program drops be-

Rayders graduate

Taxable value up, millage rate down

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

An unexpected up-tick in the taxable value of properties in the city will mean a little more revenue in the city's coffers and a slightly smaller city millage rate.

Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandi said recently finalized county equalization figures for 2011 taxable values held a surprise for city officials. Instead of the 7 percent decrease in property values that city officials had used to create the 2011-12 budget, property values actually climbed slightly by a little more than 2 percent.

Brandi noted that the number could still change as several tax tribunal cases are still pending.

Although a 9 percent upswing in taxable values might look like a huge windfall for the city at first blush, it's not that simple.

Enter the Headlee Amendment.

Under the amendment tax, a municipality's tax revenue may not increase by more than the rate of inflation (1.7 percent low eight, the district would have the option of discontinuing its involvement.

The opportunity for the new partnership came about after the board of directors for Northwest Academy decided in April to discontinue a very similar arrangement with the Charlevoix Children's House. That agreement had been in place for the past two years.

Northwest Academy administrator Matt Saunders said the decision by that board to discontinue its relationship with the Charlevoix Children's House was based largely on simple numbers. The costs weren't justifying the benefits.

Saunders explained that much like the new arrangement with the Charlevoix School District, Northwest's agreement with the Charlevoix Children's House was intended to both help keep the Children's House afloat, but Northwest officials had hoped the program would serve as a feeder system where children from the Montessori program would migrate onto the charter school's rolls.

But that didn't seem to be happening.

Plus, Saunders noted that Northwest's charter prohibits it from teaching the same grade in two different buildings.

Saunders said for the two years the school's kindergarten was housed at the Charlevoix Children's House the school had experimented with a combined first through sixth grade classroom (team-taught by two teachers). He said now, he plans to return to the configuration used before the kindergarten arrangement, which will group kindergarten through second grade, third and fourth, and fifth and sixth grades together in three separate classrooms.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education also approved another cooperative agreement for non-traditional educational services Monday — this time on the upper end of the K-12 educational spectrum.

The board approved an agreement Monday under which the Char-Em Intermediate School District will relocate an alternative education program from Bellaire to a district-owned building in Ironton.

Janik explained that the program is not one for students with discipline or legal troubles, but rather for students who, for social or academic reasons, aren't having success in the traditional school setting.

He said the agreement calls for Char-Em to operate the school and pay Charlevoix Public Schools $1,100 per month to use the school building in Ironton. That building, which had previously housed a Head Start program, has been vacant for about a year.

He said students from around the area would be eligible to attend the school and that Char-Em would simply bill a per-day rate back to the student's "home" district to be taken out of the per-pupil state aid money allocated for that student.

Finally on Monday, the board discussed the possibility of going to a "paperless" system for distributing documents among board members and staff for meetings. The board expressed interest in the cost savings in copying materials and labor costs, but many board members were also concerned about the public's opinion if the board were to buy a device such as an iPad to store and read documents. Some on the board pointed to the tepid reception the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners received when it purchased iPads for the same reason recently.

The board also set its 2011-12 school year budget hearing for 5:30 p.m. on Monday, June 20, in the middle school large meeting room. The board's regular monthly meeting will follow at 6 p.m. By law, the district must have its budget in place by June 30.

When all the math was done, the city needed to reduce its overall millage rate by 0.0435 mills. (A mill is one dollar in tax for every $1,000 of a home's taxable value). At its regular semi-monthly city council meeting Monday, the council voted to approve the millage reduction — to be taken from the city infrastructure millage. Council also voted to reduce the city's refuse millage by 0.1 mill, because, as Brandi explained, with the higher taxable values, the city would likely take in more than it will cost for the leaf collection, composting, brush pickup and bi-weekly junk pickups. The combined reductions of 0.1435 mills will save the owner of a home with a taxable value of $100,000, about $14 per year.

Brandi noted that after all the numbers are crunched it appears the city may have about $60,000 in extra revenue available this year. He said city staff will look at some of the projects that it had shelved during the budget process, such as a new roof on the golf course clubhouse for possible consideration.

The city also expects to take in an additional $22,500 in revenue from the county-wide voter-approved 1-mill road and street millage.

Disc golf takes flight

The city council on Monday gave city staff the green light to install an 18-hole disc golf course at the Mount McSauba Recreation area.

Discussions about creating a city-approved disc golf course at the property came up about a year ago after a hiker at Mount McSauba was hit in the head near her eye by a disc thrown by a disc golfer playing on a makeshift course that used portions of some popular hiking trails.

Disc golf is similar to traditional golf except that instead of trying to get a little ball into a cup, the object is to land a disc inside a basket.

The council gave its approval to a course laid out by local disc golf enthusiast Ric Evans.

City manager Rob Straebel said the course was designed with an eye toward reducing or eliminating conflicts between uses at the recreation area.

Straebel noted that he was optimistic that the course could still be in place yet this year, but before that can happen supporters will need to raise the estimated $7,500 to $10,000 cost of installing the course and steps will need to be taken to minimize erosion concerns on some of the steeper grades.

In other business, the council on Monday:

— approved spending $11,314 to purchase a zero turn radius mower for the airport.

— approved a bid from Reith-Rieley for $12,995 to replace a section of asphalt on Stover Road where water main work took place last fall.

— set a public hearing for its June 20 meeting for a proposed set of four amendments to the city's zoning ordinance. The most discussed among the proposed changes is a section that would slightly broaden and further define the types of businesses that will be permitted with a first-floor entrance on Bridge Street.

— approved an agreement with the Lake Charlevoix Mariners which would allow the organization to erect and rent small boat storage racks on Depot Beach. The organization plans to rent the racks for $60 per season. The first year all of the revenue will go to the Mariners to offset the cost of the rack. In following years, the city and the Mariners will split the income.

— gave its OK to a proposal by the city manager to spend about $11,000 to install four LED lights on the bridge downtown. Straebel said last year the council received a complaint about it being too dark on the bridge for pedestrian safety. The Michigan Department of Transportation has approved the project.

Trip was an exercise in European experiences

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Editor's note: This is the second in Gayle's two-part series of columns about her recent trip to Europe. The first part appeared in the May 25 edition of the Courier.

We safely arrived in Paris by air. Did you know that Europe has more steps than Cartier has perfumes? It's no wonder those across the pond are attractively in shape. No need for Stairmasters. The layout of the land does that for you. Our daily workout: walking five flights of stairs from the hotel room to a breakfast of freshly baked croissants, yogurt and espresso. The warm up walk to the fresh-air markets for fruits, cheese and baguettes. Turn and then repeat the steps back up to the hotel room. Elevators hold about two and half people so stairs were beginning to look better all the time. Now a cool down of walking down the steps of the Metro followed by quick turns and side moves through the turnstiles to catch a subway to the innermost activity of the city.

Another cool down strolling along the narrow sidewalks doing sidesteps to avoid the traffic of scooters that share the walkways along with pedestrians. A quick front step shuffle would get you across the street with maybe a lunge now and then to avoid a Fiat driven by someone eager to get to their destination. Motorized vehicles are required to stop when you enter the crosswalk but for some it's a game of cat and mouse.

Some highlights of this two week excursion included attending Mass at Notre Dame, riding the elevator to the top of the Eiffel Tower and taking a cooking class in the heart of the Montmartre district where Julia Child once lived. For my husband it was climbing in and around the barbwire and bunkers in the war-torn beaches of Normandy. His viewing of the History Channel came to life and his smiles let me know it was the perfect place for him to visit. Visiting each beach though brought with it sadness. Seeing first-hand the enormous cliffs that these brave men climbed after enduring time spent on wave-crashing boats and knowing that their life would be cut short as they became sitting ducks when they reached the top. My cheeks were warmed by my own tears as I viewed the crosses, more than 20,000 of them in all; Americans who died on these beaches most not older than 18 years of age. We paused for a moment to watch a woman meander her husband's wheelchair into a chapel built to give respect to those buried on what is now a glorious and beautiful beach. Again my eyes filled with tears knowing all too well that this gentleman knew first-hand a loss most of us cannot begin to imagine.

On a cheerful note the cooking class I signed on for a month earlier was all I imagined and more so. I learned the fine art of selecting fresh foods from the open-air markets and slowly accepted the concept that heads or feet remain on the fish, rabbit, venison or chicken to mark their age and also to utilize in stock. We practiced slicing and dicing, searing and saucing, whipping and presenting. Eight hours later and voila (the French say that a lot) a dinner fit for a king. My husband stayed faithfully with me as it takes a while for the American intestine to acclimate to French food and between chopping up a chicken claw and feeling waves of my own nausea from dinner the night before I wasn't too certain I 'd make it through the day.

Souvenirs from our trip to Europe that I didn't have to claim at customs:

16 mosquito bites from Venice, intestinal disagreement from a vegetable dish in Paris, bruising from getting caught in a subway door, sore calves from carrying a suitcase up and down the unending Metro steps. Things I've learned: No one has screens on their windows in Europe; its actually fun to hang your laundry from the window; I can stomach chicken feet as part of my diet, riding a subway is good exercise for the mind and body; springtime is the best time to travel to Europe and we are grateful to learn and know that America is safer and more prosperous and forgiving and respectful than I ever realized. It's good to be home.

Zonta science scholarship

Charlevoix Zonta Club recently awarded Charlevoix High School student Katie Hybl, the "Young Women in Science" scholarship for a class aboard the schooner Inland Seas. Katie will study the ecology of Lake Michigan with eight other young women in the area. The young women will also record weather observations several times a day for the National Weather Service. Their research will be posted on ISEA's website www.schoolship.org. Besides their scientific research, the students will experience the life and demands of sailing a traditionally-rigged vessel. The "Young Women in Science" program promotes one of Zonta's goals to encourage young women in the science fields. Zonta International is a global organization of women working together to advance the status of women worldwide through service and advocacy. Pictured above, Katie is congratulated on her award by high school science teacher Todd Klinger.

Kiwanis club honors two giving women

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club's Spiritual Aims Committee recently recognized two area women a newly-established award intended to honor individuals who help others in need.

The club presented the first Community Service Award to Rita Orlowski at a recent Kiwanis luncheon. Rita and her granddaughter Joelle Beaudoin were able to be present for this celebration that took place May 31, 2011, at the Weathervane Restaurant. Rita has been an active member of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Hospital Guild, Grandview Facility Auxiliary, American Legion Auxiliary and the Charlevoix Senior Center. She has volunteered for many years at the First Congregational Church Food Pantry, the Community Christmas Project and the spring planting of petunias.

At St. Mary's Catholic Church she has been on the pastoral church council, volunteered as the Eucharistic minister and coordinated weekend Mass greeters. She is also active with the Northwest Region of the Diocese Council of Catholic Women of Gaylord. Rita is currently an active member of the St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society and was their past president. Rita is most known for her involvement with the Rainbow Shoppe. She is one of its founders and an active board member since its inception in 1983. Through the years Rita has helped countless families and organizations by reducing their stress, guiding them to receive what they needed to make ends meet.

The other recent recipient of this award was Mary Helen Riggle. Mary Helen was greeted recently at Boulder Park by fellow residents, staff, and Kiwanis Club members, but most importantly her children who were able to attend. Under Mary Helen's guidance the first food pantry was established at the First Congregational Church. This successful pantry which has been in existence since 1983 was due in large part to Mary Helen and her providing the first canned good (a can of fresh pineapple). She listened to what the community needed and responded to that need. Assisted with funds from the former Department of Social Services and food from area churches, this food pantry is still a huge success.

Mary Helen is also well known as the founder of the well-known Community Christmas Project, which has been in existence for more than 50 years. In the beginning, Mary Helen made food baskets for families in need and personally checked that each basket contained warm mittens for the children. This project has grown to include donations from local schools, churches, and service clubs. The popular mitten trees also grew from this project. In later years, Mary Helen knitted baby caps for newborns at Charlevoix Area Hospital and prayer shawls that were given to various people throughout the community. Mary Helen is a quilter as well and enlisted women of her church to quilt the "Peace Quilt'"which still hangs in the First Congregational Church Fellowship Hall.

Hazardous waste collection day set

The Charlevoix County Recycling Program will host one of its two annual household hazardous waste dropoff days from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday, June 11.

Those wising to use the service are asked to call (231) 582-6193 for an appointment time.

Items that will be accepted during the collection day include, drain cleaners, oven cleaners, used motor oil and other automotive fluids, solvents, fluorescent light bulbs, mercury-containing thermometers, electronics and many other items.

For more information, visit the recycling program website at www.charlevoixcounty.org/recycling.asp.

The recycling program will also host its annual plant plastic collection day from 9 a.m.-noon on Saturday, June 25. Collection locations will again be at the Charlevoix Kmart parking lot, the East Jordan transfer station at the end of Nichols Street and at Boyne Avenue Greenhouse in Boyne City. Most types of containers will be accepted, but items are generally limited to pots of any size, flats, plug trays and cell packs. All items must be rinsed free of excess soil. All like items should be stacked together. Collected items will be recycled and reused by East Jordan Plastics.

Time may be up for parking meters

Council leaves DeWitt parking free

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

In a significant swing in sentiment, the Charlevoix City Council at a special meeting on Tuesday, May 31, not only voted unanimously not to impose fees for parking in the city's DeWitt lot, it seemed poised to seriously consider removing all of the city's parking meters.

Parking in the DeWitt lot has been free since crews completed its construction about a year ago. Originally, at the time of its construction, the council had expressed interest in collecting fees for parking in the lot with some sort of metering system, but ultimately chose to hold off at the request of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, which wanted to take a year to assess how the lot was used — especially by downtown employees.

However, in April the council expressed renewed interest in charging — in some form — for parking in the lot after concerns were raised about competition with neighboring private spaces that are leased seasonally. Several council members had also said they were interested in seeing the lot generate revenue, in part, to help pay for its upkeep.

The council called last week's so that it could consider the matter before the busy summer season, during which the city takes in a large share of its annual parking revenue.

Many among the city's downtown business community, the downtown development authority board, its executive director and the police chief all recommended against charging to park in the lot, citing the importance of making it available for employee parking, thus freeing up space on Bridge Street.

At the May 31 meeting, police chief Gerard Doan presented the council with six different options for controlling parking in the lot. Ranging from no restrictions (besides prohibiting overnight parking), to hour limits to various metering systems costing as much as an estimated $24,000. The cost to place individual meters (like the ones currently in use on Bridge Street would be about $22,000.

City manager Rob Streabel said city staff have estimated that the lot would generate about $2,000 annually in parking revenue.

Downtown development authority director Keith Carey and others who had previously expressed opposition to the metering plan reiterated their arguments against such a move.

Council member Lyle Gennett who was not at the last meeting where the matter was discussed, said the council had no business even discussing metering options because the cost was not included in this year's budget.

Among the handful of people who spoke during the public comment portion of the meeting was Dale Boss, who proposed that the city do away with parking meters in the city completely as a way to be more inviting to visitors. Others including many among the council said they, too, would like to see the meters go away.

However, the consensus among the council was that eliminating all downtown parking meters is something that will require more study. The council's concerns centered around not only establishing some kind of time limit to encourage parking space turnover on (Bridge Street especially) but also how it would handle the loss of the roughly $25,000 in revenue generated by the parking meters each year.

Straebel noted that the city takes in about $8,000 annually in parking fines, which is about what it costs to employ the city's seasonal downtown parking enforcement officer.

The council directed Straebel to make sure that a discussion on the future of the city's parking meters comes up when the council starts its planning for next year's budget.

Chamber awards three scholarships

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce recently awarded three $500 scholarships to local graduates, up from one in previous years.

The three recipients this year will all be graduating from Charlevoix High School and attending four-year universities in the fall. The recipients include Katie Mays, Lindsy Laway, and Thomas Rich.

Scholarship funds are generated from the silent auction at the Chamber's annual meeting in February.

"The generosity of our members at this year's event allowed for greater giving to our future workforce," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Erin Bemis. "We are thrilled to award three very deserving young adults with assistance towards their future education, and we are very excited to follow their bright futures."

Mays

Besides maintaining her 4.0 grade point average, Katie keeps busy by participating in the National Honor Society, Student Council, Future Problem Solvers, and being the team captain of her basketball and volleyball teams. Katie is planning on attending the University of Michigan and majoring in political science.

Laway

Lindsy Laway is the daughter of Lisa Crow. She is actively involved in her varsity competitive cheerleading team, Future Problem Solvers, National Honor Society, student council, and the Substance Abuse Free Environment of Northern Michigan. Lindsy has a 3.9 grade point average and is planning on attending Northern Michigan University in the fall to study accounting.

Rich

Thomas Rich is the son of Elizabeth and Dale Rich. Thomas has a 3.6 grade point average and is planning on attending either Michigan Tech University or Central Michigan University in the fall to study mechanical engineering. Thomas is a tremendous athlete and plays varsity soccer, basketball, and golf. He is involved with both the Charlevoix High School engineering and Spanish club.

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, for the past several months, the Courier has been publishing photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles.

Pictured here, Hazel Reed was secretary to school superintendent Roy Bennett for many years. Her office was where the teen computer lounge is located in today's library.

Trout tournament on tap for Friday

It's time once again for area anglers to get their fishing gear ready to vie for thousands of dollars in prize money in the the 2011 Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament is set to take place Friday through Sunday, June 10-12.

Based in Charlevoix's East Park, walleye division, added two years ago will returns, as will the popular fishing for kids in East Park's trout stream.

The children's fishing event will take place from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday. For a cost of $5 per person, poles, bait and tackle and a whole lot of fun are provided.

Registration for the event is noon-8 p.m. Wednesday, June 8 and Thursday, June 9 in East Park.

Actual fishing in the tournament will begin 5 a.m., June 10 and ends at noon, June 12. The awards ceremony is 1 p.m., Sunday, June 12 in East Park.

The cost to register is $30 for adults, $10 for children ages 6 to 14 and free for kids 5 years old and younger, but they still need to register.

Paid registrants will get a trout tournament T-shirt and will be entered into the grand prize drawing.

A mandatory meeting of team captains will take place at 8 p.m., Thursday, June 9 in the Odmark Pavilion in East Park. Call (231) 330-0867 if you are unable to attend or need more information.

Prizes will he awarded in five divisions including brown trout, lake trout, steelhead, salmon and walleye. Top prize in the steelhead, lake trout and salmon divisions are $1,000 and $750 in the brown trout and walleye divisions.

One change notable change this year is in the lake trout division where new state regulations prohibit keeping lake trout measuring from 25-34 inches.

OBITUARIES

McCandless

Alvin Dale McCandless, 83, of Wooster, Ohio, formerly of Charlevoix and Ellwood City, Pa., passed away on Thursday evening, June 2, 2011, in Summa Akron City Hospital in Akron, Ohio

Dale was born in Ellwood City, PA on Feb. 14, 1928, to the late Joseph Alvin McCandless, Jr., and the late Mildred Wehman McCandless. He was a graduate of Lincoln High School in Ellwood City in the class of 1946 and served in the United States Marine Corps during WWII. After the war, he studied at Thiel College and earned a degree in physics with a minor in chemistry. He married his wife of nearly 60 years, Lois Brewer McCandless in 1952. He began working for the Medusa Cement Company's Wampum, Pa. operations in 1953 until moving to their Charlevoix plant where he was the quality control supervisor until his retirement in 1996, when he moved to Wooster, Ohio. While in Ellwood, he was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church. In Wooster, he was a member of Zion Lutheran Church. Dale was a member of F.&A.M. #599 Ellwood Lodge, the Ellwood City Lions Club, and the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. He enjoyed gardening, reading, and traveling; most recently traveling to Scotland and Ireland with his wife for their 50th wedding anniversary.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by a brother, Joseph Lyle McCandless in 1954.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a daughter and a son, Darcy McCandless of Grandville and Curtis (April) McCandless of Clinton, Mich. He is also survived by two grandsons, Leland and Cole McCandless at home, and a brother, Raymond N. (Jane) McCandless of Montpelier, Vt.

Friends were received from noon until the time of service at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, June 7, 2011 in the Turner Funeral Home of Ellwood City, Sixth Street at Park Ave., with the Rev. Peggy Suhr-Barkley, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, officiating.

Interment followed in Slippery Rock Presbyterian Church Cemetery, Ellwood City.

Memorial contributions may be made in Dale's name to the American Heart Association, www.americanheart.org, or the American Cancer Society, www.cancer.org.

You may view the obituary, sign the guestbook, and send condolences online at www.turnerfh.com.

Nancy Harvey Waddell, of Charlevoix, died on June 4, 2011, after a short illness.

Nancy Anne Harvey was born June 25, 1930, in Toledo, Ohio, the first child of Ruel Britton and Margaret Elizabeth (Reid) Harvey. Her family soon moved to Birch Lake near Vandalia, Mich., where she would live for 40 years. She attended a one-room school in Williamsville, Vandalia Public Schools, and graduated from Cassopolis Public Schools.

Nancy was hired as a secretary at Three Rivers Savings and Loan, (now Peoples Federal Savings Bank). While there she attended night school and earned a degree in finance. In 1993, after 29 years of service, she retired from the bank as assistant vice-president of lending and assistant secretary to the board of directors. After retiring in Three Rivers, she continued to work part-time in the lending department. Nancy also served as treasurer of the Domestic and Sexual Abuse Service. She was a life member of the Three Rivers Women's Club, and on the investment team. She was a member of the Constantine United Methodist Church and currently a member of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, as well as several other clubs and organizations.

Nancy was married to LaMar King, and they had three children who survive, Antoinette K. (Toni) Felter of Charlevoix, Stephen M. King of Holland, and Nancy Victoria (Tori) Kelso of Collierville, Tenn.

On May 25, 1986, Nancy married R.J. Waddell. They made their home in Charlevoix in April 2010, where they had been seasonal residents for the past 16 years.

R.J. survives, as do her grandchildren, T.J. Felter, and Stevie Felter of Charlevoix, Nicholas Kelso, and Eric Kelso of Houston, Tex., Jessica King, and C. Britton King of Walloon Lake; great-grandsons, Emmitt Felter and Christian King; sister, Lucy O'Dell Peterson of Constantine; brother, John Reid Harvey of Three Rivers; many nieces and nephews; daughters-in-law, Ann M. Gorney, Sari Ellen King; son-in-law, Charles Kelso.

Nancy's parents preceded her in death, as did her sister, Patricia Joyce Peterson.

Services for Mrs. Waddell will be 11 a.m., Saturday, June 11, at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, where visitation will begin at 10 a.m. The Rev. Greg Culver will officiate. Nancy's cremains will be interred near her family in Cass County.

Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of your choice or to the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, 423 Porter St., Petoskey, Mich. 49770.

Those wishing to share a memory of Nancy, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Wilcox

Thelma Ann Wilcox, 85, of Central Lake, the last original resident on State Street, living there 56 years, died peacefully, Sunday, June 5, 2011, at home

She was born Oct. 3, 1925, in Welch, Ky., the daughter of William and Mary (Simpkins) McDowell. Her family moved to Hulbert, Mich where she grew up and graduated from high school.

Thelma was very strong in the Republican Party and politics. She was an avid listener of Rush Limbaugh and Fox News. She enjoyed following the Central Lake High School sports programs and watching the Detroit Tigers. She also enjoyed flea markets and garage sales. Thelma was dedicated to the hot lunch program at the Central Lake schools serving more than 300 students and 60 senior citizens daily, for more than 20 years. Through her work, she touched many lives.

On Mar. 10, 1946, in Central Lake she married E. Willie Wilcox who preceded her in death. She was also preceded in death by her parents, sister Eloise Payne, and brothers Jim and Chet McDowell.

Thelma is survived by her children Suzi (Dennis) McGuire of Central Lake and Dorothy (David) Bart of Nevada, grandchildren Tiffany McGuire Gilligan, Brooke McGuire, Ashley McGuire (Donavan) Eggleston, David and Andrew Bart, great-grandchildren Brock Gilligan, Alivia and Addison Eggleston, brothers LeRoy (Darlene) McDowel, Owen (Gail) McDowell and Paul (Shirley) McDowell.

A celebration of life and luncheon will take place at noon on Friday, June 10 at the VFW Hall in Central Lake. A private family burial will take place in Southern Cemetery. Memorial donations may be directed to Northwest Hospice or Central Lake First Congregational Church Parish Nurse Program.

Arrangements have been handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. Please sign her online guestbook www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com.

Larry and Mickey Grooters celebrate 50th anniversary

The Congregation of Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix will host an open house from 2-5 p.m. on Sunday, June 19 in the church fellowship hall to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of retired the Rev. Larry Grooters and his wife Mickey. A short program will take place at 3:30 p.m. Guests are asked not to bring gifts. Joining the celebrants will be the Grooters' three children; John and Judy Grooters of Holland, Mich.; Laura and John Tougas and sons Doug, Zach, and Ben of Stuart, Fla.; and Jeff Grooters with son Lyndon and daughter Lucie of Holland. John and Judy Grooters' children, Jordyn and Jed of San Diego, Calif. are not able to attend.

Larry and Mickey met as sophomores at South High School in Grand Rapids and married on June 16, 1961, just two weeks after they both graduated from Hope College. Mickey taught English at Hamilton High School in Hamilton, Mich. while Larry attended Western Theological Seminary. With seminary studies completed, Larry and Mickey moved to Morrison, Ill. where he served a required one-year pastoral internship and Mickey taught at Morrison High School.

After graduation from Western Seminary in 1965; Larry served the Rockford Reformed Church in Rockford, Mich. Later He accepted a pastorate at Glass and Garden Church in Scottsdale, Ariz. While in Scottsdale, Mickey completed her master of arts degree and taught at Scottsdale Community College.

In 1977, the Grooters accepted a call to the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix where they served for 26 years. Under Larry's leadership, the church expanded its programs, increased its staff, and completed two major building programs. Also in 1977, Mickey accepted a teaching position at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City where she distinguished herself by serving, at one time or another, as communications division chair and as faculty advisor for the Phi Theta Kappa Honors organization, all the while leading the effort to revise the developmental reading and writing program. Mickey retired in 2001 and the college honored her with the Mickey Grooters Scholarship available to students at Northwestern enrolled in a developmental math or English program. When Larry retired from his ministry at Community Reformed in 2003, they moved to Traverse City where they reside today.

Charlevoix County Democrats to host discussion

The Charlevoix Democrats will host an open round-table program entitled "Toward a Common Ground" at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 22, in the Boyne District Library. The program will be a wide-ranging discussion of political belief, values, and visions for the future.

Organizers said "Toward a Common Ground" has been designed as a forum where concerned voters, not just Democrats, can discuss issues, explore how to be more effective in political action, and have a greater role in the future of the county, state, and federal governments. One of the main themes of the event will be look toward 2012 and beyond, discussing what issues are of prime importance to people of Charlevoix County.

Lyn Jenks, of Charlevoix, a consultant on governance, philanthropy leadership and group facilitation, will help organize the discussion. Participants, working in small groups, will be encouraged to voice their concerns and prioritize issues of importance. The results of the small group sessions will then be shared with all participants.

"We want to change the conversation," said Audrey Etienne, a member of the Charlevoix County Democratic Party's Executive Committee. "We are concerned that many of us feel we do not have a voice in the future. We hope to engage and energize a wide range of people, so that Charlevoix Democrats clearly reflect the concerns of the people in the county. We will explore what we have in common – our concerns and our hopes – and build on these to become more effective."

Organizers emphasized that "Toward a Common Ground" is an event for everyone who cares about the issues on all levels, not just Democrats.

Light snacks will be served during the event.

'Challenge' program rewards students with iPads

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Three members of the Charlevoix High School class of 2011 recently received early graduation presents in recognition of the academic strides they've made in the final two years of their schooling.

On Thursday, at the conclusion of rehearsal for their graduation ceremony and in front of the rest of the class, high school principal Suzanne Klinger presented Chris Keie, Avery Jason and Jay Gray each with a brand new iPad 2 provided by the Michigan Department of Education through its Superintendent's Dropout Challenge program.

The program, which began in 2009, challenged school district officials around the state to look for students in their districts who were showing multiple early warning signs of being at risk for dropping out of school and then target those students for extra support in various forms to help them improve their performance and continue on the path to graduation.

Klinger said not only was the school recognized for its efforts but she was able to nominate three students involved in the challenge for special recognition for their improvements, and all three were selected for the honor. She noted that among the types of support offered to students through the program were adult mentors in the community such as the Charlevoix Rotary Club's STRIVE program.

Business to BUSINESS

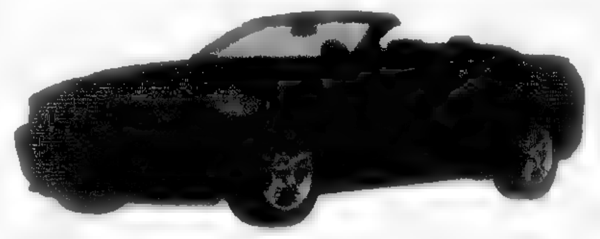
Business to Business –June 15th

It is a fact that companies who do not network are missing out on an opportunity to maintain their business relationships as well as an opportunity to tap into a rich stream of new contacts that can make them more successful! Join the Chamber and your colleagues at Business After Hours (BAH) hosted the third Wednesday of each month from 5 to 7pm.

The June Business to Business night is scheduled for June 15th from 5 to 7pm. The night is sponsored by the AmericInn Lodge and Suites and Active industrial Supply and will be held on the Keweenaw Excursions cruise boat.

Regional Business After Hours

Four Chambers of Commerce are joining together to sponsor a Regional Business After Hours networking extravaganza at Sommerset Pointe Yacht Club & Marina located in Advance on Thursday, June 23. The Business After Hours will be held from 5 to 8pm and will feature networking among Chamber members from Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix and Petoskey. More than 200 business people are expected to attend. Admission is $5 for members of any participating Chamber or $10 for non-members. No RSVPs are necessary. Arriving by boat? If so, please call Heather at Sommerset Pointe at 231.582.9900 for slip/docking information. Contact the Chamber for details, 231 547 2101 or manager@charlevoix.org.



Get Your Car Raffle Tickets

We are proud to partner with Fox Motors to offer you the opportunity to win a brand new 2012 Ford Mustang Convertible. And as an added incentive, this year we are also offering a $25,000 cash option! Tickets cost $100 each or 3 for $200. The winning tickets will be drawn at a special "After Hours" event on Thursday, September 29 at the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club. Admission is free to ticket holders, and includes delicious food and entertainment. Ticket number requests (01-999) are filled on a first-come, first-serve basis, so the sooner you place your order, the better your chances are of getting your lucky numbers. Stop in or call the Chamber today.

Tee-Time

Hit the links at the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club during the 13th Annual Chamber Golf Outing on Friday, June 17. Registration and lunch is at the Club House at 12pm. Following lunch, golfers can grab a cart and prepare to tee-off at 1pm sharp. Team registration is only $400 and includes a great afternoon of golf, lunch, dinner, prizes, special hole contests and more. Sponsorship opportunities available. Contact the Chamber for details or to register for this popular event, 231.547.2101 or manager@charlevoix.org.

Farmers Market: Every Thursday

Summer is upon us and that means it's time for the Farmers Market! It will be held every Thursday in downtown East Park from 9am to 1pm. Buy the best and freshest baked goods, fruits, vegetables, flowers, cheese, and much more. Meet friends and neighbors, take home a new recipe, and enjoy yourself on market day. We hope to see you there!

www.charlevoix.org Is Working For You

Are you using the interactive features on the Chamber's new website to the fullest? Don't forget to post your events, job openings and press releases online at www.charlevoix.org. Send us your keywords to enhance your search criteria. We can also post a business description (50-75 words) with your listing at no additional cost. Since launching the site in April, the requests for Visitor Information and Relocation Packets have been pouring in daily. People from around the country are visiting the site and contacting us with questions and requests. It's really exciting to see the new website in action. The more exposure the better, so submit your information as often as possible. This is your website, and it's designed to work for you.

Camp McSauba set to kick off summer of fun

The city of Charlevoix Recreation Department's Camp McSauba has been a summertime favorite activity for area children for 35 years, and this summer they'll have a chance at an extra week of fun.

Camp director Leslie Hoffman said this year the camp will run Monday-Friday for 10 straight weeks starting June 13 and wrapping up on Aug. 19.

In the past, the camp has taken a hiatus for the week of the Venetian Festival, but Hoffman said because of high demand, the camp will continue through Venetian week (although it will be shortened to four days that week).

The day-camp, for children ages 5-13 operates from 9 am.-3:15 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and an overnight each Thursday. Camp sessions wrap up on Friday at 11:30 a.m. following an 11 a.m. awards ceremony for parents and families.

Camp fees for 2011 are $85 per camper per week ($70 for the shortened Venetian Festival week). Before and after camp care is available from 8-9 a.m. and 3:15-5:10 p.m. for $30 per day.

Scholarships are available for children who might not otherwise be able to afford to attend camp.

To register, visit for Camp McSauba, visit www.cityofcharlevoix.com and click on the parks and recreation link to print the 2011 application form. Completed forms may be returned to the recreation office at city hall, located at 210 State St. To contact camp staff, call (231) 547 3253 or (231) 547-3267 after June 13.

Hoffman in addition to the various themes for each week, camp is designed for children to participate in games, arts and crafts, BB gunnery, archery, swimming, nature hiking, campfire programs and much more.

This year's weekly themes include:

Week 1: Kick-off to Camp — Get into the summer groove with a back to camp party. We will celebrate Camp McSauba-style with games, music, and fun

Week 2: "X" Games Fun Factor — This is a week of amazing races, scavenger hunts, obstacle courses and much more.

Week 3: Movin' and Groovin' Aloha Style — Come join the fun and experience a week of Hawaiian traditions such as lei making, hula dancing, limbo contest, and a luau to top it all off.

Week 4: Fun-n-Fit — Come enjoy a week of adventure, fitness, and fun while utilizing the beautiful landscape that Mount McSauba has to offer. Hiking, swimming and beach activities are all geared toward each age group.

Week 5: Treasure Hunters —The hunt is on. Mysterious and wacky things will be happening at camp and we need your help to solve the clues and find the treasures. Help your friends on a new and exciting scavenger hunt each day.

Week 6: Carnival Craze — It's more than just clowning around. Come try your hand at all those fun carnival games and enjoy life under the Big Top.

Week 7: Gamesapalooza — A week full of games and activities that focus on having fun, sportsmanship and being a team player. You'll enjoy new games ranging from tag to ultimate Frisbee and much more.

Week 8 : Splish – Splash — It's time to get wet through water balloon games, sprinklers, slip-n-slides and so much more of everything water related.

Week 9: Zany, Crazy, Wild Week — Back by popular demand, this week will include a different wacky theme each day of the week. Monday is Crazy Hat Day. Tuesday is Crazy Hair Day. Wednesday is Costume Day. Thursday is Backwards Day.

Week 10: Endless Summer — It's kids choice week. Enjoy a potpourri of Camp McSauba's most popular events that took place throughout the summer.

Sweet three-peat

Rayders shut out EJ for third straight district title

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

BOYNE CITY — Two was all the Charlevoix Rayders needed to make it three.

Charlevoix scored a pair of runs in the top of the fourth inning and let the defense and pitching of senior Hannah Hybl do the rest as they shut out East Jordan, 2-0, in the championship game to claim their third straight Division III district softball title Saturday at Rotary Park in East Jordan.

Charlevoix, 24-5, advances to a regional semifinal at Elk Rapids on Saturday, June 11. The Rayders will face the Whittemore-Prescott district winner.

Hybl struck out nine in tossing a four hitter in Saturday's title game. It was the third consecutive year that Hybl has been in the circle when the Rayders have claimed the district title.

"Hannah has just been unbelievable," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said of Hybl, who will attend Alma College in the fall. "She's won three district titles in a row and has been the winning pitcher all years of those years. She's a strong kid."

Charlevoix took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning as freshman Jennifer Archey singled and then scored on a pair of throwing errors. Katie Hybl followed with a triple and scored on a Maddie Zimmerman single.

From there, Charlevoix's defense, highlighted by the strong infield performance from second baseman Emily Mielke, and Hannah Hybl kept East Jordan in check.

"We knew this was going to be a battle," Hoffman said. "We knew we couldn't afford to come out flat and we made a few things happen in the fourth inning which helped out. We knew that one inning and usually a run or two usually takes this district."

Also for the Rayders, Zimmerman added another single, while Chelsie Hoffman had two hits and Kristen Mielke, Anna Moon and Archey all singled.

For East Jordan, which closes a 13-10 season, Val Peters tripled and singled, while Tasha Warrington doubled, and Katelyn Vincent singled. Lissa Vincent took the loss as she struck out one.

"I was pleased with the way we played, but if you don't score any runs you can't win the game," East Jordan coach Meg Kitson said. "The game all boiled down to that. We're disappointed obviously with the score and the fact we didn't get the win, but not with how we played.

"Lissa pitched great. We got just want we wanted out of her and we knew Charlevoix didn't hit her very well the first time we played. She keeps the ball down and can be hard to hit."

Charlevoix advanced to the title game with a 7-2 win over Boyne City in the semifinals.

Kristen Mielke struck out eight and scattered four hits for the win. Kaley Aown took the loss.

Emily Mielke, Zimmerman and Hoffman each doubled for the Rayders, while Katie Hybl, Hannah Hybl, Kristen Mielke, Paige Montgomery and Archey each singled.

East Jordan downed Harbor Springs, 6-2, in the other semifinal. Tanner McCune struck out one, walked three and scattered six hits for the win. Megan Mathews took the loss.

Val Peters and Kara LaVanway had two hits apiece to lead the Red Devils at the plate, while Emily Crick doubled, and Monica Capelin, Jordan Bacchus and Lissa Vincent each singled.

The Red Devils lose three seniors to graduation in Morgan Skop, Capelin and Jessica Kinner.

"We're sad to be done, especially for our three seniors," Kitson said. "But only state champions don't cry after their last game and even then they do cry because they're so happy. Your last game has to come at some point and it's just hard to see one of the chapters of your life close."

Charlevoix senior pitcher Hannah Hybl (right) is congratulated by teammates Kristen Mielke (middle) and Emily Mielke moments following the Rayders' 2-0 victory over East Jordan in the Division III district final at Rotary Park in Boyne City.

Rayders season ends on 10-inning district loss

Herriman fans 15 to set season strikeout record

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix Rayders varsity baseball team's season came to an end in dramatic fashion Saturday with a heartbreaking 2-1 district semifinals loss to Boyne City in 10 innings.

The game which was largely a pitching duel between Boyne's senior righthander Kolbi Shumaker and Charlevoix's junior righthander Coby Herriman finally ended in the bottom of the 10th when the Ramblers'

Dustin Field singled to left field with two outs to score plate James O'Brien who had tripled with one out.

"It was the best game I've ever been involved in," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Kolbi and Coby were incredible."

Ramblers went on to lose to Mancelona 8-4 in the district final game, marking the third straight district title for the Ironmen. Mancelona will play in a regional semifinal on Saturday, June 11, in Elk Rapids against the winner of the Whittemore-Prescott district winner.

Charlevoix opened the scoring in the top of the third when Isaac Klooster walked and moved around the bases on a passed ball and two wild pitches, sliding headfirst across the plate just ahead of a throw from the backstop. The Ramblers tied the game in the bottom of the sixth on a Mike Evans double and a two-out triple by Gage Burt. The throw to third eluded third baseman Shane Sutherland, but an alert Herriman backed up third and threw Burt out at the plate when he tried to advance, to end the inning.

Both teams threatened in extra innings but couldn't score until the 10th. In the bottom of the 8th, Boyne's Caleb Roberts led off with a single. The Ramblers then missed a bunt attempt and Rayder catcher Jordan Farmer caught Roberts leaning too far off base, and threw to second. Roberts was tagged out by Herriman following a rundown.

Charlevoix's Andrew Potter led off the 9th with a single but was thrown out attempting to steal by Burt on a missed hit-and-run play.

"Burt threw us out three times trying to steal second and that was a key factor in the game," Telgenhof said. "We like to be aggressive on the bases but he made us pay for it."

Herriman threw 9 2/3 innings, gave up six hits and three walks and struck out 15. Shumaker struck out 16 Rayders in his 10 innings of work.

Klooster was on base all four times at bat, with two singles and two walks. Tommy Zipp had a bunt single for the only other Charlevoix hit.

"I can't say how proud I am of my guys and how they played," Telgenhof said. "We played our best game of the season and came up just short. Boyne starts seven seniors and is one of the league-leaders and we almost knocked them off."

Herriman's pitching strikeouts gave him the single season record with 120. The previous high was Chris Waha with 108 in 2007. Despite being only a junior, Coby is already the career school strikeout leader with 207.

"We clocked Coby throwing 86 miles an hour in the first inning so I knew he was pretty pumped up," Telgenhof said. "He has been just unbelievable for us the second half of the season after he got over some elbow soreness. I'm just sorry we couldn't get another run for him today."

Despite the season-ending loss, which finished Charlevoix's season at 10-20, there is reason for optimism, Telgenhof said. He noted that the Rayders did not have a senior in their starting lineup which included a sophomore (Zipp) and two freshmen (Shane Sutherland and Luke Klinger). Other returning players will include Herriman, shortstop Andrew Potter and catcher Jordan Farmer.

"Our program hasn't won a district title since 1988 and we've never won the Lake Michigan Conference so those will be our top goals for next season," Telgenhof said. "We can't wait until next season."

Rayders win district crown in dramatic style

Shootout nets second straight district victory over Harbor

HARBOR SPRINGS — It took 80 minutes of regulation time, 20 minutes of overtime, and a shootout before Charlevoix would go home Friday night, winning its fourth consecutive Division IV girls' district soccer championship with a dramatic 2-1 victory over Harbor Springs.

The Rayders advance to the regional at Holton High School where they will play Mason County Eastern in a semifinal game 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 7. North Muskegon and Grand Rapids NorthPointe Christian meet in the first semifinal at 6 p.m. the final is 7 p.m. Friday, June 10.

An intense back-and-forth battle was tied 1-1 after 80 minutes of regulation and 20 minutes of overtime, necessitating the shootout, during which each team gets five penalty kicks.

Laura Repasky scored on the Rams' first PK, then Taylor Smith answered for the Rayders.

Charlevoix senior goalkeeper Lynzie Gotschall then stopped three consecutive Ram tries, while Anna Way and Savannah Joseph found the back of the net for the Rayders, giving Charlevoix the victory.

The teams met twice in the regular season with Harbor winning one match and the teams playing to a tie in the other. Last year, the Rayders defeated the Rams in overtime in the district final.

Taylor Smith gave the Rayders a 1-0 lead when she scored off an Abbey Barnes assist with 22 minutes, 10 seconds remaining in the first half. The Rams tied it when Rhi Cullip's shot hit the crossbar and bounded into the net. Stephanie Sylvain picked up the assist.

"We knew that we had to make adjustments to stop them tonight," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "They came out with a lot a pressure, but Lynzie (Gotschall) and Savannah (Joeseph) really played well tonight, to shut down their very talented offensive threats."

The Rams started the second half with a flurry of shots and heavy pressure on Gotschall. A shot by Haley Kloss that got behind Gotschall, but a heads up play by defender Carolena Elowsky kept the game knotted at 1-1.

"Charlevoix is a good team," Harbor coach Ed Fantozzi said. "We were not attacking the open field tonight, we got a lot of shots, but just could not find the back of the net."

Charlevoix had a chance for the win in the first overtime, but Smith's penalty kick was stopped by Ram keeper Mackenzie Sylvain.

"That was a tough moment for Taylor," Madison said. "But she rebounded in the shootout with a good goal for us."

The lone goal would stand at halftime even though the Eagles would have some scoring chances.

"We had some opportunities late in the first half, but we just could not finish," NMCA coach Rusty Chatfield said. "Charlevoix is a good team that will not give their opponent too many of those opportunities."

In the final 12 minutes, the Rayders were able to put the ball in the net three more times as Smith, Hannah Herboldsheimer and Lexi Barnes each scored.

Smith and Hinkley picked up the second-half assists.

"We played well, controlling the tempo in the first half," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "In the second half, we were flat until late in the half, when we scored our second goal."

Rayder golfers win district title

First-year Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said his Rayders didn't have their best day, but it was plenty good enough to bring home the district championship trophy.

The Rayders' 342 was 11 shots higher than their season average but it was still 10 better than second place Roscommon.

"One-through-five we were the best team out there," Grunch said. "It shows character when you win by 10 on an off day.

"The greens were the biggest factor. It was tough to hold a green. A lot of the greens sloped from front to back. It was like playing the Alpine (at Boyne Mountain), a lot of slope and undulation.

"We didn't play our best, but the guys hung in there. I'm proud of the kids."

Tanner Catt shot an 88 for the Rayders, while Chandler Novotny posted a 92, and Ryan Wimmer shot 94.

Elk Rapids and Kalkaska both shot 365 to finish tied for third, while Kingsley, 367, was fifth and Houghton Lake shot 375 to place sixth. Boyne City just missed qualifying for the regional as a team as it shot 376, one shot out of the final qualifying spot.

Two Ramblers, Bryan Wonski and Bradley Fouchia, advanced to the regional as individuals.

Wonski shot 84, Fouchia 86. Also for the Ramblers, Steven Halstead shot 98, Travis Long carded a 108, and Hunter Dunlop shot 109.

The Rayders will now move on to the regional meet which is slated for Thursday, June 9 at the Charlevoix Golf Country Club.

Oh, so close

Charlevoix's Eric Buday tries to catch Frankenmuth's Luke Bade in the 800 meter state final race in Comstock Park Saturday. Bade edged Buday for the state title by 0.16 seconds.

Charlevoix's Buday was nipped at the tape in the boys' 800 by Frankenmuth's Luke Bade in the Division III Michigan High School Athletic Association State Track and Field finals meet at Comstock Park on Saturday.

Bade finished in 1:54.32, Buday in 1:54.48. Last year at the state finals, Bade was second and Buday third.

Buday moved out from the pack with about 60 meters remaining and passed Bade, who was running out front. Buday held the lead until the final meters, when he was edged by Bade.

"Bade took him right at the tape," Charlevoix coach Ken Plude said. "He was just a little bit taller and his strides were a little bit longer. It was a phenomenal race. There was just a pack coming. It looked like a (400-meter race), it was that close. It was fun to watch, we were just on the wrong end of it, that's all."

Buday held the school record in the event, 1:56.33, he set in last year's state meet. He shattered that mark on Saturday and became Charlevoix's most decorated state-meet track and field/cross country runner by earning his seventh and eighth All-State honors in the two sports.

He also ran the anchor leg on the Rayders' 3,200 relay squad, which placed fifth.

Buday would "do the work, perform, and do anything you asked him to do," Plude said. "That's hard to have all that. Some of (the athletes) can do the work and have a hard time performing at that level. He just loves it, eats it up. He lives for this."

With his eight All-State plaques, Buday passes former Charlevoix standouts Jason Whitley and Mike Bush, who earned seven each in the two sports, Plude said. Buday has also been invited to the Mid West Meet of Champions, which will take place this weekend in Fort Wayne Ind.

Andrew Plude, Vinnie Von-Lau and John Shea joined Buday in the relay. They finished in 8:15.02. Frankenmuth, with Bade running the anchor leg, won in 8:02.49.

Charlevoix senior Molly Jeakle won two medals in the girls' meet, and Boyne City freshman Kylie Hicks finished fourth in the 100 hurdles.

Jeakle finished sixth in the 800 with a school-record 2:23.28, and she ran the anchor leg on the Rayders' 3,200 relay, which placed eighth.

Olivia Certa, Hilary Way and Annie Dipert joined Jeakle in the relay, finishing in 10:03.85. Benzie Central won in, 9:22.71, a Division III state record.

"It was a great day for those four girls," Charlevoix coach Mary Plude said. "They came to race and the results showed it. I was very proud of how they handled themselves in their first track state meet, and proud that they are All-State for their efforts. It is very fortunate for us that all four of those girls will be coming back next year to help lead the team farther."

Jeakle broke her own record in the 800, which was 2:23.8. Michaela Carnegie of Benzie won in 2:16.96.

Hicks' time, 15.68, in the 100 hurdles broke Nicole Kurtz's school record of 15.73 set in 2000.

Frankenmuth won the boys' meet with 44 points, while Union City was second with 38. Benzie nipped Frankenmuth, 54-53, to win the girls' championship.

Earning Academic All-State honors for Charlevoix were Dipert, Jeakle, Plude, Von Lau, and Shea.

St. Marys' Leaman honored among county's top recyclers

COURTESY PHOTO

St. Marys Cement employee Laurie Leaman (left) was recently recognized by the Charlevoix County Recycling Program Chair Michele Hewitt as one of its Recyclers of the Year.

Both Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls and Boyne City resident Laurie Leaman received the 2010 Recycler of the Year awards for Charlevoix County.

Resort officials installed an energy management system at the Mountain Grand Lodge in 2009. The project is designed to improve efficiency of the heating and air conditioning systems, lighting in guest rooms, as well as the power down of rooms when guests are away or they are vacant.

All rooms now have compact fluorescent lights, water conservation devices in sinks and showers and the cooling system includes the use of well water pumped throughout the buildings. That water is then collected in discharge ponds around the resort and later used to irrigate the grounds and golf courses.

Boyne Mountain also began to use ozone in its laundry facility, an effort to reduce the amount of chemical disinfectant used. Less steam and hot water is consumed in the process, as well.

Specifically, the final rinse water from each laundry load is saved and used in the pre-wash cycle in subsequent loads.

The resort also is in the fourth year of using snow guns during winter skiing that are about 30 percent more energy efficient. They use less water, electricity, air, labor and operating capital.

Boyne Mountain's hydro project allows the resort to generate electricity from the Boyne River's current and offset between $80,000 and $100,000 annually in electricity usage. The resort also recycles cardboard, used batteries, motor oil, all scrap iron and metal, among other recyclables.

Boyne Mountain is Charlevoix County's largest employer, with up to 800 employees on the payroll.

Leaman is the other recycler recognized by the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee. She works at St. Marys Cement Plant and assists with its environmental compliance.

Leaman works closely with Boyne City Elementary and its recycling program. That resulted in more than 700 pounds of paper being recycled during the current academic year, but only through January.

Before her job at the cement plant, she worked for a company that builds landfills. Her recycling tendencies even hearken back to her days in that position.

"I'm still waiting for someone to figure out how to mine landfills and get back some of the resources that they threw away," Leaman said.

Visit www.charlevoixcounty.org/recycling.asp for more information about recycling in Charlevoix County.

COURTESY PHOTOS/JONATHAN FRIENDLY

About 100 seventh-grade science students from Charlevoix spent an afternoon on the Emerald Isle recently studying issues such as water purity, lake-bottom life forms, pollution sources and invasive species. The annual Experience Lake Charlevoix event was sponsored by the Lake Charlevoix Association and the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. Science students from all the schools around the lake attended the sessions over a two-day period. The event is intended to complement the classroom training the middle schools offer. Pictured above, students gather for a photo on the boat's foredeck near the end of their trip. At right, students draw water stamples from the lake.

NOTICE

This firm is a debt collector attempting to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for this purpose. If you are in the Military, please contact our office at the number listed below. Notwithstanding, if the debt secured by this property was discharged in a Chapter 7 Bankruptcy proceeding, this notice is NOT an attempt to collect that debt. You are presently in default under your Mortgage Security Agreement, and the Mortgage Holder may be contemplating the commencement of foreclosure proceedings under the terms of that Agreement and Michigan law. You have no legal obligation to pay amounts due under the discharged note. A loan modification may not serve to revive that obligation. However, in the event you wish to explore options that may avert foreclosure, please contact our office at the number listed below. Attention: The following notice shall apply only if the property encumbered by the mortgage described below is claimed as a principal residence exempt from tax under section 7cc of the general property tax act, 1893 PA 206, MCL 211.7cc. Attention Kenneth Sieradski and Kristine Sieradski, regarding the property at 5985 High St Boyne City, MI 49712. The following notice does not apply if you have previously agreed to modify the mortgage loan under section 3205b. 3205a, 3205b and 3205c do not apply unless the terms of the modified mortgage loan entered into were complied with for one year after the date of the modification. You have the right to request a meeting with your mortgage holder or mortgage servicer. Northwestern Bank is your mortgage servicer, with authority to make agreements under MCL 600.3205b and MCL 600.3205c, and can be contacted at: 625 S. Garfield Ave Traverse City, MI 49686 (800) 968-4754. You may also contact a housing counselor. For more information, contact the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) by visiting www.michigan.gov/mshda or calling (866) 946-7432. If you request a meeting with Northwestern Bank within 14 days after the notice required under MCL 600.3205a(1) is mailed, then foreclosure proceedings will not commence until at least 90 days after the date said notice was mailed. If an agreement to modify the mortgage loan is reached and you abide by the terms of the agreement, the mortgage will not be foreclosed. You have the right to contact an attorney and can obtain contact information through the State Bar of Michigan's Lawyer Referral Service at (800) 968-0738.

Closing ceremony will take place 3-5 p.m. Sunday, July 24. The event will include dessert and entertainment including auto poetry reading by John Alberts.

Blood drives — As Spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

What do all those public notices cost us?
Can't they just be posted on a Web site?

State law requires that citizens be informed of certain governmental activity through paid public notices like the ones in this newspaper.

It's one way to make government accountable to the people.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters* would be concerned if government placed these notices on Web sites because important information could be concealed from the public.

So, what's it worth to you to be able to pick up this newspaper and find out what's going on in your town, your county, or your local schools?

Red ink returns

More cuts loom as school district again faces a $1.1 million budget deficit

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

For the second time in as many years, Charlevoix Public Schools officials will have to find a way to cut more than $1 million from its budget to balance the books for the next school year.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education has scheduled its annual budget hearing for 5:30 p.m. Monday, June 20, in the large meeting room at the Charlevoix Middle School at which time district superintendent Chet Janik will give the details of the red ink on the balance sheet.

The board's regular monthly meeting will follow at 6 p.m. at which time Janik said he will lay out a plan and options for the board to consider to balance the budget.

Although the board is required by state law to pass its annual budget by June 30, Janik said Monday he will recommend that the board hold off on making its final decisions on the budget for a week and instead take action on the spending plan at a special meeting that would take place on Monday, June 27.

Janik said Monday that many factors have had a role in the anticipated $1.1 million shortfall for the 2011-12 school year.

Janik

First there is a net $271 per pupil cut to the school district foundation grant from the state totaling $312,734. An anticipated loss in enrollment of 20 students takes away another $161,680. Increases in the retirement rate and health insurance costs (24.46 percent and 11.2 percent respectively) together will cost the district another $393,316. The district is also expecting to pay out about $90,000 for unused sick days to staff who are retiring and another $77,338 for wage steps for teachers and support staff. Lastly the district is expecting to pay an additional $65,000 in increased fuel and utility costs next year.

To top it all off, the fund balance reservoir the district has been dipping into to balance the budget since 2002 is nearly dry.

Currently district officials are expecting 2010-11 school year expense to exceed revenue by about $275,000, which would leave the district's saving account at about $316,000 — well short of the amount

The Charlevoix City Council during its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, June 20, will conduct a public hearing on four proposed zoning ordinance amendments — one of which would slightly expand and more explicitly define what kinds of businesses are allowed on Bridge Street in the downtown.

For several months the Charlevoix Planning Commission has discussed a proposal by city planning director Mike Spencer.

The current language which has been in place since the ordinance was adopted in the 1970s stipulates only: "Uses developed in the central business district having their front entrances on Bridge Street shall be used strictly for retail purposes."

The ordinance doesn't specify what constitutes a "retail purpose."

In discussing the proposed amendments, Spencer noted that although it has been long accepted in downtown Charlevoix that food service qualifies as a retail use, typical zoning standards would not.

Spencer also proposed that the ordinance be broadened to

Contributions for school nurse program still accepted

Krueger

As president of Charlevoix Area Hospital for 25 years, Dick Krueger became a well-respected administrator, concerned about his staff and hospital patients, as well as about ways to improve the hospital for all of Charlevoix.

When he passed away last October, numerous individuals came forward to show their remembrance of him through donations to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation. Recently, funds given in his memory were allocated towards a program that is putting nurses back in our local schools. The program, coordinated by the hospital, has a primary focus on making children healthier in every way possible, in addition to providing the much-needed in-school clinic care that has been lacking.

Thanks to the donations, and a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, earlier this year, registered nurse Kristie Robarge, now works full-time in the Charlevoix School District, and Michelle Coleson, also a registered nurse is the new nurse in the East Jordan School District.

"The schools were always very important to Dick," his wife, Kathy Krueger said. "We had three boys go through the system and now have a grandson attending. One of our sons has diabetes, so we know how important it is to have a nurse available for all children--especially those who may need special assistance with their medical needs."

"Dick would have been pleased about the school nurse program that is so meaningful in our community and so needed," said Diane Kidder, vice president of staff and services at Charlevoix Area Hospital. "He was a kind, caring person, and it was an honor to work with him."

Krueger started out as a janitor for the small hospital in his hometown in Wisconsin. He began work right out of high school, and was so interested in health care, that soon he was moved up to be an orderly. Not long after that, he became so intrigued by the lab and x-ray equipment, that he learned how to work in that department. Five years later, he alone ran the department.

"I met him my freshman year in college, and we got married the day after I graduated from nursing school. Two days later, he started business school, with the goal of becoming a hospital administrator," Kathy Krueger said. After a few years as an assistant administrator in Ishpeming, Dick Krueger and his family moved to Charlevoix. His major contributions to the hospital included securing additional medical staff and specialists, expanding the building, and developing the services offered. He retired as president in 1996.

"He was a very quiet, unassuming gentleman, who wanted Charlevoix to have the best," Kathy Krueger said. "Now, we have given to the school nurse program in his honor. I know that's what he would want to do."

Gifts can still be made in memory of Dick Krueger to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, 14700 Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720, (231) 547-8502.

Less privatization could lower taxes

Roger Knutson

I know how we, the citizens of the United States can encourage lower taxes. All we have to do is figure out how to spend less, correct? I believe the best way to accomplish those things is to slow or reverse the movement toward privatizing more and more of our public functions.

. We have privatized the military by hiring corporations to provide much of what was once the province of the military. We have privatized prisons in many states. We have privatized a significant part of Medicare and many legislators seem bent on privatizing the rest of it. We are in the process of privatizing education with the rise of charter schools and particularly the enormous growth of for-profit higher education. Wealthy enclaves privatize law enforcement by hiring private security forces for gated communities. Some feel that privatizing both police and firefighting functions would be a good idea.

All those privatizing efforts have one thing in common. Each of them is a large-scale mechanism for transferring taxes paid by everyone into the coffers of private companies.

Each military contract worker provided by private corporations costs much more than a trained soldier or marine. Many of them are former military personnel already trained by the military. Check on the amount of the military budget that goes to private corporations, which provide military services, paid by our tax money.

If private corporations that run for-profit prisons in an increasing number of our states had to accommodate all the prisoners, not just those that don't need medical attention, or hyper-security, their costs would be higher than the publicly-financed prisons. The reason? They must make a profit for their shareholders.

. Medical services for those covered by Medicare (Medicare Advantage plans) are subsidized by tax funds and cost more than regular Medicare. What are called Medicare Advantage plans receive tax funds directly from the government. The increasing number of gigantic health-care providers are subsidized by government-provided tax funds to the tune of at least hundreds of millions of dollars. Those dollars do not go to health care providers directly, but to the corporations, who extract a profit for their shareholders and pay what medical costs they must out of what remains.

If charter schools had to provide all the services and amenities that the public schools must, they would be more costly than the public schools. Because they don't provide such things, but get the same amount of per student funding that the public schools do, they can look like a bargain. Academically, except for selected cases, there is little evidence that they achieve better educational outcomes.

A group of foreign-based corporations run 33 charter schools in Texas and last year received $100 million dollars of taxpayer money. The same group runs at least 120 charter schools nationwide. They use imported teachers and are hardly transparent fiscally. Private control and public compensation for such a large number of schools is at least problematic.

For-profit higher education derives almost all of its income from student loans and government grants meant to provide such education. It would be better the funds were spent enlarging and improving public community colleges, which fulfill the same function at lower cost. The goal of such institutions is primarily to provide returns on investment for their share-holders. They cost more and provide less than already functioning post-high school institutions.

Each situation described above is an example of the transfer of tax funds from government to private corporations for functions better and more inexpensively accomplished by public institutions.

Why should such blatant examples of poor management be so politically popular? I think it might be because calling something private seems to suggest that their funds and their profit are somehow generated by capitalist investment.

The examples above are simply cases of transfers from public funds into the hands of private, for-profit entities.

Medicare is less expensive and more efficient than any private, for profit insurance system, if the same services are provided. A larger public military establishment could provide the same security for less money than private contractors. Public community colleges are a genuine bargain for many students, and we need more, not fewer of them.

A corporation's primary responsibility is to its shareholders, not to the public. That, it seems to me, makes them a less than desirable provider of public services, especially since the services cost more if a profit must be acquired.

How do we lower taxes and reduce government expense? By returning services that have been historically provided for the public to public control and public funding. It will cost less, and taxes could actually go down, or at least rise less rapidly.

Parents say thanks for after-graduation party support

Editor

The parents of the Charlevoix class of 2011 would like to express our thanks to the business community of Charlevoix. Recently we held the traditional after-graduation party for the class of 2011. The graduates had a blast cruising down the lake on the Keweenaw Star to Sommerset Pointe Yacht Club where they spent the late evening into early morning with a casino, bonfire, photo booth, dancing and pool. We were able to give each student a gift and "Surprise Prize" to send them off and congratulate them on a great school career. In the words of one student, "The location, setup, and prizes made it a night full of great memories. Thanks a lot for doing that !"

The parents held a bake sale, dinner at Whitneys, kid-to-kid sale and a can drive but, this memorable evening would not have been possible without the generous donations of gifts, cash, time and resources from many Charlevoix businesses.

Thank you!

Sincerely,

The parents of the class of 2011

Playground pennies

In an effort to make improvements to their playground, St. Mary School students (from left) Jane Kelly, Hannah Solomon and Emma Wachler chaired the Pennies for the Playground fundraising committee at the school. Students from pre-K through 6th grade were asked to donate their pennies during the month of May. Alll together the students raised $1,727.29 for the playground. Pictured above with the students displaying the fruits of the efforts is Nancy Philp, St. Mary School principal.

allow for some types of businesses that would previously have been prohibited. After debating the merits of expanding the definition to allow for more flexibly (and thus increase the chances of keeping store space filled) versus the desire expressed by many Bridge Street business owners too maintain the current character of Bridge Street downtown, the board voted at its May meeting to recommend approval of revised language that would require that first-floor businesses with a front entrance on Bridge Street be "primarily retail and food service."

Specifically the proposed ordinance change would allow:

— Food and beverage services, including grocery stores, restaurants, cafés (including internet cafés), coffee shops, bars, taverns, wine bars, breweries, bakeries, delicatessens, bistros and specialty shops;

— Retails stores having a gross area of less than 5,00 square feet (not to include appliance, furniture and other stores selling large-scale consumer products);

— Art galleries, frame shops, photography and art studios; and — Beauty salons and barber shops as a primary use. Secondary uses my include tanning beds, pedicure or manicure services in the same location.

The proposed ordinance would also create a provision under which the planning commission could make a determination if a proposed use is similar or comparable to a permitted use. Further it would allow an applicant to seek a special use permit which the planning commission could grant if it found that the proposed use would "generate commercial activity in accordance with the purposes the ordinance's intent.

Of the remaining three proposed changes, two involve reducing side-yard setback requirements on corner lots in residential districts and the third has to do with lot restrictions in for instances where a dwelling is proposed above locations in commercial or professional office zoning districts.

The public hearing will take place during the council's regular meeting which begins at 7 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

DEFICIT

needed to close the anticipated budget gap for next year.

Speaking to the Courier late Monday, Janik said he wasn't ready to talk about what staff or programming might be on the chopping block to balance the budget because those proposals are still being drawn up.

However, he acknowledged that, with a $1.1 million hole to fill, staffing cuts are almost certain.

A year ago the board cut 14 teaching positions, 1.5 administrative positions and one support staff position as it cut a total of $1.4 million from the 2010-11 budget.

Janik also noted that there are several yet undetermined factors that could lessen the amount of the shortfall. The most notable among those in-flux factors is the ongoing contract negotiations between the district and its teachers and support staff unions. Contracts with both groups are set to expire in August. District officials and union representatives have been negotiating since March. Janik said progress has been made in the contract negotiations, but he could not estimate when a deal might be reached.

Two other areas where the district could see some cost savings are in its custodial and food service costs. The district recently posted a request for bids for a three-year custodial services contract. The deadline for those bids is July 6. Janik said the district is planning a request for bids for the district's food service operations in the coming weeks as well.

He said it's too soon to estimate what, if any savings the district could see from privatizing its custodial and food service operations, but he noted that at least seeking bids for such services is a requirement under a "best practices" provision of new funding legislation. If the district doesn't meet those "best practices" requirements, it could lose another $100 per student in state funding.

Editor's note: This school year marks the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, the over the past few months Courier has been publishing photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information are provided by Miles' son and historical society museum co-director David Miles. Next week will be the last in the series, but a new series will follow.

Extra-special Freedom Festival on tap

The city of East Jordan will celebrate its 100th anniversary this year and that milestone will be highlighted at this year's Freedom Festival. Events kick off this week from Thursday through Saturday, when festivities will be capped with a fireworks display over Lake Charlevoix.

"We just celebrate East Jordan and the community. You can celebrate freedom every day, even if it's not the Fourth of July," said Jackie Cutler, festival board president.

A major feature of this year's festival is the Friday night block party on Main Street. It's going to be a great birthday bash, Cutler said.

The annual festival frequently serves as a good reason for East Jordan natives to return home. In effect, it's the summertime homecoming, said Ashlie Bennett.

"It's fun because people usually come back to town for the festival. You run into people you haven't seen in a while," she said.

Bennett works at the Subway restaurant on Main Street, just across from where the carnival rides will be. That works out as prime commercial real estate when hungry festival-goers crave more than sugary carnival fare, said Kris Kraemer, one of the store owners.

"It gets really busy, especially on Saturday," she said.

The sub shop is one of many local businesses now selling festival buttons for $2. There will be button prize drawings on Friday during the block party.

Saturday will be the most event-packed day, including the Grand Parade, free throw competition, bed race, lip sync contest and a prize raffle.

Meanwhile, the town is geared up.

Lynn Gibson, of East Jordan, stopped by Community Park on Saturday to buy discounted carnival arm bands in advance. She is among dozens who did the same, Cutler said.

"We thought we'd come early and save a few bucks," Gibson said.

She said her children are looking forward to the festival, especially the carnival rides. But they try to take it all in, she said.

"We try to make all the events and support our local businesses," Gibson said.

OBITUARIES

Lois Donaldson, 91, of South Arm Township, died Saturday, June 11, 2011 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

She was born April 25, 1920 in Central Lake, the daughter of James D. and Lucretia (Henderson) Frost.

On Dec. 12, 1937 she married Howard Donaldson in South Arm Township where they made their home. Mr. Donaldson died in September, 1963. Lois later moved to Pine River Place in Charlevoix where she lived for more than 25 years.

Lois graduated from East Jordan High School in 1984 through the adult education program.

She was a member of the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church. Besides homemaking, she worked at ITT in East Jordan for many years. She enjoyed knitting, crocheting, Bingo, and playing the piano.

Surviving are her children Arthur James (Margie) Donaldson of Ellsworth, Lauren "Bud" (Jane) Donaldson of East Jordan, Marian Widdows of Thomasville, N.C., Rose Anderson of Mount Airy, Md., Robert (Karen) Donaldson of Winter Haven, Fla., David (Linda) Donaldson of St. Clair, and Linda (Edward) Lamoreaux of Clark Lake, Mich; 27 grandchildren; 50 great-grandchildren; 19 great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by a sister Mary Donaldson, and brothers Harold Frost and George Frost.

Visitation took place at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth from 4-7 p.m. on Monday, June 13.

The funeral took place at 11 a.m. Tuesday, June 14, at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church with the Rev. Chris Wallace officiating. Burial will be in Southern Cemetery in Central Lake.

For those wishing to make memorial donations, the family suggests Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

A graveside service will take place at 11 a.m., Saturday, June 18, at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix. Paul Bradley will officiate.

Shirley was born March 6, 1925, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Edward and Thelma (Kirby) Bradford.

Shirley was preceded in death by her husband Willard on Sept. 9, 1999. She is survived by her sister Emily, and brother Burton, and the wonderful Drost family.

Arrangements are being handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

BASES director pens second book on addiction recovery

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Bay Area Substance Education Services has a new tool in its fight against substance abuse and addiction, a new book by its director Scott Kelly.

BASES Brain Training for Addiction Recovery is the second book released by Kelly in association with the BASES program. The first book, released in 2004, is titled Young People in Recovery.

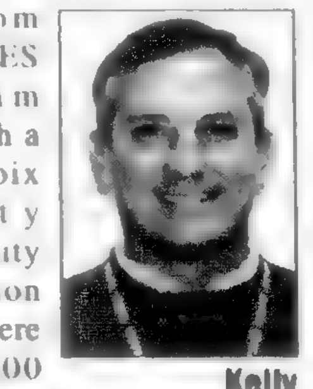
"The books offers a place to turn for people struggling with addiction when they're not at the center or in a program," Kelly said. "Books are important because not every person is going to come to a program. Many people want to avoid public scrutiny or simply prefer privacy."

"We're also using the book as part of our BASES curriculum," Kelly said. "Each chapter is somewhat of a lesson in itself and we try to cover one each day."

Kelly also said that once program staff get an addict past the behavior of his or her addiction, they focus on teaching life skills.

"The book really is an opportunity to reinforce the teaching and education when we're not with them."

Currently the book is being self published with funding from the BASES program along with a Charlevoix County Community Foundation grant. There are 3,000 copies already available for sale, with some being used in the BASES program and being distributed to participants. It is also available for download in PDF format as an e-book.



Kelly

A new website is in development for the book, with an emphasis on expanding the program's web presence.

"Today's technology offers us a unique opportunity to reach people through things like e-books and videos," Kelly said. "Teens especially will appreciate getting information via smart phone, computer, or tablet."

The proceeds from the book will be put back into the program with the goal of marketing and distributing the book locally and eventually nationally.

"We're hoping to find a publisher interested in publishing the new book at a national level" Kelly said. "We're also still working on getting it into local retailers."

Scott and his wife Celia started the BASES program in 1989, after realizing the need for an outreach in the area. Both having struggled with addiction in their own lives, the Kellys went into the work after completing their education. In 1995 the BASES program combined with a former local teen center to become what it is today and has been working with local teens ever since.

The teen center offers activities for teens from computers, darts and pool to movies, dancing and karaoke. Teens may come by after school and participate at whatever level they choose.

BASES also works in conjunction with the 7th Probate court and Boyne City Public School Alternative Education on a program called Recovery High. The program offers counseling, groups, schooling, substance abuse education, and social and recreational activities.

When it comes to success with teens and adults in overcoming addictive behavior, Kelly measures in the long term. "We like to check up on our program participants down the road and see if they're avoiding issues then" he said. "We tend to see only about 6-8 percent of our teens with offenses related to their addictions after several years."

"We're now offering a Healthy People group for adults" Kelly said. "Our goal is for people to come with whatever issues they might have, not necessarily addiction. People who simply want to grow and improve their lives to become healthier." The Healthy People group meets on Sundays from 6:30-7:30 p.m. and is open to the public.

Kelly's first book is also in the process of being updated and sent out for its third printing. "We hope to be able to continue the work of adding relevant books to our list of tools" Kelly said.

Anyone interested in purchasing a hard copy of the book may contact BASES directly at (231) 547-1144 or stop by at 208 West Lincoln in Charlevoix. BASES' current website is www.basesteencenter.org. A new website at www.basesbraintraining.org is still under construction.

Inclement weather for trout tournament

Mother Nature was not kind to this year's Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

Event organizers said unseasonably cool temperatures, rain, wind and rough seas that plagued the area for much of the weekend made fishing difficult.

Not only did the wind and waves make it difficult for many anglers to get out on to Lake Michigan, the unseasonably cool weather and wind brought in cold water, which kept the salmon away.

But there was a bit of a silver lining among all those literal and figurative clouds.

Organizers said the weather prompted more boats than normal to stay on Lake Charlevoix and many of those anglers reported good fishing.

In fact, catches were so good in the brown trout division that it may have the tournament's board re-thinking the possible elimination of the division. Action was also good for lake trout and walleye on Lake Charlevoix.

"We are lucky to have that (Lake Charlevoix) option here. Most tournaments along the coast of Michigan don't have any options but to cancel the tournament when it is too rough to get out on Lake Michigan," Libby Mikulski, one of the turnament's organizers, said. "This tournament draws many anglers and many boats of different size because of the option to fish on Lake Charlevoix or Lake Michigan and also because of the variety of species that are showcased."

Creating another wrinkle in the contest this year was a state limit for lake trout under which anglers could legally keep (and weigh-in) trout 20-25 inches. Anything 25-34 inches had to be released. Anglers are allowed to keep lake trout 34 inches or larger, but no one in the contest was that lucky.

Former sheriff Lasater awarded

Former Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater last week was among three Michigan residents who were recieved the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan Historical Commission's 2011 Governor John B. Swainson Award.

Lasater received the award at a special ceremony in the Michigan Capitol Rotunda Thursday.

Given by the Michigan Historical Commission to state, county or municipal employees who have gone above and beyond their official job duties to help preserve Michigan's history, the prestigious Swainson Award originated in 1996 to honor the Governor, legislator and Supreme Court justice who headed the commission for many years.

"Our historic resources are among Michigan's greatest treasures, and the Swainson Award helps us pay tribute to those who serve as stewards of our state's rich heritage," said commission president Edward Surovell. "This year's winners have earned the honor with their passion for keeping history alive in their communities."

Lasater was recognized for his work in work in publishing books on Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War II.

Lasater, retired from his post as Charlevoix County Sheriff after 32 years in the position, performed extensive research into the history of Charlevoix County's contribution to World War II and compiled his findings in a two-volume book. He detailed the personal and military history of nearly 1,800 veterans, as well as the contributions made by the civilians, organizations and industry of Charlevoix County. The book includes recollections of wartime experiences of veterans, photos, mementos, telegrams, news clippings, medals, letters, memorials and grave markers. Lasater has has donated all of the profits from the books to World War II veterans and their projects. He continues to contribute to the preservation of history with his work on another project that will detail Charlevoix County's contributions to the World War I effort.

The other two award recipients included Plainwell city manager Erik J. Wilson, for his efforts to redevelop an abandoned paper mill and Thomas P. Russow for his efforts in the restoration of the River Raisin Battlefield, the site of a battle during the War of 1812.

The Michigan Historical Commission advises the Department of Natural Resources on Michigan history and the work of the Michigan Historical Center.

Fishing event will honor youth advocate's legacy

Aronson

Friends and family of the late Brent Aronson are hoping to carry on his love of the outdoors and passion for providing outdoor experience to children through, what else, but a fishing tournament set to take place this weekend based at Charlevoix's Ferry Beach boat launch.

Registration for the first ever Brent Aronson Memorial Fishing Benefit will begin at 7 a.m. on Saturday, June 18, and weigh-ins will take place between 4-5 p.m. the same day. The city of Charlevoix has waived boat launch fees for on the day of the event for tournament participants.

The entry fee is a $20 donation per team. Teams may include up to three people, but at least one member of each team must be a child under the age of 16. Teams will choose their five biggest legal-size fish to be weighed for the contest. Fish species included in the contest include bluegill, bullhead, carp, crappie, largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, northern pike, rock bass, walleye, sucker and yellow perch. All waters of Northern Michigan are open for the tournament.

Participants will have their photos taken with their day's catch, and will receive door prizes provided by sponsors. Raffles will also be available for a free fish mount or equivalent gift certificate to Stick and String Taxidermy and another for a charter fishing trip with Capt'n Bills Charter Fishing

Organizers said 100 percent of the money collected from the event will be split up among a newly formed Brent Aronson Outdoorsman Memorial Scholarship Fund and another fund which will help provide hunting and fishing opportunities to terminally-ill or disabled children.

Aronson, who also served as a firefighter with the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, died in a traffic crash on Feb. 14, leaving behind his wife Laurie and daughter Haylee. He was 36 years old.

For more information, to pre-register, or to inquire about a sponsorship, call the event's organizers, Zack Simmons at (231) 838-6797 or Jason Jasinski at (231) 758-4175 or send an e-mail to fishingbenefit@gmail.com.

GOLF

Rayders roll at regionals

Up next: State finals at MSU Friday

First came the Lake Michigan Conference championship, then a district title, and, last week, a regional crown.

Now, the Rayders set their sights on the ultimate prize in high school golf — a state championship.

Charlevoix will join 14 other teams in the Division III state finals Friday and Saturday, June 17-18, on Forest Akers West on the campus of Michigan State University.

"I think our chances are good playing the West, it's kind of a benefit to the team," first year Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said, comparing the course to the Rayders' home venue, Belvedere. "The West plays a little bit like the Belvedere. It demands good shots and provides good birdie opportunities. Those are the kinds of courses we see (in Northern Michigan). It'll be a good test and I think we'll score well on it."

The Rayders shot 322 last week to win their regional by 37 strokes at Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. The week before, the Rayders shot 342 to win their district by 10 strokes on a course none of the players had ever seen, Lakeside Links in Scottville.

"I think if we shoot something around 320 both days we'll be in the hunt," Grunch said. "The seniors have been very consistent and we need our fourth and fifth men to shoot something in the low 80s for a chance to compete."

Those seniors are Wyatt Drost, Thomas Rich and Ryan Wimmer. All three have state-tournament experience. Drost and Rich both played in the state tournament in each of the last two seasons, while Wimmer played in the 2009 tournament as a sophomore. The Rayders finished eighth in the state a year ago, and 12th in 2009.

Sophomores Tanner Catt and Chandler Novotny round out the Rayder lineup.

Grunch said two-time defending champion Jackson Lumen Christi is the favorite. The Titans, who are ranked No. 1 in the state coaches poll, shot 298 to win their regional last week by 13 shots over second-ranked Grosse Ile at Rustic Glen in Saline. Grosse Ile, Hanover-Horton and Grand Rapids South Christian are also among the favorites, Grunch said. South Christian is ranked third, and Hanover-Horton is fifth. Hanover-Horton also came out of the Saline regional.

"We're riding high right now and we're looking to do some good things down there," said Grunch, whose team is ranked 12th. "It's not out of the question we could win it all. ... We have the potential. But we know it's a different animal down there. Our kids have done a great job of dealing with the pressure all season."

Drost shot a 2-over 74 to capture medalist honors in leading the Rayders to the regional championship last week at Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. Remus Chippewa Hills and Whitehall both shot 359 to tie for second. Chippewa Hills earned the runner-up finish based on the tie-breaker, the fifth-player score.

Wimmer shot 77 to place second, while Rich carded an 81 to tie for third with Houghton Lake's Nick Manville. Catt shot 90, while Novotny carded a 96.

The Rayders' normal home course, Belvedere, was unavailable for the tournament, so it was moved to Charlevoix Golf and Country Club, a course with which all the Rayders are quite familiar.

"I think the big thing was the home course advantage for sure," said Grunch, a Charlevoix graduate who is the pro at Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. "Not only that, but just the kids' demeanor on the golf course. They were having a good time and playing within themselves, that was the main thing."

Drost overcame a so-so start to finish with a steady 37-37.

"I started out a little iffy at the beginning," he said. "I was a little nervous, but I came through at the end and started playing some good golf down the stretch. I just started to get within myself and calmed down and started hitting some good shots and started hitting some targets. As a result, some birdies and pars started to come along."

Drost said the heavy rain that fell on the area the day before the regional helped to soften the course, and he and his teammates took advantage.

"The course had been pretty dry so that rain really helped soften the course up quite a bit," he said. "I started to stick some irons in there and gave myself some good birdie looks."

Grunch said Drost played solid, and expects the senior to once again do so at the state finals.

"He's just a solid player," Grunch said. "He wants to break par so bad and he's so close. Hopefully, next week he can do that. He's got a chance to do so.

"We've been stressing all year to just play within yourself and it's so easy to beat yourself up and get down, and then your round is over. Wimmer started out with a triple bogey and a double (bogey), but then he played the last 16 holes even par. That just shows a lot of character."

Oliver Shepardson of Kent City shot 82 to finish fifth. He and Houghton Lake's Manville qualified for the state tournament as individuals.

Editor's note: Because of an editing error, a portion of last week's story on the Rayders' District championship was omitted. The ommitted information follows:

Charlevoix's Thomas Rich shot 80 to tie Roscommon's Alex Gojcaj for the low round of the day. Gojcaj earned medalist honors by beating Rich in a one-hole playoff with a birdie.

AWARDS

Rayders' Taylor Smith receives 'Character' award

Smith

Recent Charlevoix High School graduate and Rayder soccer standout Taylor Smith was among 11 area athletes, coaches and others in youth sports-related roles to be honord Monday at Beyond the Scoreboard's 6th Annual Champions of Character Awards banquet at the Community Building at the Emmet County Fairgrounds.

Smith, who is headed to Northern Michigan University, was cited by the organization as being "an outstanding role model in both soccer and basketball throughout her career as a Rayder. She has displayed a strong commitment to academics, community and athletics on a daily basis. She volunteers with 4-H youth soccer, Special Olympics, the school freshman soccer program, and is a member of the National Honor Society. A team captain, she has helped lead the Rayders to the regional soccer championship game this season, and four consecutive district championships. She continually conveys a caring attitude and willingness to help young players, as well as her peers."

The awards go to individuals or teams who personify Beyond the Scoreboard's mission, character through athletics.

The keynote speaker for the event was Jack Roberts, executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

The other award winners are:

— Randy Bricker, Pellston, high school coach

— Dree Lo, Petoskey, youth/recreation coach

— Jackson Kopka, Harbor Springs, male athlete

— Kurt Boucher, Petoskey, male youth/recreation athlete

- Tom and Connie Fairbairn, parents

— Mary Weitzel-Bailey, Pellston, youth sports leader

— Dave Reeb, Indian River, official

— Dave Bricker, Boyne City, lifetime achievement

— Petoskey varsity boys' basketball, team of character

SOCCER

HOLTON — Grand Rapids NorthPointe Christian struck quickly Friday, ending Charlevoix's season in a Division IV girls' soccer regional championship game.

The Mustangs scored twice in the first eight minutes and went on to a 3-0 victory over the Rayders. NorthPointe Christian advances to a state semifinal on Wednesday, June 15, against Lansing Christian at Hope College.

Charlevoix, which was playing in its fourth straight regional, finished 16-7-3.

"They really, for the first 20 minutes, had us on our heels, especially the first 10," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "We had never really been pressured like that. We were not rotating well and they really had us on our heels. Then the girls settled in and we got some chances."

We had moments were we were able to make good runs and get some combinations going. We needed to rotate better, push up, get out faster. "

NorthPointe Christian, which was ranked ninth in the state prior to Friday's game, eliminated Charlevoix from last year's state tournament with a 2-1 overtime victory in a regional semifinal.

Hannah Silvey scored the first goal five minutes in, then Annie Hamilton made it 2-0 three minutes later. Silvey scored midway through the second half.

"I was so proud of the girls because they really battled the whole time," Madison said. "A lot of times being down by three (goals) is tough especially when you've been under so much pressure. We really battled, never gave up, and kept working the ball."

"She did a great job," Madison said. "A couple of her saves were just amazing."

Madison said Carolena Elowsky, Savannah Joseph, Kelly Greyerbiehl, Taylor Smith and Abbey Barnes played well. Barnes, Smith, Hannah Doan, Katie Mayes and Hailee Bills are the Rayder seniors.

The Rayders earned the right to play for the regional title earlier in the week when they defeated Mason County Eastern 6-1 in a semifinal game also in Holton Tuesday.

In that game, Charlevoix jumped to a 3-0 lead less than eight minutes into the match. Taylor Smith scored the first of her three goals less than a minute in Tuesday's game, and she scored again less than five minutes later. Abbey Barnes then made it 3-0 when she scored with 33 minutes, 10 seconds left in the half.

Barnes and Smith would later score again, and Hannah Herboldsheimer also scored for the Rayders. Lynzie Gotschall and Bailee Stevens split the game in goal for the Rayders.

"It was a phenomenal year and these girls have really come together as a team," Madison said. "I can't say enough about the girls and what they did to create that for themselves. The seniors, this is their second time at the regional finals. The way those girls have led this team and taught everyone about putting team first and doing what it takes to win games ... They all gave everything they had. They really did."

SOFTBALL

Regional title just out of reach

ELK RAPIDS — A game of inches.

The Charlevoix High School varsity softball team unfortunately knows that old adage all too well following Saturday's 4-3 loss to Tawas in a Division III regional semifinal at Elk Rapids High School.

Tawas pitcher Abby Gentger hit a two-run fourth-inning home run which bounced straight into the air after hitting the top of the fence in left-center field before having just enough momentum to carry over to give the Braves a 2-1 lead they would not relinquish.

But the Braves had to hold off a late Charlevoix rally to do so.

"These girls never quit and that's the best thing about this team all year," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "We'd be down five or six runs and just come back, it's been our thing all year."

It nearly happened again Saturday.

Tawas got a pair of very important insurance runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to extend its lead to 4-1. The Rayders responded in their final at-bat against a strong Tawas pitcher in Gentger.

Senior Emily Mielke lead off the inning with a single to center and then scored on a double by sophomore Katie Hybl to make it 4-2. Junior Chelsie Hoffman followed with a double of her own to center to score Hybl and make it a one-run game.

With the go-ahead run at the plate and Hoffman at second with one out, Gentger got Charlevoix senior Hannah Hybl to line to third, then forced junior Kristen Mielke to ground to third for the final out.

"It was a little scary there at the end," Tawas coach Rick Collins said. "It was a heck of a pitchers battle and I thought Charlevoix had some great hitters. Their top four were sticking the ball and then the bottom of the order performed well too. (Gentger) is a good pitcher and they were hitting her solid. Even when she had her changeup working, they were hitting her solid."

Gentger struck out 12, walked two and allowed seven hits, while Charlevoix's Hannah Hybl struck out eight, walked one and gave up seven hits.

Charlevoix scored the game's first run in the top of the first as Hoffman drew a walk, moved to third on a Kristen Mielke single, and scored when Anna Moon's hard-hit grounder went for an error.

The Braves took the lead in the fourth on Gentger's first-career home run following a leadoff single from Katie McKenzie.

"I was barking at our team to start focusing and Katie started things off for us," Collins said. "Then Abby followed that up with a bomb. (Gentger) is one of our better hitters average wise and she has just blazing speed. It was nice to see her focus in on that one and really cut the ball in half."

In the bottom of the sixth, Gentger used that speed to reach on an infield single. She scored on a Shelby Alda single to make it 3-1. Alda then scored on a double to left off the bat of Olivia Janis to make it 4-1.

"That sixth inning was huge," Collins said. "I know their left fielder would probably like to have one back, but Shelby Alda had a nice hit and looking back, that inning was the difference."

The Rayders, who close a 24-6 season in Ken Hoffman's first season as head coach, will lose two seniors in Hannah Hybl and Emily Mielke. Charlevoix has won three straight district titles with Hybl — who will attend Alma College this fall — the winning pitcher in all three district title games.

"Hannah pitched a great game and we just came up a little short," Hoffman said. "It was so nice to have our seniors have such a leadership role. We just had a great season and I'm very proud of the girls. To have them respond like this, it's just great.

"Tawas is a top 10 team. We just played our hearts out and that's all we could do. We were definitely the underdog and we just came up a little bit short."

Also for Charlevoix, Katie Hybl added a pair of hits, while Moon singled.

Tawas, 28-8, fell in the regional title game to Gladstone, 5-3. It was the ninth straight regional title for Gladstone, 25-3, which will face Manistee in a Division III quarterfinal game at noon Tuesday, June 14, at Traverse City West High School.

Investing beyond Short-term CDs

Many people depend on certificates of deposit (CDs) to provide extra income. Yet CD rates have been fairly low for a while. In recent months, in fact, one-year CDs were paying about 0.5%, two-year CDs paid in the 2% to 2.3% range. Those rates are scanty enough, but they can seem even lower in an economic environment marked by rising food and gas prices.

Before you consider alternatives keep in mind that CDs still offer a key advantage: safety of principal. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) typically insures CDs up to $250,000. And since CDs are relatively short-term in nature, you don't have to worry about locking away that money for long periods of time. So there can be a place for CDs in the fixed-income portion of your portfolio.

However, during times such as these you might consider looking at additional options, keeping in mind that, when seeking greater income, you'll likely be taking on more risk. Let's consider a few alternatives.

- Fixed annuities - Many people buy fixed annuities to supplement their retirement income. But most annuities also allow you to take up to 10% of your account value each year without penalty. Plus, the interest rate you receive on a fixed annuity may be more competitive than that currently paid by a CD. Keep in mind, though, that annuities are not backed by FDIC insurance, and any guarantees are backed solely by the paying ability of the insurance company. Additionally, early or excessive withdrawals may be subject to penalties. If you believe a fixed annuity might be appropriate for your situation, speak with your financial advisor.

- Bond ladders - If appropriate for your situation, you can potentially gain extra income through a strategy known as a bond "ladder." To build a ladder, you buy several bonds with varying maturities - short, intermediate, and long-term. Once you've constructed your ladder, you could gain some advantage in various interest rate environments. When market rates are low, you'll still have your longer-term bonds earning higher interest rates. And when market rates rise, you can reinvest your maturing short-term bonds at higher rates. But if you need income in addition to your regular interest payments, you can get it from the maturing bonds. Unlike CDs, however, bonds are not covered by FDIC insurance and are subject to credit risks. Bonds are also subject to interest rate risk: When interest rates rise, bond prices generally fall, and you may lose some or all of your principal if you sell your bond prior to maturity. But by holding your bonds until maturity, you can avoid loss of principal, assuming the issuer doesn't default.

- Dividend-paying stocks - Some companies have paid - and increased -their stock dividends for many years now. If you don't need the dividends to boost your cash flow, you can reinvest them to help boost your ownership stake. However, companies can reduce or discontinue their dividends at any time, and since stock prices fluctuate, you risk losing some or all of your principal.

By exploring alternatives to short-term CDs, you may find other appropriate investments that may better position you to reach your financial goals - so look around to see what's available in the financial marketplace.

County chambers unveil leadership training program

Shooks

Three Charlevoix County chambers of commerce are working together to bring the residents of Charlevoix County a new program. Leadership Charlevoix County is a program designed to cultivate new, emerging and potential leaders from the area to identify and address pertinent community needs and strengthen individual leadership abilities.

"I am honored and excited for the opportunity to work with local individuals in developing and strengthening their leadership skills," said recently-hired program coordinator Mishelle Shooks. "It will be great to see the current leaders of Charlevoix County be a part of the process in making our community richer."

Charlevoix County will accept between 12-18 participants each year. The program consists of 11 days of training, one full day per month from approximately September through June each year. Included is one overnight team-building retreat and graduation ceremonies. Each session is designed and coordinated around a particular subject. Topics include local, regional and statewide government, arts, culture, diversity, economic development, media management, education, health and human services, environment and natural resources, philanthropy and volunteerism.

General leadership skills such as board management, decision making, speaking/presentations skills and networking techniques will also be a part of each session. Participants will conduct a class project in order to fulfill graduation requirements.

The program will enhance a deeper level of awareness of community strengths and challenges throughout the county and increase understanding of various community sectors and how they relate and interact.

Chambers involved with the program include the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, and the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce. The program is also receiving additional support from the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce.

"As a collective whole, Charlevoix County has many strengths, we also have some great challenges. It's been fantastic collaborating with Jim Baumann and Mary Faculak (Boyne and East Jordan chamber presidents) as we create a program which should provide educated participants in our future," said Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Erin Bemis.

The launch of Leadership Charlevoix County was made possible by a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Anyone interested in participating in Leadership Charlevoix County please contact Mishelle Shooks at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce by calling (231) 547-2101.

Hors d'oeuvres and entertainment. Closing ceremony will take place 3-5 p.m. Sunday, July 24. The event will include dessert and entertainment including auto poetry reading by John Alberts.

Blood drives — As spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Staff concessions, cuts and new revenue proposed to fill $1.1 million budget hole

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The proposed cuts to staff and programing at Charlevoix Public Schools for the 2011-12 school year won't be easy, but they are a far cry from massive staff reductions that took place a year ago.

That's thanks in large part to a tentative two-year contract agreement between the school board and its teacher and support staff unions which, if ultimately ratified by both sides, nearly halves the district's projected $1.1 million budget deficit for the next school year.

At Monday's regular monthly school board meeting ,district superintendent Chet Janik announced that the sides reached the tentative contract agreement on Saturday. Although Janik said the parties could not discuss the details of the proposed deals before they were officially approved, he said the tentative contract is expected to save the district about $500,000 in its first year.

Janik

Janik pointed to the agreement as a major milestone for the district, not only because of cost savings it will mean, but also because the two sides were able to reach the deal more than two months before the existing contract expires and without the acrimony that surrounded contract negotiations the last time around.

When the last contracts expired in 2008 it took the sides more than a year to work out a new three-year deal.

The union's lead negotiator, high school government teacher Annemarie Conway said the second year of the deal includes another $400,000 in concessions.

"Throughout the process, our administrators and board knew they needed to come up with the remaining cuts. This is an ugly time for all of us, especially since the cuts we are making are only because the legislature and governor re-appropriated the funding from education to other political priorities," Conway said. "Though there still may be some philosophical differences between the parties on employee compensation; we genuinely feel as if the board was fair throughout the process and considered our proposals earnestly. Given the current political climate in the state and in the region, school boards are under enormous pressure to make school employee compensation their scapegoats, and I'm pleased to say that this has not the case with the (Charlevoix Public Schools) board."

Board member Glen Catt, who was on the district's negotiation team said mutual trust among the parties was a key part of the process.

"I think we all realized that we're on the same team and want the same outcome, which is a solution to our district's financial problems and to ensure our district's future success," Catt said. "The negotiations process was a lot of long hours, but it also had its rewards. It gave Kevin Pearsall (the board's other negotiation team member) and me an opportunity to get to know a lot of members of our staff, which we think is

Council sides with islanders on airport parking issues

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Parking issues just won't go away for the Charlevoix City Council.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the board heard complaints from a number of Beaver Island residents who are upset about a number of recent parking citations that were issued to the owners of vehicles parked at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

City manager Rob Straebel said earlier this month city staff began ticketing vehicles parked at the airport without proper parking permits. In all about 20 citations were issued, Straebel said.

The bulk of the flap centered around the use annual parking permit stickers in more than one vehicle.

Airport manager Matt Bailey told the Courier that in a letter dated May 9 he informed airport patrons that the city would begin enforcing parking rules at the airport — including a requirement that annual permits be affixed to each vehicle's windshield.

Red Cross: Some blood types critically low

Despite ongoing efforts to call and e-mail blood donors, American Red Cross officials say they are unable to meet many blood orders for local hospitals in the timeliest manner. Because of the low supplies, some orders, particularly type O-negative, have been put on back order.

Red Cross officials said there is a need for all blood types, but particularly O-negative, A-negative and B-negative, which are currently at critically low levels in Michigan. These critically low blood supplies are resulting in orders being placed on back order; in addition to only filling hospitals' O-negative orders for "Transfuse Only." This means hospitals requesting type O-negative must have an immediate and specific need for a specific patient.

According to the Red Cross, O-negative is always in high demand because it can be transfused to patients with any blood type, especially in emergency situations.

The American Red Cross is asking eligible donors to make or keep appointments to give blood as soon as possible

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix area woman who is accused of killing her 94-year-old mother earlier this year will face a preliminary examination in her case next week after she was recently found mentally competent to stand trail.

Sandra Gregory, 74, will face a preliminary examination on a charge of open murder at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 28, in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court.

Gregory is facing up to life in prison for the charge in connection with the March 27 death of her mother Amelia Patricia Gregory.

Gregory

Shortly after Gregory's arrest, her attorney, Kraag Lieberman, filed a motion seeking to have his client evaluated to determine her mental competency to stand trial — that is whether she is capable of understanding the nature of the proceedings against her and of assisting in her defense. Lieberman also put the court and prosecutor's office on notice that if she is found competent to stand trial, she will be asserting an insanity defense.

It took until about mid-May before doctors medically cleared Gregory to undergo evaluations by officials from the Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry to determine if she is mentally competent to stand trial. She was also evaluated by center staff to determine if she has any mental defect or condition that would prevent a jury from finding her criminally responsible for the crime.

The portion of the report regarding competency to stand trial came in earlier this month, and based on the report — to which both the prosecution and defense agreed — District Court Judge Richard W. May found Gregory competent to stand trial and scheduled the preliminary examination in the case.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema said the remainder of the report regarding the center's findings about Gregory's mental competency will be addressed by the court at the time of her preliminary examination.

Jarema said the finding of the Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry will address whether center staff believes that Gregory has some mental defect that would prevent a jury from finding her guilty of the charge offense. If the report finds no such defect, and the two sides and the judge agree to accept the report's findings, the case would proceed to trial.

Ultimately it will be up to a jury to decide if Gregory "as a result of mental illness ... lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the nature and quality or the wrongfulness of her conduct or to conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the law."

In earlier court filings the defense conceded that Gregory caused the death of her mother.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

valuable as board members."

The bad news is that, after the labor contract savings are figured in, the district is still left with a $600,000 budget hole to fill.

To that end, Janik outlined his proposals for budget cuts and some extra sources of revenue. (All staff reduction savings figures include all costs associated with those positions including, salary, insurance, retirement and other costs to the district)

The $500,000 in proposed cuts included:

— Eliminating two bus routes and two bus driver positions for a combined savings of $46,906. Janik said district's transportation director would be charged with re-working the bus routes to accommodate the reduction in drivers.

— Teaching staff reductions including a position at the middle school that won't be refilled following retirement ($71,439); eliminating computers as a "specials" class at the elementary school ($114,484); an industrial technology teaching position that will be taught by a retiring teacher on a contract basis ($31,959) for a total of about $218,000.

— Other staff reductions including half-time secretary positions at the elementary ($18,490) and middle ($21,048) schools;the district's career coordinator position ($80,965); and a half-time custodial position at each of the district's three buildings ($83,733). Janik said projections are that the district could save up to $230,000 for the school year if it were to outsource its custodial services. The board won't decide on the privatization of custodial services until the bid deadline passes on July 6.

— $15,000 the district hopes to save by seeking reductions in the fees it is charged by municipalities that collect taxes on its behalf.

Janik proposes to fill the remainder of the budget gap with $104,000 in additional revenue including — An estimated $22,500 in athletic/transportation fees. Under the proposal students would pay a fee of $75 per high school sport, with a $150 maximum per school year and $50 per middle school sport with a $100 maximum per year. Students who qualify for free or reduced lunches would be exempted from the athletic fee. Janik said typically about 40 percent of the students in the district would qualify for the fee waiver, which has been calculated into the estimated revenue

— $12,000 in new revenue from rental income for a new partnership under which the Char-Em Intermediate School District will operate an alternative education program out of a district-owned building in Ironton

— $20,000 in expected new revenue in student foundation grant funding from students enrolled in the Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School kindergarten, through a new agreement between the district and the school.

— Janik also proposes that the district could realize another roughly $40,000 in charges that it hasn't previously assessed to the intermediate school district for vocational education programs it houses.

A year ago the board cut 14 teaching positions, 1.5 administrative positions and one support staff position as it cut a total of $1.4 million from the 2010-11 budget.

School officials said many factors played into the budget shortfall for the coming year including a net $271 per pupil cut to the school district foundation grant, totaling $312,734. An anticipated 20-student loss in enrollment for another $161,680 loss; $393,316 in increased insurance and retirement costs, $90,000 in payouts for unused sick days to staff who are retiring and another $77,338 for wage steps for teachers and support staff. To top it all off, the fund balance reservoir the district has been dipping into to balance the budget since 2002 is expected to be down to $316,000 by the time the books are audited.

The board took no action on the proposed budget cuts or on the tentative agreement with the unions. It is expected to take up both matters at a special board meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, June 27, in the large meeting room at the middle school. Under state law, the board must past a budget by June 30.

In mourning, some days are harder than others

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

With her sparkling eyes the color of coffee and a warm gracious smile that would welcome any stranger who crossed her path, she stood out in a crowd. Her laughter drew attention because she laughed whole-heartedly and without reservation. A conversation usually ended with the quick, "Kalimeta" and a warm hug good-bye as she scurried off to new mischief and merry making. The anniversary of her death looms ahead, and to me personally, I will never forget the fun loving, gracious and generous Marina LaBlance

I have yet another friend who is also sharing space with Marina. His tall and lanky stature loomed bigger than his soft and kind voice that could calm a grizzly. He was a man who loved his ever growing family, his daily walks, his close friends, his church and of course his dog who rarely left his side. He was a man who was good with numbers, which is why he was so successful at keeping schools on track with their spending. Richard Kelly was a rare breed, who was a friend to all and never spoke an unkind word about anyone.

The years pass quicker than a bee gathers honey. The only sweetness that gives me peace is to know they are here in a spiritual sense and in no pain. My bringing up these losses is my way of focusing on the anniversaries. The passing of my dad and father-in-law will create a quieter Father's Day, but we will definitely recognize their spiritual presence by telling a story or two and toasting our glasses.

The anniversary of a loved one's passing or their birthday will bring sadness, but it is so important to realize not to lose yourself in the process. If this time saddens you beyond belief, know that your neighbors and friends are going through similar situations in their own life and, if you can find a kind listening ear, all the better. Sharing stories about your family and friends who are no longer on earth will lighten your mood as your loved one comes to life with each story told. The sadness dissipates with conversation, which eventually turns to laughter, which is actually the best medicine of all.

There have been deaths too numerous to mention in the last couple of years, and all these people were special for who they were and what they meant to you and to me. When their anniversaries arrive, whether it's a birthday or marking another year that they are gone, it's good to know you are not alone in your sadness and that, in time, you will feel happiness again. There is no set timeline for healing from a loss; and I would be exaggerating if I told you the wounds from a loss will be gone in a year or two. Everyone grieves in their own way and in their own time frame. There are various stages we go through including anger, hopelessness and even resentment, but when you experience each of these and for how long is strictly a personal journey.

When my mom passed away I built a memorial garden in our front yard. The plaque I had made is my reminder of what my mom meant to me and the date printed serves as the only physical reminder. Each year on her birthday and Mother's Day I add a flower or decorative item to celebrate. It serves its purpose and I often times find myself talking to my mom while I pull out a few weeds and grasses that find a home in her garden. This type of memorial makes her absence bearable and her presence felt.

Whether you keep a journal, scrapbook or family tradition, new or old, it will make the anniversary smoother. I really think our family and friends would like to know we are still thinking of them in some small way. An unknown author left this message on a headstone in Ireland and I'd like to share it with you: "Death leaves a heartache no one can heal, but love leaves a memory no one can steal." So, happy anniversary to all my friends and family, until we meet again.

LETTERS to the editor

Contributions for middle school trip appreciated

Editor:

Thank you once again to Oleson's Food Markets for their very generous continued support of students through their register receipts program. Through their generosity, thousands of dollars have been given through the years so that students would have the ability to travel to Washington D.C. during their eighth grade year at Charlevoix Middle School.

The price of this trip is prohibitive for many families and it is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for some students. By collecting Oleson's receipts, students are given a percentage of the points accumulated on the register receipts.

Thank you to community members who have dropped off receipts as donations for students who may need assistance in paying for this trip. Your kindness is much appreciated.

Anyone willing to donate receipts to the students of Charlevoix Middle School may drop them off in the school's front office.

Thank you again to Oleson's Markets and to our generous community on behalf of Charlevoix Middle School students and staff.

Editor:

The students and parents of the class of 2019 would like to once again thank the community for their generous support of the Charlevoix Elementary School fourth grade Beaver Island trip. Approximately 110 students and chaperones enjoyed learning about historic Beaver Island and viewing its amazing sights. We braved the weather and capped off another great school year. Specifically we would like to thank the following organizations: The Charlevoix Schools Foundation, Charlevoix Elks Lodge, Charlevoix Elementary School PTO, The Rotary Club of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Lions Club. Thank you for your support in continuing this great Charlevoix tradition!

PARKING

Bailey said copies of the letter were posted at the airport counter and city staff made the best efforts it could, based on the information they had, to contact permit holders about the enforcement policy.

Many island residents have been in the practice of placing an annual pass on a piece of paper or plexiglass and then transferring the permit to whichever vehicle they drive to the airport when on the mainland.

In a memo on the matter to the city council, Bailey said it's his understanding the permits have always been vehicle specific, but the requirement hadn't been enforced. He also expressed concerns about the parking revenue city would lose by allowing the practice to continue.

However, when Straebel and Bailey brought the matter to the city council for direction Monday, they found a board that was sympathetic to the island residents.

The consensus among the council was to have city staff draw up a policy that allows parking permits to be shared among members of the same family.

In other business, the council unanimously approved a set of four amendments to the city's zoning ordinance — one of which expanded and more explicitly defines what kinds of businesses are allowed on Bridge Street in the downtown.

The previous language, which had been in place since the ordinance was adopted in the 1970s stipulates only: "Uses developed in the central business district having their front entrances on Bridge Street shall be used strictly for retail purposes."

The ordinance doesn't specify what constitutes a "retail purpose."

The revised language now requires that first-floor businesses with a front entrance on Bridge Street be "primarily retail and food service."

The change also now specifically allows:

— Food and beverage services, including grocery stores, restaurants, cafés (including internet cafés), coffee shops, bars, taverns, wine bars, breweries, bakeries, delicatessens, bistros and specialty shops;

— Retails stores having a gross area of less than 5,000 square feet (not to include appliance, furniture and other stores selling large-scale consumer products);

— Art galleries, frame shops, photography and art studios;

— Beauty salons and barber shops as a primary use. Secondary uses my include tanning beds, pedicure or manicure services in the same location.

The ordinance also creates a provision under which and applicant can ask the planning commission to make a finding that a particular use is in accordance with the spirit of the ordinance.

The remaining two changes involve reducing side-yard setback requirements on corner lots in residential districts and the third has to do with lot restrictions in instances where a dwelling is proposed above locations in commercial or professional office zoning districts.

The council also gave its blessing for city staff to proceed with plans to use an additional $60,000 in revenue that resulted from an unexpected uptick in city property values.

The projects, many of which were scratched from city to-do lists at budget time include roof repairs and painting at the golf course, caulking stone work in East Park, securing the north shoppers dock, the purchase of some records management equipment, improvements to the interactive water fountain holding tank and repairs to handrails on steps throughout East Park.

The council also:

— Passed on a proposal from Mike Way to sell a 4.9 acre parcel of property to the city in along U.S. 31 in Charlevoix Township for possible city public works use;

Authorized the purchase of a used pickup truck from Fletch's in Petoskey for the electric and water departments at a cost of $19,525;

Approved the purchase of materials for hydrant repairs and replacement at a cost of $18,727; and — Approved an $4,800 contract with the Charlevoix City Band, which provides entertainment in East Park on Tuesday evenings in the summer.

Venetian Queen entries saught

The deadline for submitting applications for the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen Scholarship Pageant is fast approaching. Applications must be submitted to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office by 5 p.m. Friday, June 24.

Young women who participate in the pageant will serve the Charlevoix Community as an ambassador. The reigning queen, her court and new candidates promote the community while visiting surrounding Northern Michigan community events.

The coronation of the queen takes place on Friday night of Venetian Festival week.

The Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen is a scholarship competition. A minimum of three scholarships are given every year including first place prize of $2,500, first runner up prize of $1,250 and a $500 essay contest scholarship. The young women who enter the competition are required to write an introduction letter, an essay, prepare and present one persuasive speech, and complete both panel and personal interviews with judges selected from outside the Charlevoix community.

Candidates must be between the ages of 16-22, must be single, never married and have no children. They must also have a primary residence in Charlevoix, or have graduated from a Charlevoix area school.

Watershed Council offers aquatic tours

The staff at Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has created a series of informative tours at of waterways around Northern Michigan this summer.

"The tours are a fantastic opportunity to become more familiar with specific areas in Northern Michigan and improve your understanding of the impacts and challenges they face" says Gail Gruenwald, executive director of Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "Each of the aquatic tours will be lead by our knowledgeable staff and guest experts, and take place throughout our service area beginning the last week of June."

The schedule of tours includes.

— 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Wednesday, June 29: A Pleasant Paddle on Walloon Lake. The tour will explore the Mud Lake basin of Walloon Lake and will be led by Kevin Cronk. Limit 15 participants.

— 10 a.m.-noon Wednesday July 6: Bark, Buds, and Blooms Walk. Jennifer Gleb will explore the Grass River Natural Area and focus on plant identification. Limit 15 participants.

— 8:30 a.m.-noon Wednesday, July 13: Jordan River Canoe and Kayak Tour. Paddle down the Jordan River from Chestonia (Old State Road) to Rogers Road. You must be an experienced paddler for this tour led by Wil Cwikiel. Limit 15 participants.

— 9 a.m.-noon Wednesday, July 20: Mullett Lake Pontoon Cruise. A leisurely cruise that explores some of the issues facing this lake including shoreline development and aquatic invasive species. Tour led by Dr. Grenetta Thomassey. Limit 16 participants.

— 10 a.m. noon Wednesday, Aug. 3: Leisurely Paddle on Crooked Lake, 10am - Noon. Observe wildlife and learn more about this beautiful lake with Maureen Stine. Limit 15 participants.

— 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 10: Carp Creek Gorgeous Gorge Hike. Explore the diversity of plant life, wildlife, and amazing views with Kevin Cronk and special guest guide Mike Supernault from the Burt Lake Preservation Association. Limit 20+ participants.

— 1-3 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 17: Black Lake Canoe and Kayak Tour. A slow and easy paddle on one of the most striking lakes in our area. Observe wildlife and learn more about the latest issues that affect Black Lake. Tour led by Maureen Stine. Limit 15 participants.

Pre-registration for all tours is required. Call Sandy at (231) 347-1181 to register for one or more tours. Tours are $20 for Watershed Council members and $25 for non-members.

Bring your own paddling gear and canoe or kayak for paddling tours. Paddling gear is not provided by the Watershed Council. If you need to rent a canoe or kayak, the Watershed Council suggests contacting Ryde Marina or The Outfitter to make arrangements. The Watershed Council does not provide transportation of rentals.

Great Lakes Energy awards People Fund grants

Great Lakes Energy members continue to lend a hand to local community causes through their voluntary contributions to the People Fund. The People Fund Board of Directors awarded a total of $14,300 in grants in June to the following non-profit organizations in Northern Michigan.

— Beaver Island Community Development Corporation, Beaver Island: $1,000 for grab bars for bathrooms at the Forest View Community building for seniors and disabled adults.

— Boyne Arts Collective, Boyne City: $600 to repair a roof in the art gallery.

— Crawford County Commission on Aging, Grayling: $1,200 for Senior Project Fresh coupon booklets for low income seniors to receive fresh produce from local farmer's markets.

— Child Abuse and Neglect Council, Mancelona: $2,000 for cribs, mattresses and supplies for the baby pantry.

— Charity Hill Ranch, Rapid City: $2,500 for scholarships for disabled children to attend therapeutic riding camp, contingent on the ranch raising matching funds.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999, more than $2 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

"The Great Lakes Energy People Fund is funded by the generosity of our members," said president/CEO Steve Boeckman. "The average monthly contribution is just 50 cents per month. The needs of our communities continue to grow making each small contribution vital to the success of the People Fund."

Great Lakes Energy electric members interested in participating can enroll by contacting Great Lakes Energy by phone or online.

Non-profit organizations can apply for a grant through the People Fund by downloading the application at www.gtlakes.com or by calling Great Lakes Energy at (888) 485-2537. The next grant application deadline is Oct. 1.

Charlevoix's running wild

Continually-growing Charlevoix Marathon takes off Saturday

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Thousands of runners and their friends and families will descend upon Charlevoix this weekend as the fifth annual Charlevoix Marathon takes off early Saturday.

Ron Suffolk, race director with Good Boy Events, the company that organizes the event, said he expects participation in the race to continue to grow again this year. He's projecting that about 1,600 runners will participate in this year's event up from 1,400 who participated last year.

There are actually four races under the Charlevoix Marathon umbrella, a marathon, half-marathon, a 5K and 10k races.

All of the races will start and finish on Michigan Street (U.S. 31) just north of the bridge and all races will use portions of the same out-and-back course.

The first 3.5 miles of the course runs through town from the area north of the bridge down Michigan to McSauba, through the North Point neighborhood, Pa-be-shan to Old Orchard, Old Orchard to Waller, and Waller to the start of the Little Traverse Wheelway along U.S. 31. The rest of the course uses the non-motorized trial to the turnaround point just east of Camp Daggett Road in Emmet County.

Suffolk said traffic disruption for the races should be minimal and will mainly be limited to the area of the start finish line for a few minutes at the each starting time.

Marathon and half marathon walkers will start at 6 a.m. The marathon begins at 7 a.m., half marathon at 7:30 a.m. 10K and 5K races start at 8 a.m. The awards ceremony will take place at noon in Bridge Park.

Suffolk said organizers typically estimate an average of about 2.5 people will come to town for each runner who participates in a race such as the Charlevoix Marathon.

Suffolk, whose business, Good Boy Events, organizes several races around the state and country, said he's grateful for all the support city officials, law enforcement and ambulance crews have provided for the races.

Suffolk hires local groups, such as the boys' and girls' track teams and the band boosters to help with clean-up and manning aid stations along the course. Suffolk said all of the previous non-profit groups will return this year, and two more will join to man to new aid stations along the route.

Suffolk encourages residents — especially those who live in the neighborhoods out near Mount McSauba, to come out and cheer the runners on.

St. Mary School to offer free kindergarten

The school advisory council at St. Mary School in Charlevoix recently offering to give free tuition to the kindergarten class for the Fall of 2011.

School officials said the offer is being extended to ease the financial concern that parents have about attending St. Mary School. Bussing is available and students are dropped off at St. Mary School.

St. Mary School principal Nancy Philp, said, "Selecting a school is one of the most important decisions a parent makes for their child. There are no "do overs" in education. Every year in a child's school life is critical for their future academic success. St. Mary School has proven scores for high academics, and adds the element of faith and study of God's Word to give every student the best opportunity for a high-quality, well-rounded education."

Information packets for kindergarten registration are available by calling the school office at 547-9441 or e-mail mjoy@stmaryschool-chx.com.

OBITUARIES

Pair

Ronald Richard Pair, 79, of Charlevoix, died Monday, June 13, 2011, in his home.

He was born Jan. 14, 1932, in Attleborough, Mass., the son of Clyde and Viola Pair.

Ron enlisted in the Navy in Norfolk, Va. for four years during the Korean War. He served as a cook and ran maintenance for the C-plane squadron.

In 1967, he established Ron Pair Enterprises in St. Clair Shores, and revolutionized the bulk loading industry with the invention of the Charlie 22 loading spout. The company evolved into Midwest International, with the development of his ever-growing product line. For the last 44 years, the company has reached to various industries across the globe.

Ron enjoyed cooking, opera and February dips in Lake Michigan. He could often be seen sitting on his deck overlooking Round Lake.

Surviving are wife Mary Pair, six children, Linda Baguzif and husband Dennis, Scott Pair, Gail Pair, Edith Pair, Lillian LeClair and husband Kenneth, Walter and Zoe Pair, nine grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

The funeral service took place at 11 a.m. Friday, June 17, at the Charlevoix Congregational Church with the Rev. Phil Schairbaum officiating. Burial will be at Glen Eden Memorial Park.

For those wishing to make memorial donations, the family suggests the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

Ed Oshaben, 85

Ed Oshaben of Bellaire died on June 17, 2011. A mass celebrating Ed's life will take place at 11 a.m. on Monday June 27 at St. Luke's Catholic Church in Bellaire. Burial will take place at Fort Custer National Ceremony in Battle Creek at a later date. A complete obituary will follow.

Ballpark vandalism

Charlevoix police officials said sometime on or around June 12 someone spray-painted graffiti on several of the dugouts at the city's Carpenter Street softball fields. However, not wanting the culprit's work left in place for last weekend's softball tournament, officials arranged for a crew of Charlevoix County Jail inmates (below) to repaint the dugouts to cover up the unsightly marks. The damage remains under investigation by police, who ask anyone with information to call (231) 547-3258.

Senior program looks to tailor services

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging studying future client's needs

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Taxpayer-supported senior programming in Charlevoix County may get an overhaul.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will conduct a series of focus groups this month to gauge the needs of the next generation of seniors. The idea is to then better tailor the agency's programs to the Baby Boomer generation and reduce overall expenses.

"Our senior center attendance is going down. Are we missing something we should be doing?" said Jack Messer, agency executive director. "The thinking is that the next generation may have different wants and needs than the current generation."

County leaders agreed to pay $3,150 to NorthSky Nonprofit Network, of Traverse City, to conduct the focus groups and compile the results. A final report is expected by summer's end.

Officials selected participants based on various personal and social criteria and all the focus group slots are filled.

Charlevoix resident Dennis Kusina, 62, is among the participants. He said the study will be beneficial for his generation.

"You have to find out which programs are needed," he said.

Ultimately, part of the senior programming problem is financial.

The commission's annual $1.4 million budget is heavily subsidized by the agency's fund balance, or savings account. Taxes generate about $800,000 each year, which is combined with donations and any state or federal grant funding received. But still, savings are spent every year to make up the shortfall.

"We are very quickly spending down that fund balance," Messer said.

He said there are two possible solutions to the predicament: increase tax revenues or curb spending.

"We need to develop a sustainable model," Messer said.

In this economic age, it's assumed that a reduction in expenses will be more palatable to the public than a requested increase in the tax rate.

Margo Johnson is chairwoman of the commission's advisory board. She said the agency doesn't want to arbitrarily make decisions about what programs to cut, so the forums are intended to provide some direction.

Those who receive — or soon enough will receive — senior services should have input into decisions about which programs are maintained, Johnson said.

"We know enough to realize it's different and the needs are going to be different," she said.

The commission operates four senior centers — in East Jordan, Boyne City, Charlevoix and Beaver Island — as well as provides in-home care for homebound seniors. The latter is seeing an increase in usage, Messer said.

"As our seniors age, more and more of them need this type of care," he said.

In the meantime, Messer wants to focus on what the aging Boomer generation will want as its members grow older. Those born between 1946 and 1964 are considered Baby Boomers.

"It's this group we need to talk about," Messer said.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Richard Gillespie is the liaison to the Commission on Aging. He does not want to see taxes raised to pay for senior programs that aren't well used anymore, he said.

It's time to focus on what's most important and trim what isn't, Gillespie said.

"It's a practical thing. We won't be able to support all the programs with the number of Baby Boomers retiring and heading our way," he said.

Most of the nation can expect a 30-percent spike in senior population as the Boomers age, but it's estimated Northern Michigan will realize a 40-percent jump, Messer said.

Gillespie said he hopes this is the last survey or series of forums that are required to help determine a direction for the commission, as a number have already been paid for over the years.

Get ready to 'Ellebrate'

Replacement festival for Ellsworth Pig Roast kicks off June 30

ELLSWORTH — The first Ellsworth "Ellebration" festival will tkae place Thursday and Sunday, June 30-July 3, with a weekend full of events celebrating food, family and fun.

Ellebration kicks off on Thursday with the third annual Breezeway Cruise and Banks Township Citizen of the Year award presentation. The cruise starts at 5 p.m. at Boyne Mountain and ends at Royal Farms in Atwood where Irene Shooks, Banks Township Citizen of the Year, will be honored. For more information, visit www.ridethebreezeway.com.

Friday brings a '50s drive in dinner and softball tournament at the Ellsworth Elementary School Grounds beginning at 5 p.m. The fun continues with a community bonfire featuring s'mores and campfire music at the Ellsworth Community Park from 7-9 p.m.

Saturday begins with the 32-mile Chain-O-Lakes bike tour at 8 a.m.; registration forms can be found at www.ellebration.com. A pancake breakfast will take place from 9-11 a.m. at the Banks Township Hall, and the softball tournament will continue throughout the day at the Ellsworth Sports Park. At 10 a.m., brings the 47-stop, narrated Historical Trolley Tour and the beginning of the Front Porch Cafe Ice Cream Social on the Community Park grounds. The grand parade will begin at 11 a.m. moving up Center Street then down Main Street ending at the high school. Following the parade, at noon the free kids games and entertainment will begin at the Community Park.

The main event, the roast pork lunch, will be served noon-2:30 p.m. under the pavilion. Additional concessions will be available and live music will featured. Also at noon is an archer demonstration at the new archery range. The horse pull begins at 2 p.m., and at dusk the softball tournament ends and the St. Clair Lake Boat Parade begins. Once dark settles, a fireworks show, presented by the Ellsworth St. Clair Fireworks Committee, will take place with viewing and free parking available at the Ellsworth Sports Park.

The Ellebration weekend will close on Sunday with a community picnic potluck at 2 p.m. under the Community Park pavilion. Beverage and table service will be provided.

Further details are available at www.ellebration.com or on Facebook at Ellsworth Pig Roast. For more information, contact Alana Haley at (231) 360-0676.

Ellsworth's Irene Shooks named Banks Township Citizen of the Year

Shooks has been a resident of the Banks Township community since the early 1970's. She and her husband, Rick, have raised four great children in the community, all of whom currently reside out of the immediate area. They have two grand daughters and are expecting another grandchild this year.

In addition to her "real job" of being the organist at Belltower Reformed Church, Shooks finds time to share her musical talents by playing for funerals and weddings, accompanying students for solo/ensemble performances at band festivals and school activities, assisting with band programs including Memorial Day & Pig Roast performances, and many other musical events. She is a .also vocalist and has participated in musical cantatas and performances.

Shooks

Shooks has been caregiver to several elderly persons in the community, assisting them on a daily basis with errands, transportation to appointments, bill paying as well as a multitude of other chores.

She serves as election inspector for countless elections, many times as chairman. She assists the township clerk in election preparations, absentee ballot distribution, public accuracy testing, just to name of few.

Shooks also serves as secretary to the Banks Township Planning Commission and is responsible for posting meeting notices, mailing notices to property owners, communicating with applicants in addition to setting up for meetings and recording the minutes of those meetings. She often works under urgent and strict time constraints to accomplish these things.

She serves the community at the Front Porch Restaurant as a volunteer waitress when needed, often on very short notice. She also serves on the human resources committee and organizes cleaning bees for the restaurant, recruits volunteers, develops policies and procedures for the restaurant.

She is a talented seamstress who makes clothing for her granddaughters, wedding and prom dresses, upholstery, repairs to a multitude of items such as replacing zippers, etc. and alterations. She knits and has donated prayer shawls to the Belltower Reformed Church prayer shawl ministry.

Shooks will be honored at the conclusion of the third annual Breezeway Cruise at Royal Farms in Atwood on Thursday, June 30, at about 7:45 p.m. She will also be a guest of honor in the Ellebration parade on Saturday, July 2.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

LOOKING BACK…

This school year marked the 50th anniversary of the last year Charlevoix High School occupied the building on Mason Street. To commemorate the milestone, over the past several months, the Courier has been publishing photos taken in the spring of 1961 by well-known photographer Bob Miles. The photos, and accompanying information were provided by Miles' son and Historical Society museum co-director David Miles.

It's only fitting that this week's photo, which marks the last in the 21-part series shows High school principal Harry Bingham (left) and school superintendent Roy Bennett looking over plans for the new high school that would open in the fall of 1961 at East Garfield and May Streets. That building is now the middle school. The old high school, which had served the town for 60 years, would then be torn down. In its place currently stands the Community Room of the Charlevoix Public Library. A new historical photo series will start soon.

Host families sought for Belgian youth performers

Organizers of an upcoming international youth performance in Charlevoix are seeking host families to house the performers while they are in town.

Symbolica an all-boy flag waving dance group from Belgium will present performance at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, July 13, at the Odmark Pavilion in Charlevoix.

Gary Stutzman, who is helping organize housing in Charlevoix-area homes for the troupe, said housing is needed for 44 youth and 11 chaperones from Wednesday, July 13, to Thursday, July 14. Stutzman said the performers will go home with their hosts after their rehearsal in the afternoon on July 13. The performers must be back to East Park for their evening performance and will depart the city at about 9:30 a.m. July 14.

Anyone who is interested serving as a host to the performers may call Stutzman at (231) 675-4800.

Symbolica consists boys between 11 and 18 years of age from the town of Genk, Belgium. The group was founded in 1969 in the Sint-Jan Berchmans College in Genk and is still connected to the school. In 2009, Symbolica celebrated its 40th year by developing a completely new show "Rhythm & Flags" which portrays the group's new feeling of strength and dynamism. The show's fresh content showcases the typical Flemish folk art of flag dancing in a new way.

The event will also include a performance by the Zirka Ukranain Dance Ensemble from, Dauphine, Canada. "Zirka" translates from Ukrainian to "Star" and the group's dazzling performances prove they live up to the name. Since their inception in 1972, the main goal of Zirka has been to preserve and promote the rich Ukrainian heritage through Ukrainian dance and authentic costumes from the various regions of Ukraine.

The performances, which are free, are a part of the Children of the World in Harmony Youth Choir and Dance Festival produced by Voices Without Borders Inc.

Rayders finish seventh at Division III state finals

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

EAST LANSING —Strong competition, yet a strong finish for the Charlevoix High School boys' golf team.

Charlevoix finished in seventh place at the Michigan High School Athletic Association Division III boys' golf state finals Friday and Saturday at Forest Akers West on the campus of Michigan State University.

The Rayders shot 326 323—649, which was just five shots out of a top five finish and just 10 strokes away from a potential second place finish.

Jackson Lumen Christi won the Division III state title as they shot 297-302—599, while Grand Rapids South Christian was second, 314-325—639; and Grosse Ile was third, 324-317 - 641. Pontiac Notre Dame Prep, 325-319—644; and Grand Rapids West Catholic, 316-328 —644, finished tied for fourth, while Detroit Country Day, 324-322—646, was sixth.

Aaron Knutson of Pontiac Notre Dame Prep was the individual Division III state champion as he shot 68-72—140. Knutson earned the title in a playoff against Grand Rapids West Catholic's Sam Weatherhead as he birdied the first playoff hole.

The Rayders, who qualified for the state finals by capturing a regional title on their home course at the Charlevoix Golf and Country Club less than two weeks ago, finished eighth in the state finals a year ago, and 12th in 2009.

"We shot two very solid rounds," first-year Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said. "I was very proud of the kids and we shot below average on both days, which was nice. Not everything went our way, but all-in-all, it went well."

Senior Wyatt Drost capped his solid prep career with a ninth place individual finish, earning him Division III All-State honors as he shot 76-75—151.

"Wyatt (Drost) had two solid rounds," Grunch said. "He was so determined going in and ever since regionals he's wanted to do so well. For him to get all-regional and then all-state was fantastic. For him and all the seniors, it was a great experience and a great way to end things."

"For our sophomores, it was a great experience for both of them," Grunch said. "Tanner Catt did a great job as did all our kids with the entire experience, the tournament atmosphere with a large gallery. The experience will definitely help us out the next time we're down there.

"The big thing we learned is that the players there are no different," added Grunch. "The goal is to have fun and post a number at the end of the day. Most of the schools there were from the area and I'm sure they've likely to have soene the course a couple dozen times. We saw it just once."

Tommy Conway of Jackson Lumen Christi was third overall at 70-73—143, while Michael Zausmer of Detroit Country Day was fourth, 72-74—146.

Austin Eccleton of Jackson Lumen Christi rounded out the top five finishing fifth at 72-75—147.

Softball tournament highlights

The annual Leroy Buchanan Memorial Fast Pitch Softball Tournament in Charlevoix welcomed 25 girls' teams from all over the state to the Carpenter Street Fields Saturday in three divisions, 12-under, 14-under and 16-under. More than 50 games took place over the course of the weekend. Teams representing the likes of Petoskey, Sault Ste. Marie, Mount Pleasant, Traverse City, Ann Arbor/Milan/Canton, Saginaw, Midland and Alpena will took part in the event, which is named in honor of the late Leroy Buchanan, a legendary figure in Charlevoix and Petoskey softball circles who died in November, 2009. Buchanan was inducted in the Michigan Amateur Softball Association Hall of Fame in 2006. Results of the tournament were not available at press time.

The Belvedere Golf Club will host the 6th annual Belvedere Hickory Open Friday-Sunday, June 23-25.

According to organizers, hickory golfers are coming to Northern Michigan from Texas, North Carolina, Virginia, Rhode Island, Florida, Wisconsin, Ohio, Missouri, Alabama, Georgia and Canada for this year's event. Participants have come from as far away as Manchester, England in past Belvedere Hickory Opens.

The two-day competition is played with authentic pre-1935 hickory-shafted golf clubs and competitors dress in period-appropriate apparel which includes knickers, ties and jackets. The competition takes place under the auspices of the Society of Hickory Golfers, a national hickory organization which celebrates and promotes the hickory game of the 1910s – 1930s.

"Hickory golf is fast becoming a popular diversion from today's modern game of steroid-type 300+ yard drives, tricked-up 7,600 yard golf courses, and golfers more concerned with their cell phones and the beer cart girl than the game of golf" Belvedere Head Golf Professional Dennis "Marty" Joy II said. "The hickory golfer is a student of the game, usually very interested and knowledgeable about the history of the game, its champions and its classic courses."

Joy said hickory golfers vary in their aptitude. Most are bogey golfers with a passion for the game; however, the champion at Belvedere has historically had to put two rounds in the mid to low 70s together to win.

Joy noted that Belvedere Golf Club, established in 1925, is the perfect hickory venue as it was built in the heyday of hickory golf. All of the greens are accessible in front and the bunkering is laid out precisely were hickory clubs want to send errant golf balls. Major golf champions Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Horton Smith, Denny Shute, Jock Hutchison and Leo Diegel have all competed at the Belvedere Golf Club with hickory clubs. Tom Watson (a modern-day major champion) is an honorary member of the club and still considers Belvedere Golf Club as one of his top three favorite courses in the country, Joy said. He added that The Belvedere Hickory Open has become "The Hickory Event of the Season" (with the exception of the National Championship).

Tee times for both Friday, June 24 and Saturday, June 25, begin at 9:30 a.m. Spectators are welcome to walk the course and take in the competition at no charge. Competitors enjoy lavish parties and entertainment every evening.

Up North Fourth on tap

New downtown festival seeks to capture backyard picnic flavor

Seeking to capitalize on Fourth of July festivities that bring thousands to Northern Michigan each summer, downtown Charlevoix merchants and business leaders have created a new festival dubbed the Up North Fourth.

Organizers said the festival will capture an authentic Northern Michigan backyard picnic experience on a grand scale in a celebration of local flavors and marvelous music.

The first-ever Up North Fourth will take place beginning at 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 2 in downtown Charlevoix's East Park. The event provides plenty of local flavors with more than 10 varieties of beer offered by Bellaire-based Short's Brewery.

Food offerings will include everything from ribs to pulled pork and potato salad offered by Friske Orchards or Cross Fisheries whitefish tacos prepared by local chefs. Proceeds generated by the Short's Brewery Experience will benefit "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful," the local non-profit organization behind Charlevoix's famous petunias.

Festivities kick off at 4 p.m. with music and entertainment throughout the evening by rockabilly and honky-tonk entertainers Delilah DeWylde and the Lost Boys and the "Afro-Caribbean-Barnyard-Funk" of Euforquestra. Hula-hoopers and West African hand-drumming ensembles will march the harbor and festival grounds to entertain the crowd. All performances will take place in East Park's Odmark Performance Pavilion.

General admission tickets are $10 in advance and $15 at the door (kids 5 and under are free). The Short's Brewery Experience offers a commemorative pint glass and five 7-ounce pours for an additional $20. Extra pours will be available for purchase. Event hours are 4-8 p.m. Tickets for the Up North Fourth are available at downtown Charlevoix merchant Ga Ga for Kids and The Chamber of Commerce and online at www.porterhouseproductions.com. Organizers are encouraging those wishing to attend to purchase tickets in advance as the festival is expected to sell out.

Up North Fourth is presented by the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau, Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, Porterhouse Productions, Downtown merchants and community volunteers. Board to consider fate of planning department

SHERI MCWHIRTER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is set to consider the future of the county's planning department and will discuss expected maintenance costs of a proposed non-motorized trail along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road at its meeting slated for 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 22.

With the state's deadline to bring Charlevoix County's planning laws into compliance with three-year-old legislation fast approaching, officials must decide whether to amend the county's existing ordinance that established the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, or adopt an altogether new one that would set up the commission under new state mandates. The ongoing discussion also launched debate about whether to abolish the commission or even the county's planning department.

Decisions are expected at Wednesday's board of commissioners meeting in Charlevoix, just under the state's July 1 deadline.

Larry Sullivan, the county's planner since 1981, has previously said he intends to retire in two years.

Sullivan currently is away from work on medical leave and could not be reached for comment.

Several board members said it may be best to wait until Sullivan is retired to make any major changes to the county's established planning system.

"I think things are going to stay as they are until Larry retires," said Joel Evans, board chairman.

Commissioners Bob Drebenstedt and Ron Reinhardt echoed that perspective.

Ross Maxwell, manager of Charlevoix County Parks and Recreation, is scheduled to appear for a discussion about expected maintenance costs for a proposed, non-motorized recreational trail along the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road right-of-way.

The issue remains a point of contention.

County leaders agreed in March to submit an application for a $300,000 grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund for the project, but only after refusing to pay for upkeep on the pathway. Some suggested the grant has little chance for approval without some government or nonprofit entity accepting responsibility for required maintenance.

Northern Michigan Review acquires CMD Phonebook

HEATHER LOCKWOOD

HEATHER LOCKWOOD/NEWS-REVIEW

Petoskey News-Review publisher Doug Caldwell (left), and chief financial officer Larry Hensley announce that Northern Michigan Review Inc. has purchased Central Michigan Directories Phonebook.

Northern Michigan Review is growing.

The company, which publishes the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier has purchased CMD (Central Michigan Directories) Phonebook.

News-Review publisher Doug Caldwell said the new investment is a positive step toward the company's continued growth. The purchase was effective as of Monday.

"This is a very fortuitous opportunity for our company to expand. We feel like there is a natural synergy between our products," Caldwell said.

CMD Phonebook currently serves Clare, Gladwin, Isabella, Gratiot and Midland counties, with a distribution of 111,000, said Petoskey News-Review chief financial officer and publisher of the PhoneGuide and CMD Phonebook Larry Hensley.

Caldwell and Hensley said this opportunity allows Northern Michigan Review to expand its resources in the independent yellow pages.

"It allows Northern Michigan Review to have a larger coverage area than what we currently do," Hensley said. "It allows our readers, advertisers, employees, audience, a much broader scale than what we currently offer."

Caldwell added, "We look at this as a viable investment in Mount Pleasant and central Michigan and we're looking forward to those opportunities."

Along with the News-Review, Northern Michigan Review publications include the PhoneGuide phone directories, Charlevoix Courier and Gaylord Herald Times newspapers, entertainment publication The Graphic and HomeLife and GoodLife magazines. The combined coverage area of these publications includes Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego, Mackinac, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Antrim, Kalkaska, Crawford, Montmorency, Oscoda and Roscommon counties.

Northern Michigan Review is a subsidiary of Schurz Communications Inc., a privately-owned company headquartered in South Bend, Ind.

New weather alert siren now in use

STEVE ZUCKER
CHARLEVOIX
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix emergency officials were slated to test a newly installed weather alert siren for the first time at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 21.

Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said the new warning signal comes from the same device located atop the Charlevoix City Hall building that currently sounds at noon and at the 9:30 p.m. curfew, but it sounds very different.

He said recent bouts of severe weather that have wreaked havoc in southern portions of the country and some recent storm systems have caused some area emergency crews to be placed on alert, got local emergency officials thinking about how to better warn people here.

Ivan said an effort is under way to coordinate with other Charlevoix County municipalities which have existing sirens, such as Charlevoix Township, East Jordan and Boyne City and Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet Central Dispatch in hopes of creating a county-wide system that would operate under the same criteria. Although some details of those plans are still being finalized, the cities of Boyne City and East Jordan also participated in the test Tuesday. Plans call for the siren to be tested monthly at 7 p.m. on the first Tuesday of the month.

He said the tests will serve a two-fold purpose: To make sure that the system is working and to let residents know what the warning will sound like in the event of an emergency.

Ivan noted that the system will be triggered remotely, either by fire crews who have spotted an immediate threat, such as a tornado, or by dispatchers at the 9-1-1 dispatch center.

To avoid de-sensitizing residents to its use, Ivan said besides the monthly tests the siren will only be used in instances where there is an imminent serious threat approaching the area. He also noted that using consistent county-wide warning signal will aid citizens in identifying the signal and what it stands for, regardless of which community they are in around the county.

"In the summer time people are often outside and away from typical means of receiving weather warnings," Ivan said. "We want people to know that if you hear this siren you better be taking cover — immediately."

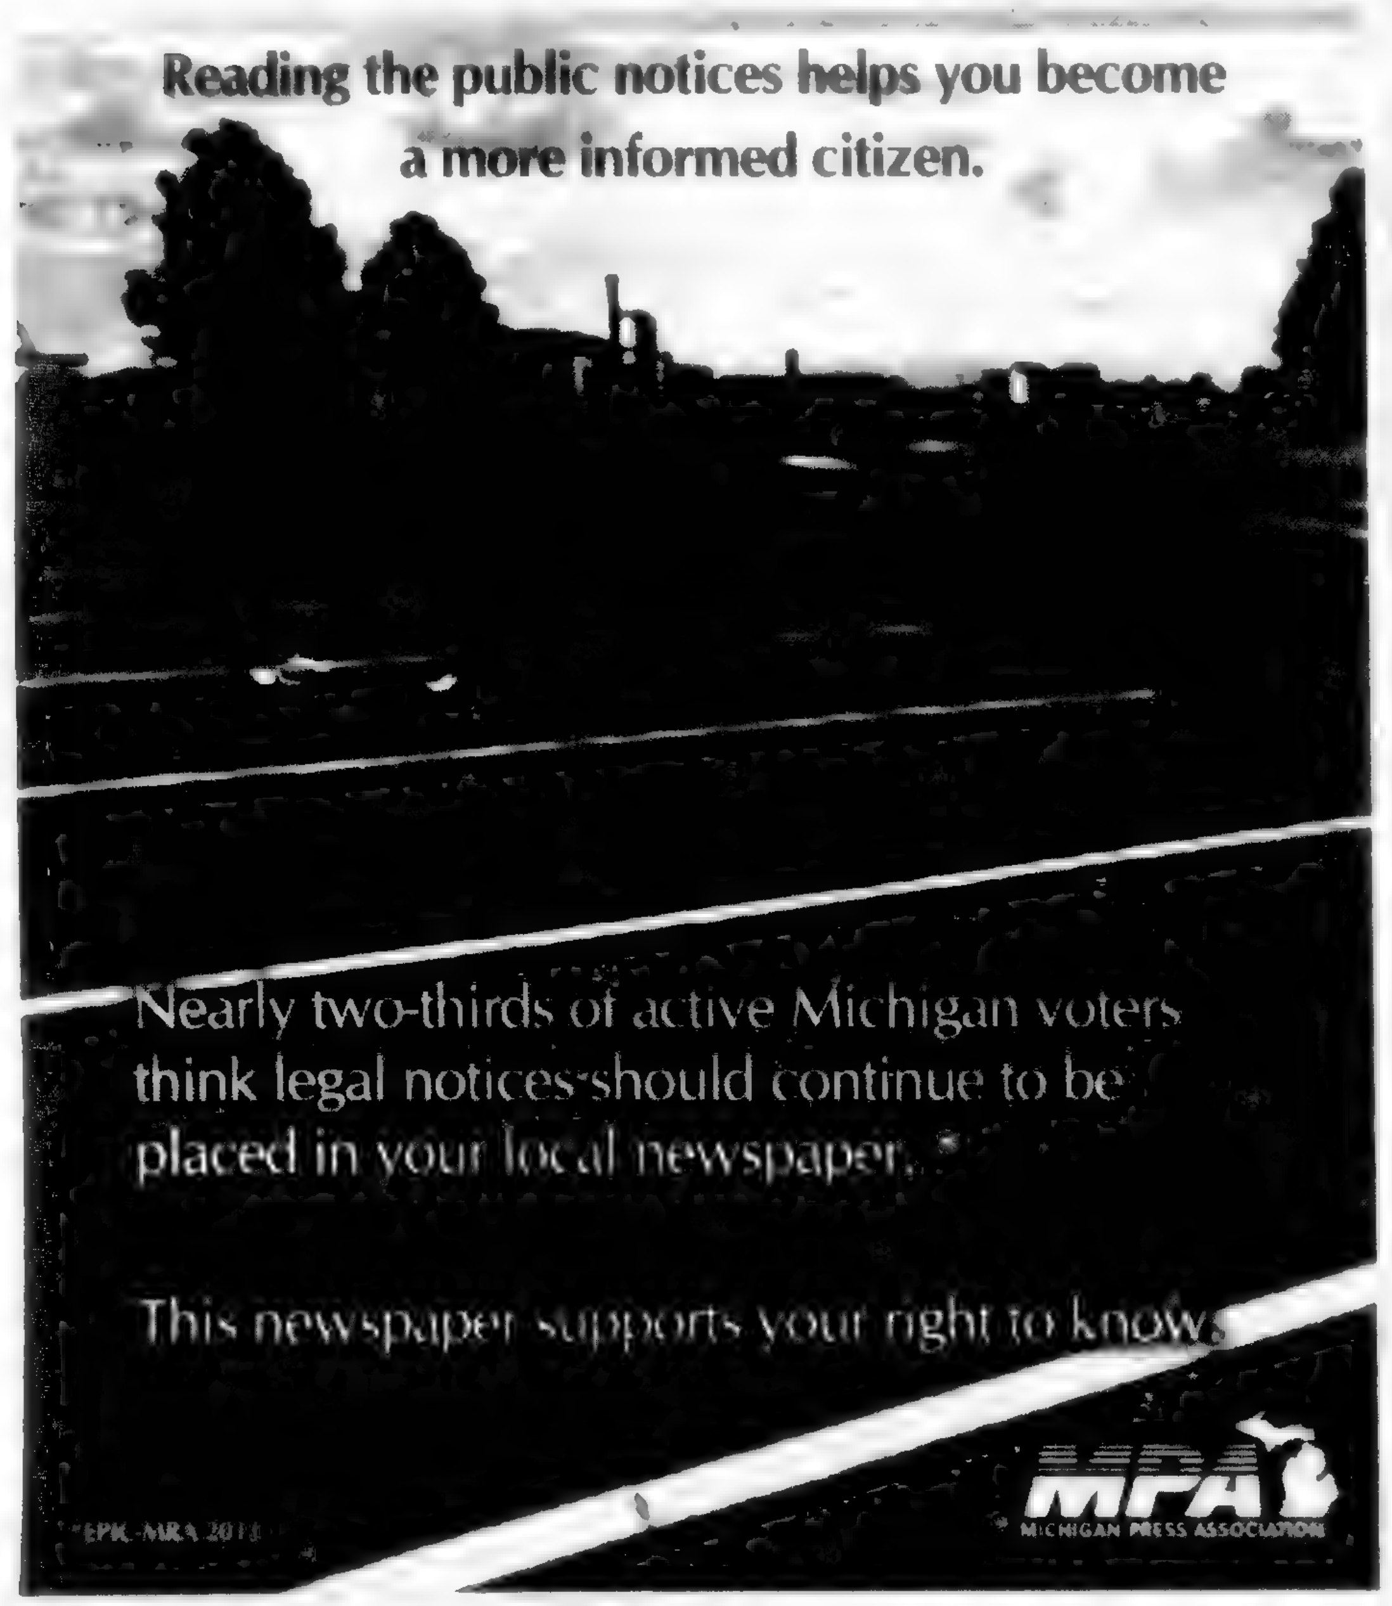
Why do we need public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.



Reading the public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

This newspaper supports your right to know.

NOTICE

This firm is a debt collector attempting to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for this purpose. If you are in the Military, please contact our office at the number listed below. Notwithstanding, if the debt secured by this property was discharged in a Chapter 7 Bankruptcy proceeding, this notice is NOT an attempt to collect that debt. You are presently in default under your Mortgage Security Agreement, and the Mortgage Holder may be contemplating the commencement of foreclosure proceedings under the terms of that Agreement and Michigan law. You have no legal obligation to pay amounts due under the discharged note. A loan modification may not serve to revive that obligation. However, in the event you wish to explore options that may avert foreclosure, please contact our office at the number listed below. Attention: The following notice shall apply only if the property encumbered by the mortgage described below is claimed as a principal residence exempt from tax under section 7cc of the general property tax act, 1893 PA 206, MCL 211.7cc. Attention Sandra K. Argue and William J. Argue II, regarding the property at 334 Hannah St Boyne City, MI 49712. The following notice does not apply if you have previously agreed to modify the mortgage loan under section 3205b. 3205a, 3205b and 3205c do not apply unless the terms of the modified mortgage loan entered into were complied with for one year after the date of the modification. You have the right to request a meeting with your mortgage holder or mortgage servicer. Potestivo & Associates, P.C. is the designee with authority to make agreements under MCL 600.3205b and MCL 600.3205c, and can be contacted at: 811 South Blvd., Suite 100 Rochester Hills, MI 48307 (248) 844-5123. You may also contact a housing counselor. For more information, contact the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) by visiting www.michigan.gov/mshda or calling (866) 946-7432. If you request a meeting with Potestivo & Associates, P.C. within 14 days after the notice required under MCL 600.3205a(1) is mailed, then foreclosure proceedings will not commence until at least 90 days after the date said notice was mailed. If an agreement to modify the mortgage loan is reached and you abide by the terms of the agreement, the mortgage will not be foreclosed. You have the right to contact an attorney and can obtain contact information through the State Bar of Michigan's Lawyer Referral Service at (800) 968-0738.

Blood drives — As spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-RED-CROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

HEATHER LOCKWOOD/NEWS-REVIEW

Emergency officials investigate the scene of Friday night's fatal plane crash in Charlevoix, Saturday morning.

CHARLEVOIX — Police have identified the three people involved in Friday night's fatal plane crash in Charlevoix, and they say this is not the first time two of the victims were involved in such an incident.

Charlevoix City Police Department Deputy Chief Scott Hankins said the licensed pilot and medical doctor Stephen Hatch, 46, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and his wife, Kimberly or "Kim" Hatch, 44, died as a result of the crash.

Stephen's son, Austin Hatch, 16, and a member of the 2013 University of Michigan basketball team's recruiting class, survived the crash. Kim was Austin's stepmother.

An official at Munson Medical Center said Austin was in critical condition Saturday. When the Petoskey News-Review called Munson Monday, an official who answered the phone in the corporate communications and marketing department said he had no information on anyone by the name of Austin Hatch.

The Associated Press reports Austin is to be taken out of his drug-induced coma. He sustained brain bruising and swelling and deep facial cuts as a result of Friday's crash.

Austin was transferred to Munson from Northern Michigan Regional Hospital in Petoskey some time after the crash.

The private plane crashed into the garage of an unoccupied residence at 221 West Carpenter Avenue about 7:22 p.m.

The Charlevoix City Fire Department, Michigan State Police and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office also responded the crash.

Hankins said an investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board is ongoing.

Elizabeth Isham Cory, a public affairs contact with the FAA, said the National Transportation Safety Board is leading the investigation. She said the investigation will be ongoing for at least 12-18 months, as is typical.

According to The Associated Press, safety board spokesman Keith Holloway said investigators were on the scene Saturday and would be examining the aircraft, interviewing witnesses and requesting air traffic control communications and radar data. He expected a preliminary report within 10 days and a final report determining a cause within 18 months.

"It appears that they were trying to land, but we don't know," Hankins told the Petoskey News-Review Friday night.

The Federal Aviation Administration reports the aircraft registered as a 1975 Beech A36 fixed wing, single engine aircraft registered to Microjet LLC of Fort Wayne, Ind. According to Flight Aware, a tracking website, the plane departed at 5:45 p.m. from Smith Field airport in Fort Wayne.

An earlier tragedy

Hankins said it is his understanding, and other news outlets have reported, that Stephen and Austin were involved in a plane crash in 2003, during which Stephen was the pilot. Stephen's wife at the time and two children were killed as a result of that crash, Hankins said.

The Associated Press reports, Stephen and Austin, who was then 8, survived the earlier crash near Fort Wayne. They had been returning from the family's summer home on Walloon Lake — the same place they were flying to Friday when their single-engine plane crashed into a garage near the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, said Dr. G. David Bojrab, a partner with Stephen in Pain Management Associates in Fort Wayne.

Charlevoix to host new festival, Up North Fourth

RACHEL BROUGHAM
STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — A new festival in Charlevoix aims to fill a long-time void.

The Up North Fourth will take place from 4-8 p.m. on Saturday, July 2, in Charlevoix's East Park.

The festival features a variety of picnic-style foods, live music and a sampling of beers from local microbrewery, Short's Brewery in Bellaire.

"We have never had much going on for the Fourth of July and people always ask us when they are visiting, 'What's going on for the Fourth?' We've never really had an event for the holiday and we do now," explained Amanda Wilkin, executive director of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The newly created festival is presented by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, Porterhouse Productions, an event planning firm out of Traverse City, and countless volunteers and area merchants.

Wilkin noted Up North Fourth will serve partly as a replacement for the Taste of Charlevoix which did not take place this year.

Up North Fourth will feature picnic-style food including ribs, pulled pork and potato salad from Friske Orchards, whitefish tacos from Cross Fisheries, along with some vegetarian options.

The festivities kick off at 4 p.m. with live music and entertainment throughout the evening, including national touring bands Delilah DeWylde and the Lost Boys which is a rockabilly band, and Euforquestra, a band which describes itself at Afro-Caribbean-Barnyard-Funk.

Hula-hoopers and a West African hand-drumming ensemble will also entertain the crowd.

AEBRA COE
STAFF WRITER

After reports of facing a million dollar budget deficit for the next school year, the Charlevoix school board passed a balanced budget at its meeting Monday, June 27.

That's because of, in large part, a two-year contract agreement between the school board and its teacher and support staff unions which nearly halves the district's budget deficit for the next school year.

Janik

The bad news is that, after the labor contract savings are figured in, the district was still left with a $600,000 budget hole to fill.

To that end, superintendent Chet Janik proposed budget cuts and some extra sources of revenue. The cuts, including several staff reductions, were approved by the board in a 4-2 vote. Valerie Snyder and Mike Pearsall voted against the budget as it was proposed, citing teaching staff reductions as the reason.

"We have had to make cuts every year and have reduced the number of employees in our district by 50 since 2003," said Janik. "We tried to find common ground and keep cuts away from the classroom."

A teaching staff reduction of five people includes a position at the middle school that won't be refilled following retirement, eliminating computers as a "specials" class at the elementary school and an industrial technology teaching position that will be taught by a retiring teacher on a contract basis for a total savings of about $218,000.

Snyder, board treasurer, voted against the budget and said, "Laying off teachers should be the last thing we do, not the first when amending a budget."

She believes that the cuts go against the board's educational goals by eliminating an elementary school teacher, reducing budget for school supplies by one third and not bringing back

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Who is a veteran? It's not an easy question

You would think this is an easy question. In the hundreds of laws passed by the federal and state government over the years, you would think at least one of them would give a clear and concise definition of "military veteran."

The State of Michigan defines a veteran as a person, who served in the active military forces, during a period of war or who received the armed forces expeditionary or other campaign service medal during an emergency condition and who was discharged or released therefrom under honorable conditions. "Veteran" also includes a person who died in active military forces. Uniformity of Service Dates (Excerpt) Act 190 of 1965. MCLA 35.61.

What about the military person who served and protected in other than war time?

Consider the National Guard or the Reserves are they not veterans?

The U.S. Government has taken this confusion and chaos at least 20 steps further.

In actuality, there is no standardized legal definition of "military service" in the United States government. Veteran's benefits were not created all at the same time. They have been added one by one, by Congress, over the past 200 or so years. Each time Congress has enacted a new law authorizing and creating a new veteran benefit they have included eligibility requirements for that particular benefit. Whether or not you are considered a "veteran," in the eyes of the federal government, depends entirely upon which veteran program or benefit you are applying to use.

I wish I could give credit to the person who penned the following quote but the author is unknown. For my purposes this definition fits best:

Hess

"A veteran is someone, who at one point in their life, wrote a blank check made payable to the United States of America for any amount, up to and including their life."

During the course of serving our country, a service member accrues a series of military benefits. Once the service member is honorably discharged they may be able to draw upon these military benefits.

The military likes to describe an honorably discharged service member this way: "A service member who has been discharged in other than dishonorable conditions."

It's kind of like sneaking in the back door.

There is one common denominator that is normally connected to most military benefits.

That is the discharge paper. Also called the DD-214. Without this one piece of paper nothing else can happen. Honorable discharge for the purposes of military benefits also includes the term "general discharge." The type of discharge is listed, in a box, on the DD-214, termed "Character of Service."

I remember, on the day I was discharged, there was a gentleman standing in the front of the room packed with sub sailors waving a piece of paper and speaking loudly, "This is your DD-214, do not lose it. This piece of paper is the key to all and any military benefits you may receive from the U.S. government."

At the time that small piece of paper seemed insignificant in the whole scheme of things.

We just wanted to get as far away from that post or base as fast as possible and get on with our lives.

As time moved on some of us dimly remembered something about that small piece of paper. At some point in our lives we may have felt the need to determine if we were eligible to apply for any of our earned benefits. That benefit may be health related, educational benefits, veteran's home loans or any of the other benefits we earned. If you ever expect to receive military benefits this paper (DD-214) becomes golden.

At this time I would like to point out that military benefits, like social security, are not an entitlement, they are something service members have earned. The benefit has been paid for with your money or with your service. You made a contract with the federal government and you have fulfilled your part of the bargain. It is now time for the federal government to fulfill their end of the deal.

If you still have a copy of your DD-214, or discharge papers, take copies of them to the county clerk's office to be filed. This will insure that you or your legal representatives will always have access to copies of your discharge papers.

If you cannot find your discharge papers then go to your county veteran's affairs office. An officer at the office will file papers with state or federal offices to retrieve copies of your discharge papers for you.

Once you have received your copies of the DD-214 take a set of them to the county clerk's office for filing and safe keeping. Always retain a set for yourself.

In all probability, at some point in your life, you or your family will need this, not-so-insignificant piece of paper.

CRASH

"He was such a strong proponent of flying and teaching people to fly. ... I think he felt compelled to continue his passion," Bojrab said. "He felt compelled to show people that accidents do happen. He didn't want people to look in the other direction."

Bojrab said a 2005 federal report on the September 2003 crash found inaccurate preflight planning resulted in the plane not having enough fuel. The National Transportation Safety Board determined a utility pole the airplane hit during its forced landing, a low ceiling and dark night also contributed to the crash.

Bojrab said his friend disputed the report's findings, believing equipment failure caused the crash.

"When he crashed, it was an inferno, which makes you wonder how he could have been out of gas," Bojrab said.

Stephen saved Austin, but his other children — Lindsay, 11, and Ian, 5 — died along with his wife, Julie, 38.

"His wife and two children were in flames and he was never able to reach them," Bojrab said. "Steve reached over to his son who was sitting in front with him and tossed him out the window to save his life."

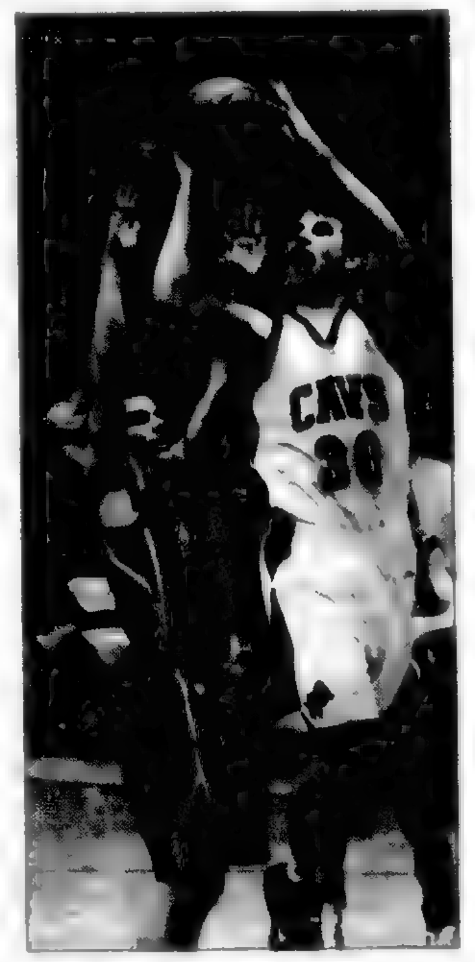
Canterbury School basketball coach Dan Kline said that everyone at the Fort Wayne school where Austin is a junior is stunned by the news of the crash and praying that Austin survives. He said it's "unbelievable" the boy is now the only survivor of his immediate family, The Associated Press reports.

"They're all gone," Kline said. "He's the only one left. What's the chance of that happening? A million to one, if that. It's just unbelievable."

Austin's maternal grandparents and his father's cousin have been at his bedside since shortly after Friday's crash, Kline said. His paternal grandparents and other relatives are returning from a trip to Spain and were expected to arrive Sunday afternoon.

Witnesses recall Friday's crash

Charlevoix resident Larry Nunemaker who lives at 1107 Beacon Street, a half a block from the crash site, said planes fly over his house all the time but the sound was anything but ordinary.



In this March file photo, Austin Hatch (right) shoots during the Indiana high school regional basketball tournament. Hatch remains in critical condition after a single-engine plane, flown by his father Dr. Stephen Hatch, crashed Friday in Charlevoix. Both Austin's father and stepmother were killed in the crash.

"It sounded like it was coming close to our house. The engine kept cutting out. He crossed over the houses at the end of Carpenter and drilled in Teuschers' garage (the family that owns the home at 221 West Carpenter Avenue). It was definitely having engine trouble coming on," he said.

Nunemaker then described the impact.

"It's that sickening thud you hear with a car crash — and then nothing," he said.

Nunemaker, a registered nurse, said he immediately left for the scene.

"I could not see anyone when I got there. The instinct with health care is you want to help, but I could smell fuel. It was very lucky it didn't go into a home full of people. There's not a whole lot left of the plane," he said.

Larry Shaver was cleaning out his truck a few houses away when he heard the crash.

"I ran over there, but like I said, I couldn't; I backed off as soon as I seen the fuel (leaking)," he said. "I told my wife to call 9-1-1, and my buddy, Dave, across the street was on the phone already."

Shaver described the noise as being a "whoosh."

'The apple of his dad's eye'

Bojrab said Austin was "the apple of his dad's eye," and Stephen took great pride in his son's athletic prowess.

Austin committed earlier this month to play basketball at the University of Michigan, where his father and mother went to school.

Austin told the Journal Gazette of Fort Wayne for a story published recently that he talked to Michigan coach John Beilein by phone and accepted a full-ride scholarship.

"It was a very special moment for me," Hatch told the newspaper. "There was no reason to wait. There's nothing I don't like about their program, and I couldn't turn it down."

Stephen said Austin "started thinking about it in elementary school, and it's neat to see it get to this point."

Beilein said in a statement that the university was saddened to hear about the tragedy affecting the Hatches.

"Austin needs as much support right now as possible and I know he will be in the thoughts and prayers of the Michigan family during this difficult time," Beilein said.

Bojrab said Stephen had planned to go to Spain to celebrate his parents' 50th wedding anniversary with the rest of his family, but he canceled the trip to spend time with Austin and his adult stepchildren.

"Steve was a very big family man," Bojrab said.

Another of his passions was Smith Field Airport, a small, historic airport near Fort Wayne. Bojrab said Hatch led a campaign several years ago to save it and bought the Smith Field Service Center and its flight school.

"He saved the property from being developed commercially," Bojrab said, adding that Hatch was instrumental in getting it on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Boss 60th wedding anniversary held June 23

They also had two exchange students who lived with them for nine months each: Hannelore Mueller, from Germany, and Harm Verbeek from the Netherlands.

Dale graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1949. He was an insurance agent and wholesale and retail milkman, and in later years, bought the Maxbauer Dairy, where he had worked since the age of 11. He had his own delivery truck when he was 14. He and his son, Bo, built the Village Milkhouse on Bridge Street, which was an ice cream parlor and take-out homemade diary products store

Dale and Marilyn built their first home together before they were married. They received the Golden Hammer Award from Mechanix Illustrated for building it themselves.

They were both born and raised in Charlevoix, and were childhood sweethearts. They were married in the Methodist Church June 23, 1951.

Dale originated the idea of a ski hill for the children of Charlevoix, and engaged several businessmen to join him in selling shares of stock at $10 a share to start the Mount McSauba ski hill. It is still a ski hill and summer camp for kids, and is now run by the city.

When he was 30 years old, and treasurer of the Community Reformed Church, he negotiated the purchase of 32 building lots, where they built the church. He was chairman of the building committee. Dale's cousin, Frank Boss, and Dale did their own contracting and oversaw the building of the church.

Dale served on the school board for 8 years, as treasurer, and he negotiated the purchase of several pieces of real estate from owners of property where the elementary school is built. He also acquired the Harsha home on State Street, given at no cost to the Historical Society by Anne Harsha for their museum. He personally oversaw the renovation of the building.

Dale had dreamed for years about planting petunias the length of the town, and with Bruce MacArthur, they began Operation Petunia, 30 years ago. The current watering truck is used in parades around the state. It is used in the summer to water the 60,000 petunias in Charlevoix. Marilyn painted all the petunias that decorate it. She rode with him for years, manipulating the controls that released the water on the flowers.

Marilyn graduated in 1950. She was a homemaker all her life, and raised seven children. She worked several years driving school bus, and was the first woman bus driver in Northern Michigan.

In 1987, she drew by hand, cut out, and painted hundreds of elves and other figures for their annual Christmas scene. The home is called "Santa's Workshop" at Christmas time. Dale and Marilyn are Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus on Christmas Eve each year.

Marilyn wrote several gospel songs, and the Gospel Publishing House published "Sweet, Sweet Spirit" in their Down Home Gospel book in 1985. She also wrote articles of Charlevoix people and happenings in years past, for the Charlevoix Courier from 1996 to 2006. She was president of the Charlevoix Historical Society for 3 years, and secretary of the Charlevoix County Republican Party for several years. She also served as Sunday school superintendent of the Assembly of God Church, and she was secretary of the Charlevoix PTA. She was an artist and sign painter.

Their greatest joy is being with their kids and grandkids, who get together each day at their home around 4 p.m. to discuss events and laugh about old times.

Decision delayed on Charlevoix County planning

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF REPORTER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners agreed to a one-week delay in its decision about how to comply with the state's latest planning legislation.

The commissioners on Wednesday set a special meeting for June 29 to finally tackle Michigan's Planning and Enabling Act of 2008. That's to meet the long-established July 1 deadline to either abolish the county's planning commission, or amend the ordinance that created that board in the late 1960s to comply with new state mandates.

Jason

"We're kind of getting right down to the end," said Dennis Jason, planning commission chairman.

A general consensus to continue with the status quo is expected to carry over to next week's vote, based on the board's discussion. Now comes the legal gymnastics.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema, also the commissioners' civil counsel, said a public hearing must be held if the board wants to rescind the ordinance that created the planning commission and adopt an altogether new one.

"My suggestion to the board would be to allow for a public hearing, to err on the side of caution and to err on the side of public input," Jarema said.

However, the prosecutor said the existing ordinance can be amended by a resolution, but it must appear on the board's agenda in advance. That did not happen for this week's meeting, hence the special meeting scheduled for next week.

Jarema

One commissioner said it's ridiculous that a special meeting must be held to meet the state's deadline when the legislation passed through Lansing three years ago. Commissioner Richard Gillespie said he's "flabbergasted."

"It's an embarrassment to me," he said.

Jarema said he could not find in the legislation what the penalty would be for missing the July 1 deadline, so he recommended the board take action before then.

Commissioners will meet at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, June 29, in the board's meeting room at the county building, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

Suzanne Malpass of East Jordan and Trish Morgan of Charlevoix have collaborated on a non-fiction tale for young animal lovers of all ages titled "Rusty Tries Growing Up."

Malpass relates the true childhood memories of her 88-year-old friend Bill Taylor, who was born and raised on the eastern shore of Maryland as the son of a veterinarian. The story details Taylor's personal experience when his pet goat develops lockjaw. This is Malpass's second true animal writing venture. Her first book, "Stony," relayed the event of a horse that fell into an Arizona well and the town that rallied to save it.

For long-time friend Trish Morgan, a Charlevoix watercolor artist, "Rusty Tries Growing Up" is her first foray into children's book illustrations.

"We conducted a lot of research into 1930s voice, clothing and lifestyle elements to keep the flavor of the time period," said Morgan.

The book is currently available at McLean & Eakin, Booksellers in Petoskey, the Local Flavor Books and Internet Cafe in Boyne City, Adams Madam in Central Lake, as well as the Busy Bridge Gifts and Antiques in East Jordan. There will be a book signing at the Busy Bridge from 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, July 9, in conjunction with the day-long South Arm classics — Classic Boat Show, Jordan Valley Car Show and Microbrew Fest. For more information, call (231) 544-6613.

OBITUARIES

Amy Lynn Beaudoin Siemion: Dec. 14, 1970 - June 27, 2011

Amy Lynn Beaudoin Siemion, 40, of Petoskey, died Monday, June 27, 2011, at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital in Petoskey. She was born Dec. 14, 1970, in Royal Oak, the daughter of David L. and Linda (Taggart) Beaudoin.

Amy graduated from Spring Lake High School in 1989, and was employed by Northern Michigan Sports Medicine Center in Charlevoix. Amy enjoyed being with her family and friends, going to Beaver Island, and gardening.

On May 21, 2011, Amy married Richard J. Siemion, Jr. in Petoskey. He survives her as does her brother and sister-in-law Bruce and Katie Beaudoin and their children Jake and Abby of Charlevoix; mother-in-law, Deb (Jack) Krass of Grand Haven; father-in-law, Rich (Paula) Siemion, Sr. of Manistee.

A memorial service will be take place at 6 p.m., Thursday, June 30, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where friends may meet her family beginning at 4 p.m. The Rev. David Behling will officiate. Amy will be buried next to her father on Beaver Island at a later date. Memorial contributions may be made to any county Humane Society.

Ed Oshaben: 1926 - June 17, 2011

On June 17, 2011, Ed Oshaben passed from this life to the next after an eight week struggle with heart problems. Ed is survived by his loving wife, Pat, with whom he enjoyed a wonderful 60-year marriage. Together, they raised Bruce Oshaben (Jane), Dave Oshaben (Pam) and Kathy Gallagher (Mike). Also surviving Ed are grandchildren Chris (Ann) and Kevin Gallagher and Nate, Nick and Erik Oshaben and one great-grandchild, Madeline Gallagher. Ed's sisters' Mary Sivec and Josephine Danel, brother, Bob Oshaben and many nieces and nephews also survive.

Born in St. Michael, Penn. in 1926, Ed was raised in Pennsylvania and graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with a bachelor's of science degree in electrical engineering. His engineering expertise was evident to all throughout his life and was with him even as he died. He proudly served his country in World War II and was discharged in 1946 as a private first class. After moving the family to Ann Arbor, Ed worked at the University of Michigan and oversaw the renovation and construction of many of the campus buildings. He then continued his service in the Michigan Air National Guard by overseeing electrical maintenance at Selfridge Air Force Base in Mount Clemens and achieved the rank of major. Ed was proud of his 21 years of service to his country.

Ed enjoyed traveling, always taking the circuitous route. He was sharp-witted and an avid reader. After retirement, he and Pat moved to Clam Lake in Bellaire where he took a special interest in activities of local politics, volunteered with the Three Lakes Association. He enjoyed trips back to Pennsylvania to see his family and his hobby of visiting garage sales during his travels was one of his fondest. He will be missed by all.

A Mass celebrating Ed's life took place at St. Luke's Catholic Church in Bellaire on Monday, June 27, at 11 am. Burial will take place at Fort Custer National Ceremony in Battle Creek at a later date. In lieu of flowers, Ed's family requests that donations in memory of Ed be made to the Wounded Warrior Project (woundedwarriorproject.org) or the Battle Creek Area Catholic Schools Foundation (bcacs.org).

Ethel M. Kroll, 90, of Ironton, passed away Friday, June 24, 2011, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Ethel was born March 9, 1921, in Detroit, the daughter of Gustav and Eline (Lund) Young. On Dec. 27, 1941, she married Earl Kroll in Detroit. They made their home in Charlevoix in 1945, then moved to Ironton where they've lived in the same home for the past 60 years. She was a member of the Ironton Congregational Church.

Ethel is survived by her husband Earl; children: Bruce Kroll of Beaufort, N.C., Kay Kroll of Wellington, Fla., Alan (Spring) Kroll of Holt, Paul (Brenda) Kroll of Mount Dora, Fla., and Norwood, Mark (Jan) Kroll of Wellington, Fla., Kevin (Suzanne) Kroll of Dewitt, Amy Kroll of Medford, Ore. and Ironton, Todd Kroll of Petoskey, Ann (Dan) Kroll Lemer of Jericho, Vt.; 14 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren; sister, Rita (Mike) Seiler of Denton, Texas.

Ethel's son Steven preceded her in death on June 18, 2011.

A memorial service will take place at a later date. Memorial contributions may be made to the Ironton Congregational Church, 03805 Washington Street, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is serving the family.

Judy Scurto, of Traverse City, passed away June 26, 2011, at the age of 72.

Judy was born to Tom and Anne Silvester of Dearborn, Mich., on Nov. 1, 1938: All Saints Day (as she liked to remind her family and friends).

Judy began her education by attending Greenfield Village. She later graduated from Dearborn High School (class of 1956) and attended the University of Colorado, Boulder.

Judy was passionate about many things, her family, chocolate, quilting, politics, jazz and volunteering, just to name a few. She had volunteered as a docent at the Dennos Museum in Traverse City, was the president of the Northwest Michigan Alzheimer Association, chairwoman for both the Strom for Schools and Ed McNamara for Mayor campaigns in Livonia, Mich., in the 1970s.

Judy was a past president of the Livonia School District PTA Council, and served as a planning commissioner for The City of Livonia. She also volunteered with The Camp Fire Girls, Cub Scouts, The Little Traverse Bay Quilters Guild and with the Head Start Program in Wayne County, Mich.

Judy is survived by Chris, her husband of more than 52 years, and their children Leslie and Fred Ritz, Chris and Robin Scurto, Tami and Mark Bumiller, and Thomas and Debra Scurto-Davis, as well as eight grandchildren and numerous friends throughout the country.

A memorial Mass will take place at 11 a.m. on Thursday, June 30, at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 13400 Center Road, Traverse City.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Munson Hospice House, 1105 Sixth St., Traverse City, Mich. 49684; or Cherryland Humane Society.

New offerings featured at Ironton Market

SATURDAY
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County is home to many small, locally owned shops and stores. Ironton Market is one of those, with a strong focus on its customers needs.

Matt and Lisa Claflin, owners of the Ironton Market, opened the store seven years ago with a goal of meeting their market's unique needs. Lisa comes from a long family history of local market ownership. Her grandparents owned Ed's Market in Elk Rapids for more than 40 years, which they then sold to Lisa's parents. Her parents currently own the Torch Lake Market.

"I basically grew up in and worked in local markets in Northern Michigan," Lisa noted. "Opening up our own market was a natural choice for us."

Matt and Lisa met in Maine while Lisa attended college at the University of Maine in Orono. Matt grew up in New Hampshire and was working in the area at the time. After they were married, Matt accepted a position in the Detroit area and they relocated there. The couple often visited and talked about raising their family in Northern Michigan.

Lisa's parents eventually offered the pair an opportunity to begin a business selling made-to-order pizza from their Torch Lake Market.

"When the opportunity opened up we decided to make the move," Matt said.

The couple ran the pizza business there for a few years before deciding to open their own store.

They now have three children, 7-year-old Jacob, 5-year-old Nathan and 6-month-old Emily. Emily is a landmark for the Claflins, being the first female child on Matt's side of the family in 125 years.

> "We get a really great response to many of our handmade items and requests for the recipes."
> \- Matt Claflin

Raising their children in Northern Michigan may have been a longtime dream come true, but the reality of the local economy can be harsh.

"It hasn't always been easy keeping the store going in this market," Matt noted. "Winter can be a pretty tough time, especially with the economy these days."

MARKET

"We've doubled our wine selection and continue to make changes to its content based on customer requests and sales," Lisa said. "We also do our best to carry the packaged liquor that best suits our customers."

Some of the other unique items available at the market are handmade bratwurst and fresh deli sandwiches, fresh cut deli meat from Boar's Head and a wide variety of cheeses. They also offer a full service meat counter featuring fresh cut beef, pork and poultry.

"Many of our offerings in the deli are old home recipes," Matt noted. "We get a really great response to many of our handmade items and requests for the recipes."

In 2009 the Claflins developed a souvenir Petoskey stone puzzle with the intention of marketing it locally to retailers. When they initially released the puzzle, they sold 3,500 of them in the first few months.

Realizing the potential of the new product, they decided to continue to offer them and expand the line if possible. They currently offer eight puzzles, all Michigan themed.

"I would estimate we'll sell about 25,000 puzzles in 2011," Matt said.

The Claflins said they believe that understanding the needs of the community around you can be the key to succeeding in a small business. The Ironton area has a large seasonal population and is located on Lake Charlevoix. The Ironton Market is now offering full service delivery to the boat launch down the street from their location.

"It's one unique service we offer exclusively in this area," Matt noted.

"Our custom made pizza to order has been a trademark for the store," Lisa added.

She attributes much of their success to date to the made from scratch pizza they offer.

"It's how our business began and we have a lot of repeat customers for the pizza," she said.

The market is located at 3619 M-66 in Ironton, just down the road from the boat launch and Ironton Ferry. Hours are 8 a.m.-8 p.m. every day.

For more information, call (231) 547-2444 or (231) 547-2448, or visit www.irontonmarket.com.

Norwood Township hosted Memorial Day event

Citizens of Norwood have been joining American Legion Post 488 in the Norwood Cemetery on Memorial Day for more than 60 years.

This year's cemetery service included a special dedication of a new Veterans Memorial.

While local residents have contemplated a memorial marker in the Norwood Cemetery for some time, the successful drive which culminated in this year's dedication had its beginnings in 2003. Memorial Day's keynote speaker, Kurt Kooyer, noted that in that year's service, special tribute was paid to Norwood resident Private First Class Delta Richardson, who was killed in Normandy during World War II. While other tributes honoring servicemen from Norwood have included a special grave decoration by the veterans, this didn't happen in 2003.

Kooyer explains, "While Richardson is from Norwood, he isn't buried there. He is buried in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix."

As a result, in lieu of a grave to decorate, a wreath was placed in Richardson's honor at the flagpole in 2003.

That marked the beginning of an effort by a number of township residents to erect a monument in the Norwood Cemetery that would honor the service of veterans and stand in special recognition of those local citizens who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of country.

At the historic service, supervisor Frank Hamilton thanked St. Marys Cement Company for donating a granite boulder and Way Transportation for making installation possible. Special guests of honor included local veterans of World War II and the Korean War era: George Light, Tom Carey, Rich Bartosik, Bob Kuhn and Allan Potter. All those in attendance with a history of military service and ties to the township posed for a photograph with the new memorial.

It's inscribed plaque reads: "In honor of those who served this country and its citizens: because of their service, valor, and sacrifice, we are free. They will not be forgotten."

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

As the season in Charlevoix draws ever so near, so too does the 81st Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival. Our Venetian homecoming celebration and its amazing array of activities has become a fabric of life in Charlevoix, thanks in great measure to the Venetian Burgee Club, whose ranks consist of those individuals, businesses and organizations who faithfully and generously contribute funds, goods and services to Venetian. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2010 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

If you or any of your friends or family have ever enjoyed any Venetian activities, please consider the fact that all of the major events and entertainment of Venetian are absolutely free. Yet it still costs the Venetian volunteer organization upwards of $250,000.00 to stage the premier festival, which is why your help is needed to maintain the quality entertainment and activities of Venetian.

This year's Festival, which will take place from July 16, 2011 through July 23, 2011, will again be shaped by your donations. Please don't look away when it is time to contribute, and otherwise take this opportunity to enlist and/or re-enlist in the Burgee Club, by forwarding your 2011 donation with the Enrollment Form located below. Best wishes for a summer season filled with the kind and generous spirit of Venetian.

"We've doubled our wine selection and continue to make changes to its content based on customer requests and sales," Lisa said. "We also do our best to carry the packaged liquor that best suits our customers."

Some of the other unique items available at the market are handmade bratwurst and fresh deli sandwiches, fresh cut deli meat from Boar's Head and a wide variety of cheeses. They also offer a full service meat counter featuring fresh cut beef, pork and poultry.

"Many of our offerings in the deli are old home recipes," Matt noted. "We get a really great response to many of our handmade items and requests for the recipes."

In 2009 the Claflins developed a souvenir Petoskey stone puzzle with the intention of marketing it locally to retailers. When they initially released the puzzle, they sold 3,500 of them in the first few months.

Realizing the potential of the new product, they decided to continue to offer them and expand the line if possible. They currently offer eight puzzles, all Michigan themed.

"I would estimate we'll sell about 25,000 puzzles in 2011," Matt said.

The Claflins said they believe that understanding the needs of the community around you can be the key to succeeding in a small business. The Ironton area has a large seasonal population and is located on Lake Charlevoix. The Ironton Market is now offering full service delivery to the boat launch down the street from their location.

"It's one unique service we offer exclusively in this area," Matt noted.

"Our custom made pizza to order has been a trademark for the store," Lisa added.

She attributes much of their success to date to the made from scratch pizza they offer.

"It's how our business began and we have a lot of repeat customers for the pizza," she said.

The market is located at 3619 M-66 in Ironton, just down the road from the boat launch and Ironton Ferry. Hours are 8 a.m.-8 p.m. every day.

Norwood Township hosted Memorial Day event

Citizens of Norwood have been joining American Legion Post 488 in the Norwood Cemetery on Memorial Day for more than 60 years.

This year's cemetery service included a special dedication of a new Veterans Memorial.

While local residents have contemplated a memorial marker in the Norwood Cemetery for some time, the successful drive which culminated in this year's dedication had its beginnings in 2003. Memorial Day's keynote speaker, Kurt Kooyer, noted that in that year's service, special tribute was paid to Norwood resident Private First Class Delta Richardson, who was killed in Normandy during World War II. While other tributes honoring servicemen from Norwood have included a special grave decoration by the veterans, this didn't happen in 2003.

Kooyer explains, "While Richardson is from Norwood, he isn't buried there. He is buried in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix."

As a result, in lieu of a grave to decorate, a wreath was placed in Richardson's honor at the flagpole in 2003.

That marked the beginning of an effort by a number of township residents to erect a monument in the Norwood Cemetery that would honor the service of veterans and stand in special recognition of those local citizens who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of country.

At the historic service, supervisor Frank Hamilton thanked St. Marys Cement Company for donating a granite boulder and Way Transportation for making installation possible. Special guests of honor included local veterans of World War II and the Korean War era: George Light, Tom Carey, Rich Bartosik, Bob Kuhn and Allan Potter. All those in attendance with a history of military service and ties to the township posed for a photograph with the new memorial.

It's inscribed plaque reads: "In honor of those who served this country and its citizens: because of their service, valor, and sacrifice, we are free. They will not be forgotten."

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

As the season in Charlevoix draws ever so near, so too does the 81st Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival. Our Venetian homecoming celebration and its amazing array of activities has become a fabric of life in Charlevoix, thanks in great measure to the Venetian Burgee Club, whose ranks consist of those individuals, businesses and organizations who faithfully and generously contribute funds, goods and services to Venetian. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2010 Venetian Burgee Club who are reflected below.

If you or any of your friends or family have ever enjoyed any Venetian activities, please consider the fact that all of the major events and entertainment of Venetian are absolutely free. Yet it still costs the Venetian volunteer organization upwards of $250,000.00 to stage the premier festival, which is why your help is needed to maintain the quality entertainment and activities of Venetian.

This year's Festival, which will take place from July 16, 2011 through July 23, 2011, will again be shaped by your donations. Please don't look away when it is time to contribute, and otherwise take this opportunity to enlist and or re-enlist in the Burgee Club, by forwarding your 2011 donation with the Enrollment Form located below. Best wishes for a summer season filled with the kind and generous spirit of Venetian.

Hickory Open: a classic experience

More than 20 golfers gathered over the weekend for the 6th annual Belvedere Hickory Open at storied Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix. The Hickory is one of several tournaments played around the country during which the participants use hickory-shafted clubs with leather grips and dress in period garb from the 1920s and '30s. The Belvedere is the perfect venue for such an event, as it was built during the time period when the biggest names in golf were Sarazen, Jones and Hagen. Playing the Belvedere is like a walk back in time, and the players, dressed in knickers, high socks and classic headware, make for the ultimate in classic golf experiences.

Charlevoix soccer players among those recognized

Smith

Joseph

Two Charlevoix High School soccer players, senior Taylor Smith and junior Savannah Joseph, earned All State recognition in Division IV from the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association.

Smith was named to the first team, while Joseph received honorable mention

Smith, a four year letter winner and team captain, led Charlevoix to its fourth consecutive district championship and a berth in a regional title game. She finished with 17 goals, nine assists and is headed to Northern Michigan University.

Joseph, a center-back, was Charlevoix's defensive leader. She was also a team captain.

They were among seven area players who received All-State recognition.

The others were Emily Ford of Harbor Springs, first team, Division IV; Holly Laser of Petoskey, second-team Division II; Haley Kloss, third-team, Division IV; Kate Johnson of Petoskey, honorable mention, Division II; and Natascha Vinz, Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy, honorable mention, Division IV.

Local bicycle shop lives united

Happiness comes on two wheels!

That is how it arrived for 24 children in our community.

For the third year, Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike of Charlevoix spearheaded the Bikes for Kids project. Morris wanted to give back to his community, so he contacted Char-Em United Way and asked for help in donating some bikes.

Morris said, "I wanted to reach out on a local level in a way that gets bikes to kids who otherwise could not afford them. It feels good and benefits all of us by re-using and re-cycling a great product."

"We jumped right on this opportunity and worked with the YMCA of Northern Michigan to get the bikes to kids who otherwise wouldn't have one this summer," said Martha Lancaster, executive director of Char-Em United Way.

This year, bike helmets were also provided for each child who needs one, through fundraising proceeds of the annual Ride the Charx bike event. Fletch's provided a truck to transport the bikes back to the Y-Center.

"Char-Em United Way was thrilled to bring together this great collaboration. The donation of bikes and helmets fits perfectly with United Way's focus area of improving health and wellness. All of these partners are truly LIVING UNITED. Giving back to our community, volunteering their time, and advocating for happier life for others," said Lancaster.

"The YMCA is so glad to help match bikes with families that can use them," said Larry Wood, executive director. "This is right in keeping with our mission of youth development, healthy living, and social responsibility. And it's a lot of fun."

Should your business want to follow Chet Morris and LIVE UNITED, please contact United Way with your ideas.

Call United Way at (231) 487-1006 or email to info@charemunitedway.org. If you have a donation, United Way will find a way to help you make a positive impact in our community.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE CASH IN ON MODERN DAY GOLD RUSH!

By Jason Delong
STAFF WRITER

Got gold? Next week, visitors can cash in on antiques, collectibles, gold, silver, coins

Yesterday at the Terrace Inn, hundreds lined up to cash in antiques, collectibles, gold and jewelry at the Treasure Hunters Roadshow. The free event is in Petoskey all week, buying gold, silver, antiques and collectibles. One visitor I spoke with yesterday said, "It's unbelievable, I brought in some old coins that had been in a little cigar box for years and some old herringbone necklaces—in less than fifteen minutes I left with a check for $700. That stuff has been in my jewelry box and dresser for at least 20 years." Another gentleman brought in an old Fender guitar his father had bought years ago. The man said, "Dad had less than fifty bucks in that guitar." The Roadshow specialist that assisted him made a few phone calls and a veterinarian in Seattle, Washington bought the guitar for $5,700.00. The seller continued, "I got another $150.00 for a broken necklace and an old class ring. It's not every day that someone comes to town bringing six thousand dollars with your name on it."

Jeff Parsons, President of the Treasure Hunters Roadshow, commented, "Lots of people have items that they know are valuable but just don't know where to sell them. Old toys, trains, swords, guitars, pocket watches or jewelry is valuable to collectors. These collectors are willing to pay big money for those items that they are looking for."

This week's Roadshow is the best place to get connected with those collectors. The process is free and anyone can bring items down to the event. If the Roadshow specialists find items that their collectors are interested in, offers will be made to purchase them. About 80% of the guests that attend the show end up selling one or more items at the event.

Antiques and collectibles are not the only items the Roadshow is buying. "Gold and silver markets are soaring," says Archie Davis, a Roadshow representative. "Broken jewelry and gold and silver coins add up very quickly. I just finished working with a gentleman that had an old class ring, two bracelets and a handful of silver dollars. His check was for over $650.00. I would say that there were well over 100 people in here yesterday that sold their scrap gold."

Above—Roadshow specialist, Tony Enright, talks with a family about the gold jewelry that they brought in.

WE BUY SCRAP GOLD & GOLD JEWELRY

"U.S. COINS MADE BEFORE 1964 ARE THE MOST SOUGHT AFTER BY COLLECTORS. COINS MADE BEFORE 1964 ARE 90% SILVER, AND VALUABLE BECAUSE OF EITHER THE SILVER CONTENT OR EVEN MORE VALUABLE IF ONE HAPPENS TO BE A RARE DATE."

The Roadshow continues today starting at 9am. The event is free and no appointment is needed.

WHAT WE BUY

COINS Any and all coins made before 1964, all conditions wanted!

GOLD & SILVER PRICES AT 40 YEAR HIGH for platinum, gold and silver, broken jewelry, dental gold, old coins, pocket watches, Kruger rands, gold bars, etc

JEWELRY Gold, silver, platinum, diamonds, rubies, sapphires, all types of stones and metals, rings, bracelets, necklaces, early costume jewelry, broken jewelry, etc

TOYS, TRAINS, DOLLS All makers and types of toys made before 1965: Hot Wheels, Buddy L, Smith Miller, Nylint, Robots, Mickey Mouse, Train Sets, Barbie dolls, GI Joe, Shirley Temple, German

MILITARY ITEMS & SWORDS Revolutionary War, Civil War, WWI, WWII, etc: swords, badges, clothes, photos, medals, knives, gear, letters. The older the swords, the better

BUDGET

several teachers currently on leave.

"These are not cuts I would make," she said.

Mike Pearsall who also voted against the budget and staff cuts suggested that other areas could have been examined for budget cuts before staff reductions were made.

Other staff reductions include two half-time secretary positions at the elementary and middle schools, the district's career coordinator position and a half-time custodial position at each of the district's three buildings. The district also eliminated two bus routes and two bus driver positions. Janik said the district's transportation director would be charged with re-working the bus routes to accommodate the reduction in drivers.

School officials said many factors played into the budget shortfall for the coming year including a net $271 per pupil cut to the school district foundation grant, an anticipated 20-student loss in enrollment, increased insurance and retirement costs, payouts for unused sick days to staff who are retiring and wage steps for teachers and support staff.

Several new sources of revenue for the school closed the rest of the gap in the budget.

One source that was approved is that students will now pay a fee of $75 per high school sport played, with a $150 maximum per school year and $50 per middle school sport with a $100 maximum per year. Students who qualify for free or reduced lunches are exempted from the athletic fee. Janik said typically about 40 percent of the students in the district would qualify for the fee waiver, which has been calculated into the estimated revenue of $22,000 by charging students these fees to play sports.

Trustee Glen Catt spoke out in opposition to the athletic fees, but voted for the balanced budget that included them.

Catt

"I don't think it's worth the risk of having students leave the district to play sports elsewhere. You'll lose students because some kids just won't be able to afford it."

Janik commented that the budget can still be amended. If enrollment is higher than projected, changes can be made regarding expenditures on staff. "Personnel reductions could also be modified after our decision is made on custodian bids July 6."

Janik said projections are that the district could save up to $230,000 for the school year if it were to outsource its custodial services. The board won't decide on the privatization of custodial services until the bid deadline passes on July 6.

The district is required to take bids from private custodian companies in order to get another $100 per student from the state. But, they are not required to accept the offers, according to Bob Kwiatkoski, Michigan Education Association's local UniServ director.

The option given the schools is to contract a private company to provide janitorial services now performed by full-time school staff.

If they decide to do this it will mean the six current custodians employed by the district will lose their jobs, said Kwiatkoski who has done extensive research on the topic said that "districts typically don't save money through privatization."

Often, even if the districts do save some money, it's nowhere near as much as the companies bidding claimed, said Kwiatkoski.

Several staff and community members voiced their concern with employing outside workers into the schools for custodial services during the public comments section of the board meeting.

Catt said no decision has been made yet on whether the district will privatize custodial services. It is still accepting bids and evaluating how much money could be saved if privatization is enacted. He said he does believe that there is a value in having Charlevoix public school employees rather than a contracted employee on the premises who is in contact with the students daily.

Barry Potter, day lead custodian, lives in Charlevoix, has worked there the majority of his life and sent all of his children to the schools.

"This is my school. These buildings are mine. I care about them. If I had to leave here, I would feel like I was losing family," he said.

The schools accepted bids for a 3-year contract to provide custodial services to the three buildings of the Charlevoix Public School District for Aug. 1, 2011 through June 30, 2014. Charlevoix Public Schools reserves the right to renew contracts in one year increments. Renewal will depend on pricing and level of service during contract period.

The school board will make a decision on the bids and whether they will privatize their custodial services on July 6.

FESTIVAL

Short's Brewery from Bellaire. The brewery will be on hand with 10 varieties of their award-winning microbrews for what is being touted the Short's Brewery Experience.

"It's just going to be a fun event and we're excited to bring this to Charlevoix," Wilkin said. "We're expecting about 1,500 people and hope to make it an annual event the entire family can enjoy."

General admission tickets to the Up North Fourth in Charlevoix are $10 in advance and $15 at the door. Children 5 and under are free.

The Short's Brewery Experience offers a commemorative pint glass and five 7-ounce pours for an additional $20 with extra pours available for purchase.

Those wishing to participate in the Short's Brewery Experience must purchase both the general admission ticket and the Short's ticket.

Tickets are currently available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Ga Ga for Kids. They are also available online at www.brownpapertickets.com.

Why do we need to have public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

Reading public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Purpose: To create a vibrant downtown district consisting of primarily retail and food service businesses that enhance the City's economy by defining specific uses intended to increase consumer traffic.

Permitted Uses:

Food and beverage services, including. grocery stores, restaurants, cafés (including internet cafes), coffee shops, bars, taverns, wine bars, breweries, bakeries, delicatessens, bistros, and specialty shops.

Retail stores having a gross area of less than 5000 square feet. (Appliance, furniture, and similar stores selling large scale consumer products are not considered retail.)

Beauty Salons and barber shops as the primary use. Secondary uses may include tanning beds, pedicure, or manicure services in the same location.

The Planning Commission, upon request, may determine if a proposed use not listed above is similar to or comparable to the permitted uses in 5.96(2). If the Planning Commission determines a proposed use is not similar or comparable to the permitted uses, the applicant may apply for a special use permit. The Planning Commission may issue a special use permit provided that the proposed use is found to generate commercial activity in accordance with the purpose of this section and it meets the requirements for special uses in Article IX. Special Use Permits.

SECTION 2. Addition of new Section 5.87 Standards for Mixed Use Developments.

Section 5.87 is hereby added to read in its entirety as follows:

5.87. Standards for Mixed Use Developments.

Mixed use developments where a dwelling unit is proposed above professional offices in a Community Service Commercial Zone (C-1) shall comply with the setback, height, and lot coverage requirements of the Professional Office Zoning district.

Mixed use developments where a dwelling unit is proposed above any allowable use in the Community Service Commercial Zone (C-1) shall comply with the setback, height, and lot coverage requirements of the Community Service Commercial Zoning district.

SECTION 3. Amendment of Section 5.33(3): Side Yard setback requirements in an R-1 Zone.

Section 5.33(3) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5.33(3) Side yard: There shall be a side yard of not less than fifteen (15) feet on each side of any dwelling or accessory building, excepting any street side of any corner lot. On corner lots the front yard shall be parallel to the street frontage upon which the traditional front entrance for persons, e.g. the front door, is located.

SECTION 4. Amendment of Section 5.43(3): Side Yard setback requirements in an R-2 Zone.

Section 5.43(3) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5.43(3) Side yard: There shall be a side yard of not less than ten (10) feet on each side of any dwelling or accessory building, excepting any street side of any corner lot. On corner lots the front yard shall be parallel to the street frontage upon which the traditional front entrance for persons, e.g. the front door, is located. The side yard parallel to the other street frontage shall not be less than fifteen feet (15).

SECTION 5. Severability.

No other portion, paragraph or phrase of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan shall be affected by this Ordinance except as to the above sections, and in the event any portion, section or subsection of this Ordinance shall be held invalid for any reason, such invalidation shall not be construed to affect the validity of any other part or portion of this ordinance or of the Code of the City of Charlevoix, Michigan.

SECTION 6. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment by the City Council.

Ordinance No. 749-2011 was adopted on the 20th day of June, 2011, by the Charlevoix City Council as follows:

Sign up early as Kosloskey has a large following of collectors and students who follow his art classes. He has won many awards for his palette knife technique and style. He is also a very known musician and will entertain and cook one of the evenings to entertain his students.

Blood drives — As spring comes to a close and summer approaches, the American Red Cross encourages all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Fire injures two

Charlevoix apartment sustains heavy damage

JEREMY MCBAIN/NEWS-REVIEW

A Charlevoix Fire Department fire truck sits in front of a burning home around 11 p.m., July 4, at 801 State St. Firefighters fought the blaze for six hours. Two of the building's occupants where taken to the hospital after escaping but they were both expected to recover from their injuries.

A fire that broke out late Monday, July 4, sent two people to the hospital caused extensive damage to an apartment house on State Street.

Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said firefighters were called to a report of a fire at 801 State St. at about 10:20 p.m. When the first fire crews arrived on the scene, they found a large three story house, originally built as a single family home converted into apartments, with fire showing from the second story front windows.

Ivan said two residents of the house were out of the building before firefighters arrived, and were taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix EMS to be treated. He said the occupants are expected to recover, but did not release their names or nature of their injuries citing patient confidentiality rules.

Ivan said firefighters were able to determine that no one else was in the house at the time of the fire.

The fire caused extensive damage to upper story of the house, and the second story had one room heavily damaged by fire, with the rest of the house damaged by water and smoke.

Firefighters were on scene for about six hours, trying to extinguish fire from many voids in the building created as a result of many of the past remodeling jobs, and because of the construction techniques available when the house was originally built. No other injuries were reported as a result of fighting the fire, Ivan said.

Firefighters were assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix Police Department, Charlevoix County Sheriff Department, city of Charlevoix utilities, and Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

The cause of the fire remains under investigation.

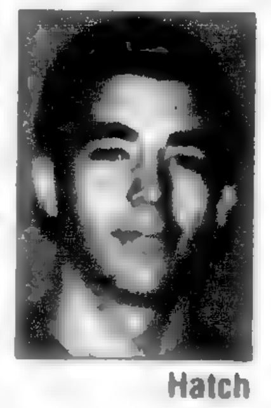
Austin Hatch, the 16-year-old University of Michigan basketball recruit who was the lone survivor of a June 24 single-engine airplane crash near the Charlevoix Municipal Airport that took the life of his father and step mother is showing signs of improvement as he recuperates in a Traverse City hospital.

Since June 27, the Hatch family has been posting regular updates on Austin's condition in a journal on the website CaringBridge.org.



Hatch

On July 1, the family posted, "He has remained stable, and notable improvements include movement to withdraw from pain and improved breathing function. Doctors have begun the gradual process of reducing his medications. As he slowly begins the "waking up" process, we ask for your continued prayers, and are grateful for the outpouring of love and support for Austin and the entire extended Hatch Family."

The next day the family posted, "Austin had another good and restful night. The concern regarding brain swelling has subsided and his condition continues to improve. We are encouraged by Austin's response to the

Correction

An entry in the Charlevoix County District Court case listings appearing on page 2 of the Wednesday, June 29 edition of the Charlevoix Courier contained an error. The entry for Cheryl Yvonne Demusky, 63, of Charlevoix should have only listed a conviction for disturbing the peace. The other charge listed, calling 9-1-1 for an unauthorized purpose, was dismissed.

Gregory bound over on murder charge

SHERI MCWHIRTER/NEWS-REVIEW

Sandra Gregory (right) and her attorney Kraag Lieberman listen to 90th District Court Judge Richard May during a court hearing on June 28.

A Charlevoix-area woman accused of killing her 94-year-old mother earlier this year moved one step closer to trial last week.

When Sandra Gregory, 74, appeared in 90th District Court on Tuesday, June 28, Judge Richard May bound her case over to 33rd Circuit Court after Gregory waived her preliminary examination in the case. She faces a count of open murder for allegedly killing her elderly mother in late March.

Preliminary examinations are hearings that take place in felony cases during which the prosecution must show there is enough evidence that a crime was committed and that the defendant could have committed the crime to warrant binding the case over for trial.

Gregory

May recently ruled Gregory is competent to stand trial. His ruling was based upon a report submitted by examiners from the state's Center for Forensic Psychiatry who found that Gregory is able to understand the charges against her and to assist in her own defense (the requirements for competency).

In earlier court documents, Gregory's defense attorney Kraag Leiberman announced his client's intent to assert an insanity defense to the charge.

Gregory faces up to life in prison if convicted.

At the June 28 hearing, Gregory sat quietly in the courtroom waiting for her case to be called, occasionally waiving hello to supporters in the crowd. She slowly approached the lawyers' lectern when May called her name, maneuvering around the defense table with the assistance of a walker.

Defense attorney Kraag Lieberman requested May set a bond for Gregory, who has been held without bond since her arrest.

"She's certainly not a flight risk," Lieberman said.

May denied the bond request, but not because of Gregory's potential threat to the community.

"I don't have any authority to do that," May said, explaining that jurisdiction over the case now rests with 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema said he did not object to the court setting bond and also said he is agreeable to the proposed bond conditions.

Those conditions involve requiring Gregory to reside with her sister in Greenville and wear a GPS-tracking ankle tether. She also would be required to seek counseling through the Community Mental Health program in Montcalm County.

May said the request to set bond could be brought up again before Pajtas during a July 8 court date.

That's the date set for a scheduling conference in the case — usually when the attorneys and the judge sit down in the judge's chambers to decide when the trial date and other dates in the case should be set.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to a police affidavit filed in the case, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

Emergency responders were called to Black Road in Marion Township around 10:30 p.m. on Monday, June 27 where Nataleigh Rose Musser, 18, struck a deer. Her vehicle left the roadway and hit a ditch, causing her to hit her head on the steering wheel, Charlevoix County Sheriff's officials said.

Emergency crews took Musser to Charlevoix Area Hospital where she was treated for her injuries.

The yard-garden: A feast for more than just the eyes

Roger Knutson

A quick glance at the yard around our house would suggest to most people that "lawn" is not my favorite form of vegetation. Given that situation, I have been forced to ask myself, "What is my favorite form of managed and cared-for vegetation?" In the un-managed category, tropical rain forest is an easy first choice, but those plants do not do well here north of the 45th parallel.

It is probably the result of my rural, agricultural childhood, influencing my choices, but all my favorite plant patterns involve neatly kept rows of medium sized plants that can be eaten or sold. That category of plants provided livelihood, health and education for most of the people I knew as a child. Large-scale agriculture (wheat, rice, corn) is not a sensible choice for a small acreage like a front yard. But vegetables, garden plants, seem nearly perfect. Rows of burgeoning Swiss chard or fern-like carrot tops with smooth black mulch between them seem to me the perfect sort of vegetation to surround a home.

I believe it is time to promote the yard-garden as an ecological statement. If a homeowner does not want to be troubled with actually growing and caring for such a garden, there are surely landscape companies which might be interested in providing their services. It shouldn't be much more costly or time-consuming than the golf-green look that is so much favored at present.

There may even be a wave to catch in this effort. Our public library currently has a display of books dedicated to the "Locavore" movement and the associated ecological and economic benefits of eating locally produced food. You can't get much more local than harvesting vegetables from your front yard. I notice that some of the downtown window boxes along Bridge Street have both kale and sweet potato plants growing in them. Some people think kale is edible.

There might even be local agriculturalists who would be willing to plant and tend such a landscape garden for a portion of the produce grown. And certainly a creative landscape contractor could be found to develop the concept of an edible front yard that it attractive, even beautiful.

Some years ago I worked briefly at the University of Washington in Seattle, and lived in the Capitol Hill area. One of the houses I walked by often had an entire yard devoted to garlic. It surrounded the house and made a fine appearance. I recognize that as an extreme position, not likely to be popular. But there would be advantages. It might be unnecessary to harvest the garlic crop at all. Enough would probably seep through the walls to flavor a salad or provide just the touch needed for a perfect omelette.

At the very least we could all agree that such a vegetable-enhanced front lawn would constitute a tasteful landscape .. The usual lawn is just so boring.

Charlevoix County flood risk information open house

CHICAGO – Representatives from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency in conjunction with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, will host a flood risk information open house 4:30 p.m. – 6:30 p.m. Tuesday July 12, at the Boyne District Library 201 E. Main Street, Boyne City.

The Open House will provide Charlevoix County residents with an opportunity to review a recently completed preliminary Flood Insurance Study and its accompanying preliminary Flood Insurance Rate Maps.

The documents provide base flood information, delineate areas subject to significant flood hazards with the county, and offer information public officials may use when permitting development in the floodplain.

The open house will be staffed with representatives from various local, state and federal agencies who will provide the most current information about flood risk, flood insurance, floodplain development regulations, and the process for floodplain mapping within Charlevoix County. The newly prepared preliminary floodplain maps will be on display. Once the maps become effective, these maps will be used by floodplain permit officials, builders and developers, lenders, realtors, insurance agents and the general public to determine flood risk, develop mitigation measures, and encourage wise and responsible risk management decision making.

Property owners, realtors, lenders and insurance agents are urged to attend and take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about flood risk and hazard mitigation within their community. For more information, contact John Devine, FEMA Region V Program Specialist, at (312) 408-5567 or Marge Dworak, FEMA Region V Outreach Specialist, at (312) 408-5527.

The general public is invited to review the preliminary floodplain map and learn about risk in their community. Those interested may drop-in at any time during the open house to talk one-on-one with federal and state representatives.

The Canterbury High School junior and his father also survived a 2003 plane crash near Fort Wayne that killed the boy's mother, a sister and a brother.

Also on Friday, the National Transportation Safety Board issued its preliminary report on the crash, which happened at about 7:35 p.m. when the Beech A36 single-engine airplane Austin's father, Stephen Hatch, 46, was piloting crashed into a garage attached to a home located on the northeast corner of Carpenter and Grant streets. Both Hatch and his wife Kim, 44, died as a result of injuries sustained in the crash.

The National Transportation Safety Board report doesn't state a cause for the June 24 crash, but an aviation expert who spoke to the Journal Gazette that Hatch may have stalled the engine while circling for a second approach.

The NTSB report said Stephen Hatch told Charlevoix Municipal Airport that he was executing a GPS approach to the 4,550-foot runway. Witnesses said the cloud ceiling was 200 feet about ground level and visibility was 1 mile. Hatch's Beechcraft A36 broke out of the clouds about halfway down the runway, and Indianapolis-based flight instructor Preston Wulfenspein told the newspaper that the pilot "obviously descended below what that approach allowed."

"It seems as though he was either disoriented or confident enough where he thought he could descend below the minimums," said Wulfenspein, a certified flight instrument instructor. "He did, but it was not the right thing to do. It was poor decision making."

The plane's engine then increased power, the report said, before making a left turn and a turn back to the right around a water tower.

"From what I gathered, he stalled the aircraft trying to turn back to the runway," said Wulfenspein, who reviewed the NTSB report.

The report said the plane began a right turn toward the runway, pitch nose up and then rolled to the left, movements that are "a byproduct of stalling in uncoordinated flight," Wulfenspein said.

The plane then hit a yard adjacent to the north perimeter of the airport and came to rest in a garage.

The NTSB said a final report could take more than a year to release.

"He has remained stable, and notable improvements include movement to withdraw from pain and improved breathing function. Doctors have begun the gradual process of reducing his medications. As he slowly begins the 'waking up' process, we ask for your continued prayers," the entry said.

A memorial service for Stephen and Kim Hatch is scheduled for Wednesday at Blackhawk Christian Ministries in Fort Wayne.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Dog survives plane crash

HEATHER LOCKWOOD
STAFF WRITER

Although 16-year-old Austin Hatch was the only human who survived a June 24 fatal plane crash in Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Area Humane Society says there was a canine survivor as well.

Austin's dog, a young male labradoodle named Brady, somehow escaped the plane without injury and was picked up by an animal control officer late Saturday afternoon less than a mile from the crash site, said Julie Whitley, animal control supervisor with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Another dog aboard the plane, Ally, an elderly female sheltie collie, died as a result of the crash, Whitley said.

Austin's father Stephen Hatch, 46, of Fort Wayne, who was piloting the plane, and Austin's stepmother Kimberly or "Kim" Hatch, 44, also died as a result of the crash.

The private plane crashed into the garage of an unoccupied residence at 221 West Carpenter Ave.

Whitley said Ally was brought to the humane society the day after the crash where she was scanned for a microchip and it was discovered that the information on her physical tags didn't match up with the information on her microchip. Later in the day Saturday, a call of a stray dog came in and animal control officer Jim Williams picked it up.

The stray dog, who turned out to be Brady, was also scanned for a microchip and it was discovered that Ally's physical tag or tags matched his microchip information.

Whitley said tag mix-ups often happen in multiple dog homes.

"They put two and two together," Whitley said, and concluded that Brady must have also been on the plane.

Whitley said the police were notified and a friend of the Hatch family picked Brady up the next day.

"It's an absolute miracle," Whitley said of Brady's survival and apparent absence of injuries.

"Our thoughts are, this is (Austin's) dog, this will maybe be one little bright spot in an otherwise horribly horrific situation," she said.

Whitley encouraged people to have their pet dogs and cats microchipped.

More road repairs coming next year

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

BOYNE CITY — Next year is expected to mark a major milestone in the ongoing effort to repair one of the county's busiest and bumpiest local roads.

Last week the Charlevoix County Road Commission discussed the future of the long-term project to repair Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, the county's main east-west route.

Last year a 2.8 mile section from Sumner Road to Nelson Road was completed using $874,000 in funds from the county-wide voter-approved 1 mill road improvement millage.

At its June 27 meeting, the road commission heard from civil engineer Lucas Porath, of Petoskey-based Northwest Design Group, who talked about progress to date and what's expected in the coming year.

"We plan on doing the same lane and shoulder width as the section that's been done, as well as the same pavement," Porath said.

Plans for next construction season call crews to begin work at both ends of the unrepaired section between U.S. 31 and Sumner Road and work toward each other Road commissioner Keith Ogden said the crews will pave as much as they can with the funds available, but there could be a two-to-four-mile gap in new pavement. It all depends on how the bids come back.

"If we see good numbers, it may only be a two-mile gap," said Pat Harmon, road commission manager. "If we see really high numbers, we could end up with a five-mile gap. We won't know until the numbers come in."

Engineers must still complete the preliminary design of the Horton Bay section. Final designs are due in late September.

Bids could be awarded yet this year, perhaps in early December. Construction is expected to begin in May 2012.

Total estimated costs to complete the nearly 14-mile stretch were $6.8 million when first calculated in 2009, but updated estimates now put the figure closer to $5.6 million, a $1.2 million reduction over the course of the last two years. That covers both engineering and construction price tags.

Preliminary estimates suggest the remainder of the road could cost upwards of $4.4 million to repave. About $1.5 million from the county's road millage will be spent on the work, along with nearly $1 million in state and federal funds from the Michigan Department of Transportation.

There is no determined time line to repave whatever distance is not covered next year, Harmon said.

Road commissioners also discussed another project they hope to complete next year.

A new bridge will be installed over the north branch of the Boyne River on Springbrook Road in Boyne Valley Township. It's expected to cost $300,000 to replace the bridge and make improvements to the river channel.

A 4-foot, 8-inch drop in the river bed beneath the bridge will be diminished and sand traps will be installed downstream to collect any sediments shifted loose, as a result. Conservation Resource Alliance, a Traverse City-based nonprofit, is a partner on the project and officials there currently seek grant dollars to help pay for the work.

That project will require a permit from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and road officials intend to meet with nearby property owners about potential post-construction stream changes.

The next road commission meeting will take place on Monday, July 11, in Boyne City.

'Park Avenue Prowl' in print

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society has published "The Park Avenue Prowl: A Stroll Through Charlevoix's History," which can be purchased at all society events and at two stops along the Prowl — Pine River Books, 104 Park Ave., and Harsha House Museum, 103 State St.

A little more than two years ago the Park Avenue Prowl website was launched (charlevoixparkavenue.wordpress.com). Since then, people have visited it more than 25,000 times, and many have taken the walk to see Charlevoix's oldest buildings and historic sites.

In response to many requests for a printed version of the walk, the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society has published The Park Avenue Prowl: A Stroll Through Charlevoix's History.

Proceeds from the sales of the 76-page book will go toward programs and services of the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society and the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Library to host local hotel history program

Historical society program will look back at area's resort roots

The Charlevoix Public Library, as part of its summer lecture series and in conjunction with the Charlevoix Historical Society, will be presenting an illustrated history of Charlevoix's hotels in the library's Community Room at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 14. The program will be narrated by Charlevoix Historical Society Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles.

Charlevoix's hotel history began in 1867 when Richard Cooper of Little Traverse (Harbor Springs) purchased the boarding house erected a few years before to house the workmen whom pioneers Amos Rox and Hiram Rose imported to build their 900-foot dock in Lake Michigan. Cooper named it the Fountain City House after a passenger vessel that had been calling here frequently. He received so much business that he had to expand quickly into what became the largest hotel in Northern Michigan and the terminus of the stagecoach line that ran between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The program will mainly cover the century from 1867 to 1967 including stories humorous and disturbing, the tragedies, spectacular fires, noted names who have visited Charlevoix, why the town has East Park, where the Detroit Lions stayed, and what happened to the world's number one rock and roll band in 1983.

There is no admission charge. Light refreshments will be served. Call the Historical Society at (231) 547-0373 for more information.

LOOKING BACK…

The summer season has arrived and with it, resorters and tourists have been pouring into Charlevoix just as they have since the 1870s. Before the railroad came to town in 1892, the only way to get here, other than the lone stagecoach, was by boat. The Thomas Friant, pictured above packed to the railings, was one of many small steamers that plied the waters of this area. Travelers often took the train to Petoskey where they boarded the Friant for Charlevoix. The boat then continued on down to Boyne City and East Jordan. This photo is one of hundreds included in an upcoming DVD that will cover 16 decades of Charlevoix's history, available later this summer through the Charlevoix Historical Society.

St. Mary church welcomes new pastor

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix has a new pastor, filling a vacancy left when the Rev. Jerry Hunko left the position in late December.

Gaylord Diocese Bishop Bernard Hebda recently named the Rev. Matthew Wigton as the new pastor of the St. Mary's parish. Wigton took over his duties at St. Mary on Thursday

The Rev. Wigton, 37, grew up in the Cedar area and graduated from St. Mary School in Lake Leelanau. He received his bachelor's degree from Franciscan University of Steubenville before moving to Rome where he studied theology at the Pontifical Lateran University, earning a license in sacred theology. He was ordained in 2001 at St. Peter's Basilica in Rome by Pope John Paul II

Writing in an letter of introduction to the parishioners, Bishop Hebda wrote, "In the course of his service in Rome, the Rev. Wigton where he distinguished himself in his service at the parish of St. Emerenziana, a large urban parish, Fr. Matthew began to discern whether the Lord might be calling him to serve in the Diocese of Gaylord. With the permission of the Holy Father's Vicar for Rome, Cardinal Agostino Vallini, he has been serving since last August as the parochial vicar at St. Mary Cathedral in Gaylord, beginning a three-year trial period. He will now continue his discernment at St. Mary's.

Bishop Hebda noted that some parishioners may be familiar with the Rev. Wigton from watching the weekly televised Mass.

The Rev. Wigton said he only knows a little bit about the St. Mary's parish and about the community in which it is located, but said so far he has found everyone very warm and welcoming. He said he is looking forward to getting to know the members of the parish and serving their spiritual needs.

Describing the Rev. Wigton in his letter, Bishop Hebda wrote: "He is a very kind, gentle person with a special sense of humor. He is a deeply spiritual and faithful priest with great love for the church and her people. He is also a strong supporter of Catholic schools."

Great Lakes Energy board seats up for election

Great Lakes Energy members who receive electric power from the cooperative soon will vote to fill three slots on its board of directors.

To vote, members can return ballots that were included with the July/August issue of Michigan Country Lines magazine. Ballots must be returned by mail and received by Aug. 18. Extra ballots are not available.

Six candidates are vying for the three open seats in this year's board election. These candidates include Chris Dandeneau of Elmira, Richard Evans of Ellsworth, Benjamin Harris of Bitely, Larry Monshor of Gaylord, Paul Schemanski of Petoskey and Susan Scott of Evart. Monshor and Scott are incumbent directors.

Candidate biographies can be found in the July/August issue of Michigan Country Lines.

Election results will be announced Aug. 24 at Great Lakes Energy's annual meeting.

Boeckman

"Our members' right to vote gives them the unique ability to elect representatives whose decisions will be guided by a responsibility to act on their behalf," said Great Lakes chief executive officer Steve Boeckman. "That is just one of the fundamental differences between Great Lakes Energy, an electric cooperative, and other energy providers."

Added Boeckman: "The people we serve are members who share in the ownership and operation of the cooperative."

The Great Lakes Energy cooperative provides electricity to more than 124,000 members throughout 26 counties along the western side of Michigan from Kalamazoo to the Straits of Mackinac. Great Lakes Energy is the largest electric cooperative in Michigan and the third-largest electric utility in the state.

Charlevoix Lions Club awards scholarships

The four recipients this year are all graduates of Charlevoix High School and will attend universities in the fall. The two recipients of the Don Meggison Scholarship are Katie Mays and Lynzie Gotshall. The two recipients of the Coleman Scholarship are Katie Mays and Matt Klooster. Tom Rich is the recipient of the Charlevoix Junior Golf Book Scholarship.

Don Meggison was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix and an outstanding member of the Lions Club. He was known for his extensive participation in community affairs. The criterion for selection for this award is based upon community service.

Katie Mays is the daughter of Scott and Beverly Mays. Katie graduated summa cum laude and was extensively involved in five sports, 11 school activity programs and provided community service/volunteer work to nine organizations.

Mays

Lynzie Gotshall is the daughter of Craig Golovich and Dawn Gotshall. She is a member of the National Honor Society, played in three varsity sports, and was on student council and Youth Future Problem Solvers. She participated in 12 community service/volunteer work programs.

Gotshall

The Coleman Scholarship is in memory of Lion Stewart E. "Irish" Coleman. He was a teacher and coach at Charlevoix High School from 1926 to 1963. Irish was a devoted member of the Lions Club. Candidates do not apply for this scholarship and are selected based upon the criteria of students who win at least six varsity sport letters from their sophomore year through graduation and the top two in this category with the highest grade point average are the winners.

Katie Mays graduated summa cum laude and earned five varsity letters, two in basketball, two in volleyball, and one in soccer. She is the first Lion Scholarship recipient to win both the Meggison and Coleman Scholarship awards.

Matthew Klooster is the son of Charles and Alida Klooster and graduated magna cum laude. He earned six varsity letters, two in soccer, two in basketball, and two in track and field. Matt participated in many community service projects and displayed strong leadership throughout his high school career.

Klooster

The Charlevoix Junior Golf Book Scholarship is dedicated to the service provided by the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program. The program was started 16 years ago and has averaged an enrollment of at least 100 students per year. Dean Davenport is the executive director.

The program has won national recognition as one of the finest junior golf programs in the nation.

This year four local golf courses — Antrim Dells, Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, and Charlevoix Municipal — have opened their course to play for the junior golfers. Each course volunteers its golf pros to provide instruction and many adult volunteers work as mentors to assist the junior golfers. Candidates must exemplify honesty, responsibility, empathy for others, integrity, obedience to rules and procedures, commitment to excellence in all areas of endeavor and serve as a role model for community youngsters.

Thomas Rich is the son of Dale and Elizabeth Rich. He participated in the program for five years and while in the seventh grade won a golf scholarship to attend Ferris State University golf camp sponsored by the Junior Golf Association. Tom was on the varsity golf team for four years and has enjoyed many honors. He excelled in soccer and basketball and was selected to the All-Academic Athletic Team for four years.

Baroque on Beaver

Classical music festival coming to Beaver Island this summer

BEAVER ISLAND — The Baroque on Beaver classical music festival has grown from a single concert in 2001 to a week of performances by the Festival Orchestra and Chorus with internationally known soloists. All participating musicians are either residents of Michigan or summer visitors to Beaver Island. The festival is organized by the Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association. All concerts, except the opening night gala benefit, are presented with no tickets or cost for attendance. The festival is supported by free will offerings and by donations from patrons on and off the island.

The following schedule includes the time, location and major works of each concert. More information about Baroque on Beaver and about transportation to the island for the festival can be found at www.baroqueonbeaver.org and www.beaverisland.org

Opening night benefit recital and gala reception – 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 26, at Beaver Island Community Center – world premiere "Something About Autumn" by Tom Cipullo sung by soprano Martha Guth with additional works by Handel, Schumann and Barbe, performed by violinist Albert Wang, clarinetist Joan Van Dessel, and pianist Kenneth Bos. Tickets required for this concert only.

Family Music Fair -- 2 p.m. Thursday, July 28, at Beaver Island Community Center — an interactive event for children of all ages; instrument making, drumming and poetry, funded in part by the Crooked Tree Arts Center and a grant from the 21st Century Community Learning Center.

Water Music — 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 28, at Holy Cross parish hall — music with a water theme by Wagner, Mendelssohn and Handel performed by members of the Baroque on Beaver Festival Orchestra, directed by Robert Nordling.

Brass Quintet — 2 p.m. Friday, July 29, at Holy Cross church — selections by members of the brass section of the Festival Orchestra.

Mozart Symphony No. 40 – 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 29, at Beaver Island Community Center — performed by the Festival Orchestra, also Bach's E Major Concerto played by concertmaster Albert Wang.

A Night at the Opera — 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 30, at Holy Cross parish hall — operatic favorites including selections from La Traviata, Don Giovanni and The Barber of Seville, sung by the Festival Chorus and soloists including Ricardo Lugo from the Metropolitan Opera, New York.

Mendelssohn Favorites — 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 1, at Holy Cross parish hall — Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony and Elijah performed by the Festival Orchestra and Chorus, concluding with Rutter's "Gaelic Blessing."

Commissioners hold off on ordinance decisions

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners agreed to miss the state deadline to rearrange the planning commission, but intend to remedy that by mid-July.

The outcome is expected to be a larger planning commission that potentially could be comprised of entirely new faces. All would be members — including current ones — have little more than a week before the cutoff date to apply.

The county commissioners met on Wednesday, June 29 in a special meeting called to come into compliance with the three-year-old Michigan Planning and Enabling Act, just shy of the state's July 1 deadline. The plan was to adopt a resolution first published on a meeting agenda, rather than make the change by simple motion at the last regular board meeting.

Instead, officials again put off making the required change. However, they did schedule a public hearing and special meeting for 9:30 a.m. on Friday, July 15 — a measure required to make the change by ordinance, as now recommended by Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema, also the board's civil counsel.

"I think we need to do a resolution to rescind the old ordinance and adopt this new one," Jarema said.

Jarema first recommended that an amendment resolution would do the trick, the reason officials scheduled Wednesday's special meeting. After consulting with another attorney, though, Jarema changed his mind, he said.

The plan now is to adopt an altogether new ordinance.

Commissioners wrote the ordinance during Wednesday's meeting as they went through the existing Benzie County Planning Commission Ordinance line-by-line and retooled the document for zoning-free Charlevoix County. Benzie County changed its ordinance in 2009.

Current planning commission chairman Dennis Jason and member Nancy Ferguson also attended the meeting with Kiersten Stark, county planning assistant. All three participated in the discussion as the board and Jarema wrote the new ordinance.

Only commissioner Richard Gillespie did not attend the meeting, though commissioner Chris Christensen left for a business appointment not long before it all wrapped up.

Coming changes include the commission's size and makeup.

The new Charlevoix County Planning Commission will include seven members, an increase from the current six. They must represent various segments of the community, according to both the new state mandates and the proposed new county ordinance.

Some examples of the segments include tourism and recreation, business and economic development, agriculture, forestry, land use, environmental protection, education, human services and other geographic boundaries.

County clerk Cheryl Potter Browe will immediately advertise for all seven positions on the new planning commission. New applicants or current planning commissioners who wish to continue in their roles must submit their documentation in short order, though.

Members are expected be chosen at the special meeting on July 15 after county commissioners vote on the proposed ordinance. Planning commission members' term lengths will be staggered over the next three years.

But first a public hearing will take place to accept public comments about the proposed ordinance, now available online or at Browe's office.

Application letters and resumes for the seven open seats should be hand-delivered or mailed to Browe's attention at: Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, 203 Antrim St., Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Submissions should be delivered or postmarked prior to July 10, Browe said.

Dedicated to freedom

City of Charlevoix officials along with representatives from the former Big Rock Point Nuclear Power plant gathered at Michigan Beach Friday to dedicate the placement of the 80-foot flagpole the formerly stood at the site of the site of the decomissoned plant north of Charlevoix. Consumer's Energy donated the pole to the city. Its installation was made possible through donations from seveaeral area businesses who contributed materials, labor and equipment for the project. Picture here, area Girl Scouts help several former Big Rock Point plant manager hoist a 20-foot by 30-foot American Flag near the end of the dedication ceremony.

Nikki Speigl and Erica Moses earn Girl Scout Gold Awards

Nikki Speigl and Erica Moses, both from Girl Scout Troop 10254 of Charlevoix recently received their Girls Scout Gold Awards. They both have been in Girl Scouts since first grade, 12 years.

The Girl Scouts of Michigan Shore to Shore council held the Gold Award ceremony at The Great Wolf Lodge in Traverse City on May 22. Both Nikki and Erica received their Gold Award pin as well as a certificate from the CEO of Girl Scouts and a matted letter of congratulations signed by President Barak and Michelle Obama.

For their Girl Scout Gold Award Project, which they dubbed "Golden Flower Power," the girls built raised flower boxes for the residents at the assisted living homes in Charlevoix – Sunny Bank and Boulder Park.

The girls chose the raised flower boxes because they allows wheelchair access as well as easier care for standing workers.

"We worked with Michael Pischner, for the building of the boxes. Then we got advice from Kari Davis, on what kind of flowers to use and how deep they needed to be planted. Sheila and Cheryl, activities directors from the homes set up work bees with the residents to plant and care for the boxes. Each have

Rayder alumus tapped for college coaching job

1999 CHS grad Matt Dennis named head basketball coach at Kalamazoo Valley CC

KURT GRANGOOD
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

KALAMAZOO — Matt Dennis, a 1999 graduate of Charlevoix, has been named head basketball coach at Kalamazoo Valley Community College.

Dennis, 29, will succeed legendary KVCC coach, Dick Shilts.

Shilts led the Cougars for the past 32 seasons, scoring 650 wins, eight conference titles, and five Michigan Community College Athletic Association state titles.

"I am trying not to look at the record that coach Shilts was able to amass," Dennis said. "I would rather focus on and follow his footsteps in character building, not preaching, but leading through example."

Dennis earned All-Lake Michigan Conference honors in 1999, when he helped lead the Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team to the Class C state semifinals. He recognized his high school coach, Keith Haske, as the first who led through character.

"Coach Haske did not preach, but wanted his players to buy into his system, and your role on the team with an emphasis on being a student first, and a athlete second," said Dennis of Haske, who left Charlevoix after the 2009-10 season for Traverse City St. Francis. "He did that in his first year at Traverse City St. Francis too."

Dennis

Dennis' playing career at Cornerstone Baptist in Grand Rapids was cut short by injury. He cut his coaching teeth as an assistant at Charlevoix under Haske, then returned to collegiate ball at Kalamazoo Valley, with a goal of learning how to become a college coach. Dennis was an assistant under Haske in 2001, when the Rayders finished as the Class C state runner-up.

"I have learned three valuable lessons from my time with coach Shilts," Dennis said. "Be yourself, use the tool of basketball and its lessons to produce maturity in any role that will follow after the game, and do not waiver in your faith."

Dennis and his wife, Adrienne, a former volleyball player at KVCC, and two children, ages 4 and 1, were a part of his decision three years ago to accept full-time employment at the college, outside of the basketball court. However, he did whatever he could to remain in touch with the KVCC team and the game.

"For the past three years, I have done anything, in any role, for the team," Dennis said.

Last fall, Dennis accepted a full-time position working with at-risk students at the Extended Learning Center at Kalamazoo Central High School, which has won the last two Class A state basketball titles.

"Recruitment of players from Kalamazoo has been weak," Dennis said. "However my professional position puts a face onto recruitment within the city, and I want to bolster that recruiting."

Putting a face on hometown recruiting will be helped as assistant coach Damian Smith holds a similar role within the Kalamazoo Public Schools. Their presence has paid off with a big catch, De'Tavian Moore.

"We have high hopes in De'Tavian," Dennis said. "He is the type of student and player that we are hoping to have an impact for us. Kalamazoo has a lot of great players like that."

decided next year to also include vegetables," the girls wrote in describing their project.

"The award marks the culmination of nearly two years of hard work by the girls and as their troop leader am very proud of them.," Troop leader Diana Speigl said. She noted that less than 5 percent of Girls Scout achieve the Gold Award, the highest honor in the Girl Scouts organization. To ear the Gold Award, a Girl Scout senior or ambassador completes may prerequisites that require her to reflect on the Girl Scout promise and law, focus on career exploration, and help her to develop leadership skills.

The girls offered their thanks to Preston Feather for their donation of materials for the project.

Kent and Lin Larsen of Charlevoix are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Karen Jean Larsen to Colin Jason Alworth, son of Royal and Karen Alworth of Duluth, Minn.

Karen is a 2003 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a 2007 graduate of Kalamazoo College. She received her master's degree from Indiana University in 2009. Karen is a librarian at the College of Lake County in Grayslake, Ill.

Colin is a 2003 graduate of Duluth East High School and 2007 graduate of Kalamazoo College. He is a software engineer.

Karen and Colin are planning a Friday, July 29, wedding in Milwaukee, Wis.

Library summer reading events ongoing

The summer reading clubs at the Charlevoix Public Library are in full swing. "One World, Many Stories" has something for kids of all ages and is designed to help children read throughout the summer to keep their reading levels steady from spring to fall.

Events take place at 6:30 p.m. Tuesdays for all age groups through Aug. 9. For kids grades kindergarten through eight, Crafts with maps will be the highlight on July 12. The youngest participants, ages birth to age 5, have the opportunity to join in Kindermusik which helps children develop early literacy and language skills. This is an adult/child interactive program with separate sessions for birth through 2 (6:30 p.m.) and ages 3-5 (7:15 p.m.).

For more information about this and other summer events at the library, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 237-7350.

United Way Day of Action promotes literacy

The fourth annual United Way Day of Action on June 21 connected volunteer readers in Charlevoix and Emmet counties with children at local libraries and preschools.

This event served as the starting point for an ongoing collaborative project to improve the reading skills of area youth. Community volunteers were available to read stories and poems to children at Charlevoix Public Library, Petoskey District Library, Boyne City District Library and North Country Kids.

"We are very impressed by the number of people in the community who are excited about education and learning and who came out to volunteer their time," said Benjamin Crockett, an AmeriCorps VISTA member at United Way. "We are looking forward to using this energy to promote literacy in new ways."

Anyone interested in becoming part of United Way's Literacy Corps is encouraged to contact Crockett at the Char-Em United Way office at (231) 487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org.

School board, unions ratify 2-year contracts

Agreement includes employee pay freezes and insurance concessions

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education and its teacher and support staff unions have ratified new 2-year contracts that will save the district about $500,000 next school year.

The unions' members approved the contracts on Friday, June 24, and the board approved it at a special board meeting on Monday, June 27. At the same meeting the board approved its budget for next year, which included another $600,000 in cuts to fill a $1.1 million deficit.

District superintendent Chet Janik said the savings in the new contracts comes from numerous concessions made by the district's unionized staff including:

— A pay freeze under which not only will the overall pay scale remain the same, staff members who are eligible will not receive "step" incremental raises.

— A change to a different MESSA health insurance product which includes $200 and $400 deductible (individual and family, respectively).

— In the contracts' first year staff will pay 15 percent of the cost of their health insurance and 20 percent in the second year.

— A reimbursement for prescription co-pays will be eliminated.

— Tuition reimbursement for classes taken for continuing education or advanced degrees has been suspended.

— A 2-percent matching retirement annuity has also been suspended.

The unions' current contracts expire on Aug. 31.

When announcing the tentative agreement between the district and the bargaining groups earlier in June, Janik hailed the agreements as noteworthy because they came well before the expiration of the current contracts and without the animosity that accompanied past negotiations. When the last contracts expired in 2008 it took the sides more than a year to work out a new 3-year deal.

The cuts approved to fill the rest of the budget hole included eliminating two bus routes and two bus driver positions, a few teaching staff reductions, other staff reductions including custodial, secretarial and a career coordinator position, reducing the classroom supplies budget by one-third, and by about $104,000 in expected additional revenue including a $75 per-sport participation fee.

Yet to be determined is what if any additional savings the district might see if it decides to privatize its custodial services. Bids for those services are due soon.

Proposed recreational trail revisited

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders discussed expected maintenance costs for a proposed non-motorized recreational trail between Boyne City and Charlevoix, a contentious subject that drew cyclists in force to a Wednesday, June 29, meeting.

In March, the board of commissioners applied for a $300,000 grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund to help pay for a trail along the right-of-way to Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. One month later commissioners rescinded a five-year-old decision to accept ownership and maintenance responsibilities for the trail, a move critics say will jeopardize the grant application's approval.

On Wednesday, officials again delved into the maintenance cost issue after hearing multiple on-point public comments from both supporters and critics.

"How can we keep it moving forward and how can we help?'" asked cyclist Candice Wiers of Charlevoix.

Others expressed concerns for the local property owners along the proposed pathway.

"The people who are for it don't drive on the road," said [illegible] [illegible] Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. "People have got to be represented from both sides."

County parks director Ross Maxwell calculated estimated maintenance costs for the 3.2 miles of the proposed trail from Boyne City to the Bay Township line, as well as the entire planned 14-mile route to U.S. 31. He based the estimates on known costs to maintain the Little Traverse Wheelway that runs alongside Lake Michigan between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Maxwell said his best guess is that the proposed trail would run $390 per mile each year for mowing, labor and material costs.

"That's very good compared to other county parks," Maxwell said.

There would be long-term maintenance costs in the future, especially after the expected 20-plus-year lifespan of the trail. Removal and repaving of trail sections could cost as much as $3 per square foot, Maxwell said.

Commissioner Chris Christensen said perhaps it's time to consider a county-wide parks and recreation millage, as other counties have adopted to pay for this and other trails, along with various parks and recreation areas. He said he wants to achieve long term financial sustainability for the parks program, especially with more [illegible] pathways identified throughout the county.

"At least the voters would have an up or down vote," Christensen said. "If we're really going to go for trails throughout the county we need a plan for longevity."

Among the speakers during the public comment period was Petoskey attorney Jennifer Schafer, who said she represents numerous property owners along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road who are concerned with the trail's potential path. They also are concerned with the idea of the government taking their private property for the trail, she said.

"They'd be fine with a bike path connected to the roadway," Schafer said.

Christensen said he wants a standard process to involve property owners in the discussion. Board chairman Joel Evans added that he's optimistic the proposed trail would be positive for the county.

"All you bicyclers, we're going to make this thing work one way or another," Evans said.

Commissioners will consider a resolution to accept maintenance responsibility for the trail at their meeting on July 13.

Estimated annual trail maintenance costs

- Little Traverse Wheelway, 7.5 miles, $2,925 (known cost)
- Boyne City to Bay Township, 3.2 miles, $1,250
- Boyne City to U.S. 31, 14 miles, $5,478

(Costs include mowing, labor and materials, but not long-term repairs)

This photo shows the Charlevoix First Congregational Church as it appeared in 1891, about six years after it was dedicated.

First Congregational Church to dedicate historical marker

Charlevoix's First Congregational Church, located at 101 State St., will dedicate a new Michigan historical marker comemorating the church's 129th year at 3 p.m. on Sunday, July 17.

A reception will follow the ceremony and the public is invited to attend.

According to information provided by the church, the First Congregational Church was organized by the Rev. N.L Otis, A. J. Hadley, a summer visitor; and seven others on Sept. 19, 1882, in the Methodist Church parlor. A Sunday school, laidies' aid and missionary society were begun almost immediately after the first meeting.

The decision to build a church was made and a lot purchased in 1883 for the cost of $800. The construction of the building was a cooperative effort with much of the materials and labor being donated by men from the church and community.

Women hosted "necktie parties," box socials and religious sings where they passed a collection box. The result was a debt of only $800 at the time of the church building's dedication on Jan. 18, 1885. The debt was paid in full with collections taken that day. The total cost of construction was $5,541.71.

Construction set to begin July 5 near Elk Rapids

The Michigan Department of Transportation will reconstruct nearly five miles of U.S. 31 near Elk Rapids in Antrim County.

The project will begin Tuesday, July 5 and is expected to be complete by Friday, Sept. 23. Transportation department officials said traffic will be maintained under flag control.

The scope of the work includes reconstruction of 4.7 miles of U.S. 31 from the village of Elk Rapids to Campbell Road.

According to the transportation department, this $2 million project has a five-year materials and workmanship warranty.

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

We the People

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

Sign up early as Kosloskey has a large following of collectors and students who follow his art classes. He has won many awards for his palette knife technique and style. He is also a very known musician and will entertain and cook one of the evenings to entertain his students.
Mike Coltman: Oil Painting: creating color for palette knife & brush, 5-9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, July 26-27, (4:30 p.m. for registration for those not pre-registered and pre-paid). $100 per student. As a selling artist, Coltman has worked mostly with pastels. His new interest in oils came out of a workshop in Florida, where he learned to paint using only five colors. He will share the skill of creating color and painting from a photograph using both the knife and a brush.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. The local American Red Cross is unable to fill all hospital requests in a timely manner, particularly for types O negative, A negative and B negative. American Red Cross officials are asking all eligible donors to make it a part of their summer vacation plans to donate blood. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. In an effort to help increase donor turnout, the Red Cross has partnered with Meijer to offer every person who comes out to donate in June, the chance to win free groceries ($250 value). Beginning in June, everyone who comes out to donate also has a chance to win $125 in gas from Meijer and a $500 Best Buy gift card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Venetian on the horizon

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The petunias are planted, the weather has warmed up, and the resorters and tourists are here.

All the elements are in place for another busy week of activities as the 81st annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival is set to kick of Saturday, July 16, and will cap off with two nights of fireworks including a high altitude show shot over Lake Charlevoix in the Depot Beach area on Friday, July 22 and a low-altitude, high-intensity show over Round Lake on Saturday, July 23.

"This is a very exciting time for us," Dan Barron, Venetian Festival Board of Directors president, said. "We're all geared up and ready to go for another sensational Venetian Festival."

Barron said there aren't many changes or additions to this year's festival.

In addition to the two fireworks shows, another signature Venetian element that will also remain unchanged is a week full of high quality, free admission musical performances in East Park. Two of the bigger acts to perform this year will be "Think Floyd" a Pink Floyd tribute band, and "The Family Stone" which includes three founding members of the band "Sly and Family Stone" Jerry Martini, Cynthia Robinson, and Greg Errico are Rock & Roll Hall of fame inductees, and R&B Pioneer Award Winners. All three also performed at Woodstock.

Barron said the festival is able to attract and afford top end acts for two reasons, he waits until most groups have their summer touring schedules set up and then sees which groups would be interested making a few extra bucks by in adding a stop in Charlevoix to their schedule.

It doesn't hurt, Barron noted, that he's asking performers to play in such a picturesque location. Barron said he's also excited about the quality and diversity of some of the non-headline acts that will also be taking the stage.

"The challenge is to get a nice mix of local and regional acts and to bring a mix of return and new acts to keep things fresh," he said. "I really think we offer something for everyone."

Another aspect of the festival expected to see continued growth this year is the Venetian Games. Games "commissioner" Dean Davenport said last year more than 2,000 people participated in the games. Last year saw the addition of a horseshoe tournament and junior sailing regatta. This year a softball tournament will return after a few years off, bringing the total number of events to 15. Davenport said much like the rest of the festival, the volunteers who oversee the events are the key to their success.

"When we started the Venetian Games our goal was to schedule and manage events that would attract local sports enthusiasts and get them involved in the festival," Davenport said. "From the results so far, the goal has been reached and record participation continues to add an attractive dimension to the festival."

Barron also highlighted another spectator sporting event that has continued to grow in popularity since it was introduced a few years ago: The Ryan Shay Mile.

The event is an invitation-only race which draws world-class runners who compete for as much as $4,000 in prize money. The race takes place at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday just before the street parade and brings the runners from the intersection of U.S. 31 and M-66 to an exciting finish on a spectator-line Bridge Street near Park Street.

And of course, the fireworks shows are something Barron said he looks forward to each year as much as everyone else.

"We put on two world-class fireworks displays especially on Saturday," Barron said. "We are finding that people in the pyrotechnic in

City council ups Venetian support

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Just 10 days before it was set to kick off, Charlevoix's signature summer festival got a little extra help from the city council.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Tuesday, July 5, not only did the council approve the usual set of documents such as the mass gathering permit and the permit for fireworks shows for the 81st annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival but it also honored a request from festival organizers to up the city's financial contribution from the $12,000 it had budgeted to $15,000. The contract with the additional $3,000 was approved by a 4-2 vote with council members Greg Stevens and Dennis Kusina voting against the measure.

City manager Rob Straebel said the city will also likely not exercise an option it has to invoice the festival committee for the extra cost of garbage collection during the festival — an amount estimated at about $6,500 for manpower alone.

Straebel said an net increase of about $60,000 in tax revenue the city received because of property value assessments came in higher than expected was a key in the decision to approve the higher contribution amount.

In other business the council approved proceeding with the next two phases of a process through which the city and the Charlevoix Public Schools are investigating the possibility of

and update on plane crash story

A story appearing on pages 1 and 5 of the Wednesday, July 6 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about a June 24 airplane crash on Carpenter Street contained two errors.

Also, a portion of the story provided by the Associated Press about the National Transportation Safety Board's preliminary report on the crash which refers to the airplane's engine having possibly stalled requires clarification. Although, the NTSB report does not use the word "stall," that was a conclusion for a possible cause of the crash drawn by a flight instructor who was asked by an Indiana newspaper to review the report. However, the flight instructor was discussing an "aerodynamic stall" — a condition where an airplane has insufficient airspeed for its wings to provide enough lift to keep it aloft, not an engine stall.

Finally, the most recent update on Austin Hatch's condition posted on Friday by his family on www.caringbridge.com reads, in part: "By the grace of God, Austin James is showing improvements every day. He is comfortable and stable. He has begun opening his BIG BLUE EYES a little bit more! We understand that his healing will be a very slow and gradual process; we're not sure whether Austin has any awareness of what he sees yet."

Austin, a University of Michigan basketball recruit was the lone survivor of the crash that took the life of his father Stephen Hatch and step mother Kim Hatch.

Fire officials: Old stereo to blame for Phelps Road fire

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

IRONTON — Fire officials believe a problem with an old stereo system is to blame for a fire that caused extensive damage to a home in Charlevoix County's Eveline Township today, Friday.

Firefighters from the East Jordan Fire Department were called to 10457 Phelps Road (located between Sequanota and Ranney roads) at about 9:30 a.m. when a neighbor called 9-1-1 reporting smoke coming from the upstairs of the two-story building.

East Jordan Fire Chief Glen Thorman said the owners of the home, Greg and Martha Berish, and their family were camping in Central Lake at the time of the fire.

When firefighters arrived on the scene they found heavy smoke coming from an upstairs window.

But Thorman said the location where the smoke was coming from the house was misleading as to the location of the fire. He said as crews prepared to enter the building to fight the fire, they discovered that the fire was actually in the basement and was venting smoke up a stairwell and out an second story window that had been left partially open.

Thorman said when firefighters arrived they found a vehicle parked in the driveway and one in the garage, leading them to have concerns that there could be people inside the house. So, as one team of firefighters entered the house through the walk out basement entrance, a second team conducted a search of the house to make sure there were no victims inside.

It took fire crews about 45 minutes to get the bulk of the fire extinguished. Firefighters were on the scene until about 12:45 p.m.

Thorman said the bulk of the fire damage occurred in the basement and to some of the first-story floor joists.

"The kitchen was sagging pretty good," he said.

The second floor sustained mostly heat and smoke damage.

"I think (the home) is probably salvageable," he said, adding that the damage to the home would likely have been much more substantial had the fire gone un-noticed for another 10 or 15 minutes.

There were no injuries associated with the fire.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

An East Jordan firefighter looks into a second-floor window where smoke from a fire burining in the basement is billowing to the outside Friday.

Thorman said as crews walked through the basement after the fire was out, it was clear that the fire started in the area of a 1960s or 1970s-era stereo system that had been in the basement. He said the owners reported that the stereo had been in that location for many years and was used occasionally, but not recently.

He said the home was insured.

East Jordan firefighters were assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department and the Banks Township Fire Department who provided tankers and manpower.

Gee, wheezer! I breathe like a geezer

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Do you snore or know someone who does?

It's a question that gets asked infrequently but when it does, the usual answer is Grandpa So-and-So or my Uncle So-and-So. I am here to tell you that more often than you realize it's the women who have caught up with the men when it comes to boisterous "z's'. With age, the muscles in our throat relax and woman are just as prone to snoring as men. Go ahead and ask my husband. My snoring kept me from getting a sound sleep, but for my husband even more so.

I visited a sleep clinic and was diagnosed with an elongated uvula. "OK," I said, "I thought you were a sleep specialist not a gynecologist." Once he explained where my uvula was located, I was able to regain my composure. He suggested I sleep on my side so the airway would be clear. His home remedy of sewing a tennis ball to my night shirt forcing me to turn on my side sounded uncomfortable. Not even Victoria Secret could make this bulging apparition look appealing. Laser surgery may correct my situation but I decided to take the homeopathic route.

My next stop was the local store for breathing strips — but what size? Of course my nose can't be that big so I picked up a box marked "small."

Nope, didn't fit.

Next try – medium. Nope.

Now, feeling more like goldilocks, I tried the "advance large" and, yes, it was just right.

Stop snickering.

My usual habit of putting lotion on my face after cleansing needed to change as the lotion adversely affects the glue on the strip. As the band loosened I began to look like a cat with whiskers. Sans-lotion my freshly scrubbed face was ready to accept the nose band on the lower bridge of my appendage, but now I have this new ethnic look going on. My fear was that this look would remain after the strip was removed in the morning. Fortunately, my face hasn't stuck in this position. I've learned you can make faces all you want and your face won't stick that way like mom said it would.

The term snoring means restricted air flow. The soft tissues in the back of the throat close up so air has to be force through. If you're a back sleeper, chances are you snore. On the list of reasons for snoring, obesity is at the top followed by smoking, drinking, nasal blockage due to allergies or colds and, in my case, an abnormal elongated uvula. It also has been reported that lower estrogen levels decrease the muscle tissue strength and results in snoring as well.

I don't want to make too light of this subject because some people have a serious problem with sleep apnea where breathing stops and starts periodically. This dilemma should cause you enough concern to see a sleep specialist because this pattern can lead to heart attack or stroke.

There are some solutions out there to snoring. Lose weight, quit smoking, no drinking late at night and purchasing a new pillow to lessen allergen levels. Mouth pieces are available to create a better airway, as well as the strips I mentioned. You can also exercise throat muscles. Now this will be fun: Try sticking out your tongue. Start by stretching it to the right then slowly stretch it to the left. Now try to touch your nose with your tongue and now your chin.

Boy, do you look silly.

This exercise does help strengthen muscles but I think it's best that you do this at home when no one's looking or has a camera nearby.

So, if your significant other says you sound like a stranded whale while you're sleeping, it's time to check out my suggestions for your health and the health of those you love. My husband and I are now getting a good night's sleep.

Good night, sleep tight and don't let the bed bugs bite. (Now, that's another story.)

LETTER to the editor

Organizers pleased with first Up North Fourth

Editor:

On Saturday, July 2, 2011, downtown Charlevoix welcomed a new event to the harbor side paradise that is East Park. The first annual Up North Fourth welcomed more than 1,000 attendees seeking to enjoy an authentic Northern Michigan backyard picnic on a grand scale. This family-friendly event was proudly presented by the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority with the support of Jodi Bingham of Ga Ga for kids, Kari Roder of 106 KHQ and Northern Michigan event production company Porterhouse Productions.

Creating an event on the scale of the Up North Fourth is no easy endeavor. After taking note of the words of many residents and business owners expressing a desire for a Fourth of July weekend event in Charlevoix, plans that ultimately produced the Up North Fourth got under way less than one year ago. While the event witnessed many changes through the planning process, the end goal remained unwavering — to offer a family friendly event showcasing great music and local tastes and to raise monies in support of the efforts of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the people behind the petunias. Imagine how thrilled we were the afternoon and evening of July 2 to find so many people in attendance that supported this goal!

The success enjoyed by the Up North Fourth would not have been possible without the support of many businesses and individuals. Placing your faith (and sponsorship dollars) in a first year event isn't easy to do, so the financial support of Bingham Insurance Services, Charlevoix Wear, Huntington Bank and Landscape Logic is especially important to note. The event also received terrific advertising from our media partners 106 KHQ, Charter Communications, The Graphic, KLT The Rock Station and Northern Express. Local businesses Bloom Floral Design Studio, Culligan and Signs Now provided invaluable in-kind product support. And the participation of Friske Orchards, John Cross Fisheries and Short's Brewery ensured event goers' taste buds enjoyed a full Northern Michigan culinary experience.

The true unsung heroes of the Up North Fourth were the wonderful volunteers who gave up a good portion of their holiday weekend to spend it making sure others could enjoy themselves. Without the assistance of our volunteers, this event would not have run nearly as smoothly as it did in its first year. Thank you, thank you, thank you, volunteers!

And thank you to all of our event attendees. We know we can improve the event in some areas and you have our promise we'll do our very best to do so if we are able to offer a 2012 version. We hope that everyone enjoyed at least one component of the Up North Fourth, whether it was the get-up-and-dance musical selections, the tasty eats or simply the chance to slow down and catch up with a friend or neighbor they hadn't seen in a little while.

Thanks for giving us the opportunity to make you smile on a beautiful summer day in paradise.

Sincerely,

Keith Carey,
Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Executive Director

Motorcyclist injured in collision with deer

EAST JORDAN — A seasonal Charlevoix resident was injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a deer Sunday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials said Steven Pitzer, 58, was out on a riding his Honda motorcycle on Ellsworth Road in South Arm Township around 9 a.m. when a deer ran in front of him.

Police said Pitzer collided with the deer causing him to lose control of the vehicle and skid across Ellsworth Road.

Pitzer sustained injury to the left side of his body most notably, a cut on his left hand. He was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department where he sought treatment to the injury to his hand. Pitzer was wearing a helmet at the time of the accident, police said.

Holt boy injured in July 6 boating accident

A downstate child injured his arm while boating on Lake Charlevoix.

An 11-year-old boy from Holt cut his arm while he climbed off the stern of his parents' vessel to swim in the lake near Ferry Beach in Charlevoix. The incident happened shortly before 2 p.m. on Wednesday, July 6, according to information released by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

The boy was treated for his injuries at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

dustry are coming to the shows to see what we are doing. It's such an ideal setting. Round Lake serves as a natural amphitheater, with the concussions echoing off the shoreline and the visual aspect, it's really a one-of-a-kind experience."

One small change that festival-goers may notice on the final night of festivities affects the festival's original event: the lighted boat parade on Round Lake. This year the parade will go around the Round Lake basin clockwise (from right to left as seen from shore). Baron said the change was made to help more efficiently move the boats in the parade outside the fireworks safety zones following the parade.

Although most of the festival's events are free, Barron noted that about 75 percent of the festival's $250,000 budget is just for entertainment and fireworks. However, there are plenty of opportunities to help support the festival including becoming a member of the Burgee Club, buying a cash raffle ticket or Venetian commemorative items such as T-shirts and posters from the merchandise in East Park.

To learn more about the festival including entertainment, children's day, games, the parade, fireworks, amusement rides, queen competition, festival fundraising and much more, see the insert in this week's Charlevoix Courier or visit www.venetianfestival.com.

leasing extra unused capacity on their jointly-owned fiber-optic network. The approval was made contingent upon the school board approving the same proposal. The if the project moves forward, the city and school district would split the cost at $4,500 each.

The council also approved a bid from East Jordan-based Jordan Construction Group for $52,600 to install a new rubberized roof on the electric/water department building.

The council approved spending $13,785 for a new switchgear (a device that controls what electrical circuit is feeding a particular part of the city) for Pine River Lane.

The council set a public hearing on a ordinance that would re-establish the city's planning commission under the Michigan Planning Enabling Act of 2008 for its next meeting on Monday, July 18. In a memo to the city council, city planner Mike Spencer explained that the provisions of the "enabling act" are essentially the same as those under which the planning commission operates now.

The council also set a public hearing on a proposed ordinance that would modify the boundaries of the city's three wards. City clerk Carol Ochs said the recently-completed 2010 census showed that the number of people living in the city's three wards is now unbalanced. Currently the 1st Ward (which includes the area and most of the downtown) has 726 people; the 2nd Ward, (which is essentially the area south of the channel and west of Bridge Street to Carpenter Street) has 923 people and the 3rd Ward has 855 people. The proposed change would see two blocks of the 3rd Ward (bounded by Mason, State, Hurlbut and Bridge streets) and three blocks of the 2nd Ward (bounded by Mason, Sherman, Hurbut and Grant streets) would become part of the 1st Ward.

Ochs said the new lines would not only give the wards a more regular shape on the map but would leave them with a more evenly distributed population with the 1st Ward at 841, 2nd Ward at 830 and the 3rd Ward at 842. She said although the changes would affect voting slightly for the roughly 115 people in the affected blocks, it will not affect the ward residency of any current city council members.

A Venetian classic

Artist puts his vision of festival's signature event on canvas

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

When asked by the Venetian Festival organizers two years ago to create the official artwork for this year's festival Gary Odmark saw it as both an honor and a way of giving back to a community that has supported his artistic efforts for many years..

Although he grew up in Spring Lake, Odmark has many fond memories of the Venetian Festival as he often visited Charlevoix with family.

And speaking of family, if there's something familiar about Odmark's last name, that's because the Clarence A. Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park is named in honor of his second cousin, the a long-time director of the city and high school bands.

Gary Odmark, who now lives in Holland, is a graduate of Kendall College of Art and Design where he studied fine arts illustration. For more than 40 years, Odmark has been painting as a freelance artist. Fifteen years ago, Odmark completed his first limited edition print, "Season's End." Since then, he has printed more than 90 paintings Odmark has over 100 different prints on the market, mostly in nautical and historical art.

Odmark said he chose the fireworks over Round Lake setting for his piece because it is so much a part of what comes to mind when people think of the Venetian Festival.

"I know the fireworks have been done (in previous year's paintings), but I wanted to do my own interpretation of it," Odmark said.

He said he sketched in the scene for his painting during last year's show and filled in the rest in his studio.

The original artwork will be auctioned off on Friday, July 24 following the coronation of Miss Charlevoix with the proceeds going to benefit the festival. The design will also be available on Venetian Festival posters and T-shirts throughout the festival, again with all proceeds from the sales going to benefit the festival.

To see more of Odmark's work, visit his website at www.gwodmark.com. To see all of the prior artwork since 2000, visit www.venetianfestival.com/artwork.

Gary Odmark's painting, which serves as the official artwork for the 2011 Charlevoix Venetian Festival, depicts a very well known festival scene — fireworks over Round Lake.

Memorial dedicated, more contributions needed

BEAVER ISLAND — On July 3 more than 150 people attended the AMVETS Post 46 dedication for the new Beaver Island Veterans Memorial overlooking the Beaver Island harbor.

Organizers said they planned the location for the memorial because it will be visible to thousands of people who enter Beaver Island's harbor each year.

Although the project has been dedicated, the AMVETS group is still seeking additional 'contributions. Through April, the organization has raised more than $25,000 but it needs at least another $16,500 to complete the purchase of the monuments and to endow the continuing maintenance of the grounds.

Donors in the following categories will be recognized on a special bronze plaque placed at the entrance to the park: Gold for donors of $2,000 and up; silver donors of $1,000 and up; and bronzefor donors of $500 and up.

Individual veteran honor bricks may be purchased for $100 and $200 each to be placed in the brick beds of the memorial. Companies or organizations may also purchase bricks to be placed in the sidewalk leading up to the memorial. (Brick purchases are not tax-deductable.)

Tax-deductable contributions to the memorial project may sent to: AMVETS Post 46, Box 319, Beaver Island, MI 49782. Checks should be made payable to the Beaver Island Veterans Fund. For more information, e-mail AMVETSpost46@yahoo.com or call John Haggard at (231) 547-4046 or Bob Tidmore at (231) 448-3089.

LOOKING BACK…

After high quality limestone was discovered to a depth of 500 feet in the South Point area, in 1910 the Standard Cement and Lime Company bought 507 acres, erected this plant and dug a quarry next to it off Carpenter Street west of Norwood Road. In 1911, one hundred years ago, it reorganized as the Charlevoix Rock Products Company. The business quickly grew until by 1913 the company employed 125 men and was shipping out 25 to 35 train carloads of slaked lime and sugared stone a day. But financial problems forced it to close in the early 1920s. After this, the deserted grounds and buildings were known to local residents for many years as simply "the lime kilns." The quarry became the town dump.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's upcoming DVD on the history of Charlevoix that will be available in late July.

Street Legends car show set to roll in Streets in Charlevoix will be packed with vintage cars during the 19th annual Charlevoix Street Legends car show Friday and Saturday, July 15-16.

Friday night will feature the downtown cruise-in during which all the cars will be coming in and parking on the street to be on display. From 6-10 p.m. Dominic Fortuna Rock 'n' Rolla Band will perform in the performance pavilion downtown.

"There will be cars parked in the park as well as on Mason Street. We're having them park on Mason Street this year because last year we ran out of room in the park," said Treasure Eggers, the show's chairperson.

Registration for the show takes place from 9 a.m.-noon on Saturday. Goody bags and dash plaques will be given out to the first 150 cars. Music, door prizes, 50/50 drawings and limbo contests will take place from 10 a.m.-noon throughout the downtown area. A silent auction will also take place from 10 a.m.-noon.

Jake Slater, an Elvis tribute artist, will perform from noon-3 p.m. in the performance pavilion in East Park.

The Charlevoix Street Legends awards ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. Awards include a $500 grand prize, a $300 prize and a $200 prize. These will be given out to the participants of the event who put their name in a drawing.

All car show proceeds go to benefit local charities. During the past 18 years, the Street Legends have donated more than $101,000 back to the community.

Also during the event there will be free inspections on cars given by the National Street Ride Association.

The exhibit titled, "Hot Wheels: Art and the Automobile," features automobile themed pieces and will be on display during this time at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts located on Clinton Street in Charlevoix. There will be historic photographs from the Charlevoix Historical Society and original sketches from Michigan automobile designers.

For more information about the art exhibit, call (231) 547-3554 or visit www.charlevoix-circle.org.

Roth IRA: A Lifetime Investment

Some investments are appropriate during your working years, while others are more suitable for retirement. But a Roth Individual Retirement Account (IRA) can provide you with benefits at virtually every stage of your life. Let's take a quick "journey" through some of these stages to see just how valuable a Roth IRA can be.

To begin with, you can open a Roth IRA at any age, provided you have earned income and meet certain income limits. So if you're just starting out in your career, put as much as you can afford into your Roth IRA and gradually increase your contributions as your income rises, up to the contribution limit. A Roth IRA is an excellent retirement savings vehicle because it can grow tax free and your contributions can be invested into just about any investment you choose — stocks, bonds, mutual funds, CDs and so on.

Of course, when you're young, you might not be thinking much about retirement. But the earlier you start contributing to a Roth IRA, the more you could end up with — and the difference could be substantial. In fact, if you started putting money into a Roth IRA at age 30, and you contributed the maximum amount each year until you reached 65, you would accumulate more than $766,000, assuming you are in the 25% tax bracket and you earned a 7% return, compounded annually. But, given the same assumptions, you'd end up with only about $365,000 if you waited until 40 before you started contributing.

It clearly pays to contribute early and annually to a Roth IRA. (In 2011, the annual contribution limit is $5,000, or $6,000 if you're 50 or older.) There are additional benefits to funding a Roth IRA, such as its flexible withdrawal options, which are available to you even before you retire. Since you already paid taxes on the money you put into your Roth, you can withdraw your contributions at any time without paying taxes or penalties. Generally speaking, it's certainly best to leave your Roth IRA intact for as long as possible. But if there's an emergency and you need access to the funds, you can also withdraw your Roth's earnings tax free, provided you've held your account at least five years and you don't start taking withdrawals until you've reached 59½.

Now, let's fast-forward to your retirement. Unlike other retirement accounts, such as a traditional IRA or a 401(k), your Roth IRA does not require you to start taking withdrawals at age 70½ — or ever. If you don't need the money, you can leave it alone, possibly to grow further, for as long as you like. This means that you might have more money to bequeath to your children or other beneficiaries, and they won't have to pay income taxes on withdrawals from either your contributions or your earnings, provided your Roth IRA account has been open for at least five years. Keep in mind, though, that your beneficiaries will be required to take distributions based on their life expectancy.

As you can see, a Roth IRA can be an excellent financial "traveling companion" as you go through life. So consider adding a Roth to your portfolio — and bon voyage.

Richard H. Dillon

Richard H. Dillon, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, July 2, 2011, at his home. He was born in Ann Arbor to Harold and Bernice (Worner) Dillon. Dick earned a bachelor of science degree from Michigan State University. He served with the Merchant Marine, then worked for thirty years at IBM as a systems engineer.

On March 29, 1980, Dick married Helen Keating in Marquette. They made their home in Charlevoix in 1987. Dick was a captain on the Ironton Ferry for 20 years.

Dick is survived by his wife, Helen; son, Keith J. Dillon of Genoa, Ill.; daughter, Deborah (Mike) Peters of Crystal Lake, Ill.; grandchildren, James, and Marguerite Peters; brother, Joseph Dillon of Grand Rapids; several nieces and their spouses.

A memorial Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m., Tuesday, July 12, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, the Rev. James K. Gardiner will officiate. Friends may meet Dick's family in the gathering space at the church from 10 a.m. until the time of the service.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720; or to, the Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lakeshore Drive, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

If you want to share a memory of Dick, or condolences, you may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Lillian H. Carr, Nov. 6, 1922 - July 9, 2011

Lillian H. Carr, 88, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, July 9, 2011, at her home. She was born Nov. 6, 1922, in Bloomington, Idaho, the daughter of Alfred and Sarah (Patterson) Hart. Lillian graduated from Fielding High School in Paris, Idaho in 1940, and from the Latter Day Saints Business College in Salt Lake City, Utah in 1941.

On Dec. 17, 1942, Lillian married Raymond O. Carr in Salt Lake City. They made their home in Metamora, Ohio, Barryton, Vanderbilt, and Lake City, before moving to Charlevoix in 1966, where Lillian worked as the secretary to the superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools for 18 years, retiring in 1984.

Lillian was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and of the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel.

Lillian is survived by her children, Dennis H. (Connie) Carr of Charlevoix, Diana (Steve) Weisgerber of Tustin, Nancy (Mazen Sayed) Foltz of Dallas-Ft. Worth, Texas, Elaine (Robert) Rydze of Iowa City, Iowa; 11 grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren; sisters, Norma Anderson of San Lorenzo, Calif.; brother, Dr. Douglas (Bonnie) Hart of Logan, Utah. Lillian's husband Raymond preceded her in death on May 12, 1999. She was also preceded in death by six brothers and two sisters.

A memorial service will be 11 a.m., Saturday, July 30, 2011, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where friends may meet Lillian's family from 10 a.m., until the time of the service. Interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Those wishing to share a memory of Lillian, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Edwin George Merta: Sept. 12, 1917 - July 9, 2011

Edwin George Merta, age 93, went to his Lord on Saturday, July 9, 2011, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan in the presence of his loving family.

He was born in Detroit on Sep. 12, 1917, to Joseph and Tillie Merta, who emigrated from Poland in 1911 and was the fourth of their five children. During his lifetime, Ed lived in Detroit, Redford and Wyandotte, and later moved to Boyne City. Ed was baptized, confirmed, and raised Catholic. He was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Wyandotte and St. Augustine Parish in Boyne Falls.

In 1939, Edwin married Sophie Kozlowski at St. Hedwig Catholic Church in Detroit, and together, they made their home in Redford and raised their son, Thomas Edwin Merta Sr.

Because of the early death of his father, Ed started working at Ford Motor Company when he was only 16 years old to help support his mother and family. His career at Ford spanned 42 years of service until he retired in 1976. Ed was a member of Auto Workers Local 36 and he was a union activist and plant committee man who held various union posts to represent members at the Ford Plant in Wixom.

As a young man he played baseball for Ford Motor Company as a semi-pro and then went on to play in the minor leagues for the Detroit Tigers farm system. Baseball remained a lifelong passion and he was a loyal Detroit Tigers fan. He participated in many gardening events and won a contest for growing a blue rose. Gardening remained a source of enjoyment and he always appreciated the beauty of flowers. Ed was artistic. He made beautiful Christmas ornaments and gifts. Throughout his life he loved music and dancing especially polkas. In his 60s he learned to play the button accordion.

After his wife's death in 1975, Ed married Corrine Zynewicz in 1984 and they resided in Boyne City.

In 2008, Ed moved to Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Ed enjoyed interacting with the residents and staff. While there, he took great pride in gardening and making decorations for annual events.

Edwin was preceded in death by his wife, Sophie in 1975; his wife Corrine in 2009; and his loving son, Thomas E. Merta Sr in 1997; his parents, Joseph and Tillie Merta; sister, Nellie Merta Anderson, and brothers: Charles, Joseph and Frank Merta.

Ed is survived by his late son's child, grandson, Thomas E. Merta Jr. of Traverse City. He is also survived by his stepchildren David (Barbara) Zynewicz of East Jordan and Mary Jane (John) Kirby of Gaylord; former daughter-in-law Jacqueline (Francis) Merta Gingras; stepgrandchildren: Michael (Kellie) Zynewicz, Tim Kirby, Kelly Kirby, Stanley (Tricia) Kirby, Kristy (Todd) Loviska and Greg Bennett; seven great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Visitation will take place from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, July 14, with a vigil service at 7 p.m. at St. Augustine Church in Boyne Falls, 2347 Grove St.

At 11 a.m. on Friday, July 15 the Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at St. Augustine Church with Fr. Duane Wachowiak as celebrant. Rite of Committal will take place at a later date at St. Hedwig Cemetery of Dearborn Heights.

Ed's family would like to offer sincere thanks to the staff of Grandvue Medical Care Facility for their exceptional and loving care of Ed.

Memorials may be made to St. Augustine Church or Grandvue.

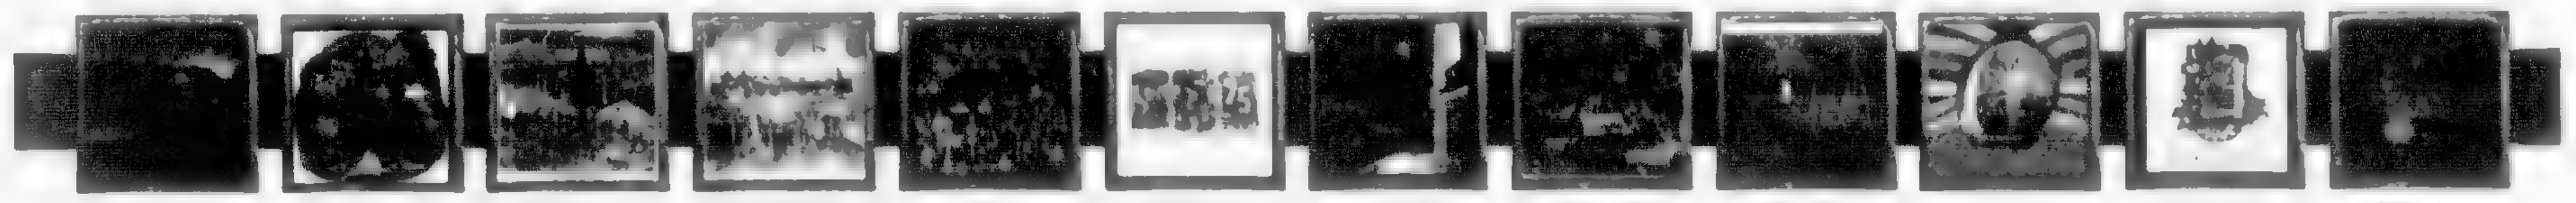
Brothers' bracelets to bolster Ventian Festival bucks



STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Two brothers are hoping their unique jewelry product will offer Venetian Festival fans a way to support the popular event both in spirit and in cold, hard cash.

Glenn and Link Wachler's product, named LifeLinks, is a system that starts with a sized-to-fit rubberized wristband (available in multiple colors) similar to the many cause-based wristbands such as those for the Lance Armstrong LIVESTRONG cancer organization.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Using the Wachler brothers' system, once you have a wristband, you can start adding "Links" to it much like one might with a charm bracelet. The Wachlers have a large selection of the square metal links ranging in size from 9, 13 and 18 millimeters on a wide array of topics that fit on the band.

The idea behind the product, the brothers explain, is that each person can customize the bracelet with things that are important to him or her. For instance a person might choose links that represent family, love, a sport, a hobby, a virtue. Photos and other links are also available.

For this year's festival, the brother's have come up with a way for people to learn about their product, show their support and fondness for the Venetian Festival and help support the festival all at the same time.

Throughout the festival, the Wachler brothers will be selling their LifeLinks product next to the festival merchandise tent with special "Charlevoix" wristbands and they have now added full line of Venetian Festival links that include all 12 years of paintings, the festival's logo and fireworks bursts.

In addition to donating 1,300 of the bracelets to festival volunteers and pre-order shirt customers, the Wachler brothers will be donating 50 percent of all their sales during the week (not just Venetian-related items) back to the festival organization.

"We are excited to work with the Venetian Festival and raise money for such an outstanding free event," Glenn Wachler said. "We are hoping to raise at least $3,000."

The bracelets by themselves are available to the public for $1 each in one of five colors — black, aqua, hot pink, neon green, and glow in the dark. Those who want to have the bracelet sized perfectly can get the stainless steel sizing buckle for an additional $1. Additional LifeLinks are at Elements Gallery by the bridge. Other exclusive LifeLinks are available at Todd Warner Galleries. To see the Wachlers' complete line of Venetian and other LifeLinks and to learn more about the product or place orders visit www.ultexp.com/venetian.

St. Marys Cement to donate gravel to road commission

County officials must to look for a way to pay for crushing

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix's St. Marys Cement has offered to donate 40,000 tons of material from its quarry to the Charlevoix County Road Commission to use for gravel, but the gift doesn't come without a cost.

St. Marys is unable to use the pit run gravel in its cement-making, but the stuff is ideal for road and highway shoulders, road commission officials said. The trouble is, the material must yet be crushed and that work will cost $102,400.

Reinhardt

"It will still be cheaper than buying it," said Ron Reinhardt, county commissioner.

Officials estimate the donation will save the road commission about $60,000.

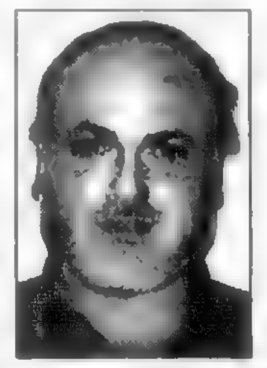
Dirk Cox, St. Marys plant operations manager, could not be reached for comment.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission on Monday discussed the plant's donation and how best to pay for the work required by it. One bright spot is the successful crushing bid from Charlevoix's Rieth-Riley came in more than $57,000 less than expected.

"That's pennies from heaven right there," said Russ MaGee, road commissioner.

Road officials will on Friday ask the county's board of bommissioners to contribute $50,000 to help pay for the gravel crushing. The road commission's portion is expected to come from the preventative maintenance fund.

"We'll crunch some numbers and see how we'll pay for it," said Pat Harmon, road commission manager.



Harmon

The gift comes just as the county's existing stockpile of similar material dwindles from its last-known 2,000-ton level. The 40,000 tons of new gravel likely will last three or four years, Harmon said.

"It's a great deal for Charlevoix County. Period," said Rich Gillespie, county commissioner.

Gillespie

Road commissioners received three bids for the crushing work, including one for $166,000 from MDC Contracting in Charlevoix and the last for $220,000 from Team Elmer's in Gaylord.

The donated gravel will be crushed and stored at the St. Marys site, where road commission workers will be permitted access to it.

The road commission also on Monday awarded two Afton stone placement contracts to Petoskey-based Poquette Leasing Co., the first for Jenkins Road and the other for Studer Road, both in Hudson Township. Each project is nearly a half-mile and the total for both sites comes to $42,976.

Applicants sought for Leadership Charlevoix County

Leadership Charlevoix County, a newly established cooperative leadership training effort by the county's four chambers of commerce, is kicking off its first year with a curriculum that incorporates various businesses and locations around Charlevoix County led by strong community leaders. The program will identify new, emerging, and potential leaders as individual leadership skills are strengthened and increased awareness is brought to community needs.

Leadership Charlevoix County will consist of an orientation in August, a two day retreat in September, one full day per month sessions from October through May, and a late May graduation ceremony. The program will focus on leadership skills associated with government, health and human services, personal growth economic development, education, arts, culture, philanthropy, environment and natural resources.

Applications are now available on the Leadership Charlevoix County website, www.leadershipcharlevoixcounty.com. Anyone seeking more information about the program may contact its coordinator, Mishelle Shooks at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547.2101 or via email at shooks@charlevoix.org. Questions may also be directed to the Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix and Beaver Island chambers of commerce.

This program was made possible by a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Our mission is to support commerce and provide leadership to enhance the quality of life.

July's Business of the Month

The Business of the Month is a business that goes above and beyond business as usual, positively impacting the community. This business is selected by the Chamber Ambassador Committee and will be a contender for the Chamber's Business of the Year Award. This prestigious award is presented at the Chamber's Annual Gala. We are proud to present to you July's Business of the month:

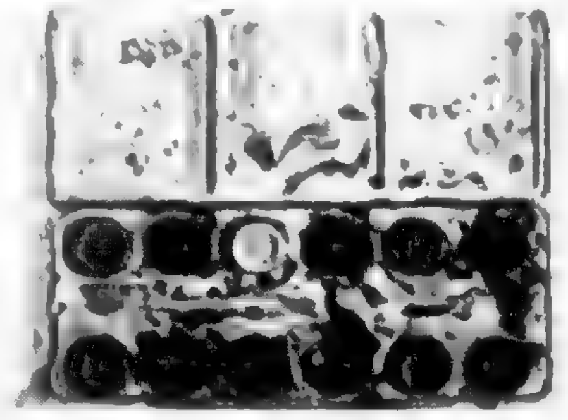
Char-Em United Way
2350 Mitchell Park Drive
Petoskey, MI 49770-9600
(231) 487-1006

Char-Em United Way has been doing business since 1943, they say that the best part of doing business in Charlevoix is that "the community is very generous and creative in helping meet the needs of all residents."

Leadership Charlevoix County

Leadership Charlevoix County Application available Soon!

The Steering Committee and Program Coordinator for Leadership Charlevoix County have been working hard to create a strong curriculum for this new and exciting program. Charlevoix County will soon have a way to identify new and emerging leaders while strengthening individual leadership skills and increasing awareness of the community needs. Leadership Charlevoix County will consist of an orientation, one full day per month sessions from September through May, and a graduation ceremony. The main topics for the sessions will include: Connecting with Your Government, Health and Human Services, Economic Development, Education Today, Building Your Tool Box, Arts, Culture and Philanthropy, Your Environment and Natural Resources, and Where Do We Go from Here? Each session will cover various skills associated with leadership and will include strong community leaders, businesses, and projects throughout the county. Applications will be available beginning Tuesday, July 12, 2011. If you would like more information about the program or have questions, please contact Mishelle Shooks, Program Coordinator for LCC, at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 231.547.2101, email shooks@charlevoix.org or visit www.leadershipcharlevoixcounty.com. LCC is sponsored by the Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan Chambers of Commerce with support from the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce.



43rd Annual Art and Craft Show

Combine one of the most picturesque settings in the state with a gathering of 150 artists and craftsmen from around the country, and the result is Charlevoix's 42nd Annual Art & Craft Show. This popular event will take place downtown Charlevoix in East Park on July 9 from 10-6 and July 10 from 10-4.

This year's show has something for everyone, offering an exciting mix of fine arts and hobby crafts. Acrylic and oil paintings, sculpture, hand blown glass beadwork, pottery, baskets, furniture, clothing, hand woven rugs and quilted works are just a few of the things you will find. It is a spectacular representation of craftsmanship and artwork with many fun and unique products to choose from.

Farmers Market: Every Thursday

Summer is upon us and that means it's time for the Farmers Market! It will be held every Thursday in downtown East Park from 9am to 1pm. Buy the best and freshest baked goods, fruits, vegetables, flowers, cheese, and much more. Meet friends and neighbors, take home a new recipe, and enjoy yourself on market day. We hope to see you there!

REMINDER: NO BAH/FFBB

Remember that because we're in the busy season, there will be no First Friday Business Breakfast or Business After Hours until September. See you in the Fall!

Thank You Beaver Island!

On Monday July 20th the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, along with representatives from other area chambers took a trip to Beaver Island to learn all about Island life, history, recreation, and tourism. The Charlevoix Chamber would like to extend a thank you to the Beaver Island Boat Company, the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce and all the welcoming citizens on the island for making out trip so enjoyable.

www.charlevoix.org Is Working For You

Are you using the interactive features on the Chamber's new website to the fullest? Don't forget to post your events, job openings and press releases online at www.charlevoix.org. Send us your keywords to enhance your search criteria. We can also post a business description (50-75 words) with your listing at no additional cost. Since launching the site in April, the requests for Visitor Information and Relocation Packets have been pouring in daily. People from around the country are visiting the site and contacting us with questions and requests. It's really exciting to see the new website in action. The more exposure the better, so submit your information as often as possible. This is your website, and it's designed to work for you.

Thank You Site Planning!

The Charlevoix Chamber would like to extend a thank you to Site Planning and Development for planting and maintaining the beautiful flower beds outside of the Chamber office this summer! For more information about Site Planning's services contact them at www.siteplanning.com.

Diabetes education could save life of sufferers

STAFF WRITER

A year ago, doctors told Chris Nunemaker that if she didn't start taking her health seriously, her kidneys would fail her.

The 47-year-old Charlevoix resident was diagnosed with pre-diabetes in 2005 and put on medication to help control her blood sugar levels.

Then in 2008, she was diagnosed as a Type 2 diabetic.

"I don't have a history of diabetes, but I was severely overweight," Nunemaker said. "I just never took my health seriously, but when the doctor told me I had to get my numbers under control or my kidneys could shut down, I knew I had to do something."

Nunemaker enlisted the help of Peggy Spang, a diabetes program coordinator and educator at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Since 1997, the hospital has offered a nationally certified diabetes education program to help teach patients how to manage the disease.

The program focuses on healthy meal options and exercise plans, how to use a glucometer and check blood sugar levels. Spang also works with patients to set up individual health goals and improve their overall health with an individualized approach.

And with the increase in number of diabetic patients in the United States in recent years, the need for the program has grown.

"We have a good number of patients come through the program each year and we've seen an increase in the number of patients with diabetes," Spang explained. "But there's also the changing economy, and not as many are able to come through the program because they have lost their health insurance and that is something we have to address and continue to meet the needs of our patients."

The diabetes education courses are offered on a regular basis and are divided into two classes, four hours each with a variety of topics covered. A doctor's referral is needed.

Spang said most insurance companies cover about 10 hours of diabetes education, then each year another two hours of education for an update. Medicare and Medicaid are also accepted.

For Nunemaker, the program was priceless.

"I take the program seriously and have lost 55 pounds since the beginning of this year," Nunemaker said. "I watch what I eat and try to cut out sugars and I walk five to eight miles a day. Everyone with diabetes or at risk should go through this program. It saved my life."

"It's exciting and she has a great story," Spang added. "Chris is my star student."

Charlevoix Area Hospital also offers a pre-diabetes class for those who have been diagnosed with pre-diabetes or those who may be at risk for diabetes. The class is three hours and offers tips on reducing the risk through healthy eating and safe exercise. The class is offered once a month and is not covered by insurance.

For information and class schedules for the diabetes health education program at Charlevoix Area Hospital, call Peggy Spang at (231) 547-8571.

Diabetes is a condition in which the body is unable to use the sugar from the food you eat, which causes too much sugar in the blood. Too much sugar leads to complications, such as heart attacks, stroke, kidney damage, blindness and amputation.

- Among U.S. residents ages 65 and older, 10.9 million, or 26.9 percent had diabetes in 2010.
- There are an estimated 79 million American adults, ages 20 or older, with pre-diabetes.
- Risk factors for diabetes include being older than 45, overweight, physically inactive, family history of diabetes, elevated blood pressure and those of African American, Latino, Native American or Asian-American decent.

Simon earns honors at dressage event

Charlevoix resident Suzannah K. Simon, under the training of Kim Aikens, rode with her 21 year old Hanoverian Cross, Sam I Am, and won three grand championships and one reserve championship in Levels Three and Four in junior Young Rider Division at the in the recent Horse Shows by the Bay in Traverse City.

Simon, who was among 250 riders from around the country who took part in the event, rides at Maple Ridge Farm in Horton Bay.

Dressage is a French word meaning training, and is the art of developing through standardized, progressive training methods, a horse's natural athletic ability and willingness to perform. A dressage rider develops the horse's obediance, flexibility and balance which maximizes its lifetime potential physically and mentally as a riding horse.

Horse Shows by the Bay takes place at Flintfields Horse Park, an 80-acre show complex on Bates Road, one half mile north of M 72 in Acme Township. Founded in 2004, the competitions being offered carry the highest rating allowed by the United States Equestrian Federation, and has been recognized by the North American Riding Group as a "top 25" horse show offering show jumping, dressage, show hunters and equitation competition. A detailed schedule can be found at www.horseshowbythebay.com or by calling (231) 367-3700.

Hot bats lead BASES to Cornfest Tournament title

AUBURN — BASES of the Petoskey Men's Fast Pitch Softball League defeated River Dawgs of Vasser, 12-5, in the championship game Sunday to capture the title in the 37th annual Cornfest Tournament.

BASES went 3-1 in pool play, then downed Wright Way of Eaton Rapids, 12-6, in a semifinal to reach the title game against the River Dawgs. The 13-team tournament was for Men's Class D-E teams.

Doyle Dustin II won four games in the circle for BASES, while John Bush was the team's top hitter. Bush hit .696 in the tournament (16-for-23) with five home runs and five doubles.

Bush ripped two homers in the title game, including a walk-off shot that gave BASES a seven-run lead and ended the game on the mercy rule in the fifth inning.

Also for BASES, Tom Tryban hit .636 (14-for-22), Scott Kelly hit .458 (11-for-24), Nick Karaszewski hit .474 (9-for-19), Greg Heath hit .500 (6-for-12), and Matt Zulski hit .444 (8-for-18). As a team, BASES hit .444.

BASES opened the tournament with a 14-3 four-inning win over Nick's of Vasser, then dropped a 6-5 decision to the Home Town Mets of Midland. BASES then reeled off back-to-back wins to finish 3-1 in pool play. The first was an 18-2 victory in three innings of Boulevard Lounge of Midland, the second a 15-2 six inning win over Misfits of Bay City. That win put BASES into bracket play, where it beat Wright Way and then the River Dawgs.

Pre-registration under way for Rayder Football Camp

The second annual Rayder Football Camp will take place Wednesday and Thursday July 27-28 for students entering grades four-eight. The camp will take place at Kipke Field next to the Charlevoix Middle School from 6-8 pm. Camp check-in will begin at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 27.

The director of the camp will be Charlevoix High School Varsity Football Coach Don Jess. Jess, now entering his ninth year as Charlevoix's head coach, is was a Charlevoix Rayder all-stater and played at the college level at Alma College and professionally in Europe. Jess will be assisted by the Charlevoix High School and Charlevoix Middle School coaching staffs and Charlevoix Pop Warner coaches.

The purpose of the camp is to develop football skills in all aspects of football including passing, catching, blocking, tackling, pass coverage and individual position techniques.

Pre-registration for the camp by July 15, 2011 is $30 and includes a T-shirt. The registration fee after July 15 is $40 and T-shirts will be on a first come basis, while supplies last. All proceeds from the camp will be used to purchase equipment for Charlevoix's Pop Warner and Middle School Football programs.

Camp registration forms can be found at www.rayder-football.com/RGC-Events.html. Checks can be made out to the Rayder Gridiron Club and mailed to P.O. Box 754, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Campers must bring gym shoes or football cleats and workout clothes.

Fourth annual All School Reunion

The Charlevoix High School Alumni Association invites all Charlevoix High School graduates, teachers, and administrators from the 1930s to 2011 to its fourth annual All School Reunion from 12:30-3 p.m. on Saturday, July 23 in the lower level of the Weathervane Restaurant.

Yearbooks and memorabilia will be available for nostalgic glimpses of the past. Tables for this event will be arranged by decade to help alumni find former classmates, teammates, and friends.

There is no charge for this event, but those who wish to pay the $5 yearly alumni dues may do so at the reunion. Snacks, lemonade and ice tea will be served and a cash bar will be available.

Any class wishing to display memorabilia should contact the alumni association by July 15 at (231) 222-2163.

The alumni band will be playing in the Venetian parade and welcomes everyone to sing along with the original CHS fight song: Oh Red and White Forever.

ORV classes offered

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's office will offer an off road vehicle training class for those citizens who need to comply with the Michigan State law.

Training will take place from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on Sunday, July 24 the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office, 1000 Grant St. in Charlevoix. Picture I.D. is required by all students.

State law requires those who do not have a valid Michigan driver's license, to complete and pass the above approved training program. With successful completion of the course, each student will be provided a certificate of training allowing them to operate an off road vehicle under the Michigan State Law.

Anyone wishing to attend this free training, must go to the Charlevoix County web page: www.charlevoixcounty.org and go to the "Sheriff's" link to fill out the application and forward the type written application to the Sheriff's Office, 1000 Grant St., Charlevoix, Mich. 49720, attention to deputy Genna Gauthier. Applications may also be emailed to gauthierg@charlevoixcounty.org.

Foster parents needed in area

NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

You don't have to be the perfect parent to foster a child.

It's a message the state of Michigan has expressed for years. It's also a message that Sharie Plain, a foster care worker with the Michigan Department of Human Services in Petoskey, wants to remind those living in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

"We're always recruiting new foster parents and we're at a shortage right now. It's not just a local shortage either, it's a statewide shortage," Plain said.

Currently, the Charlevoix-Emmet Department of Human Services is responsible for 85 children in the two counties that have been placed out of their home because of abuse or neglect. Plain said that number is consistent with their usual numbers that run between 80-100 children at any given time.

However, the problem is that there are currently only about 50 licensed foster care homes in the two counties. In addition, half of these homes are licensed only for a child or children related to them.

Because of the shortage, there have been some cases in which children have been placed in foster homes as far away as Newberry.

"We always try to keep siblings together and try to keep children close to family members, but with the shortage it doesn't always work that way," Plain explained. "It's definitely a problem and it really hurts these kids."

Plain said she believes the economy has contributed to the shortage of area foster families. She notes that some believe they may have to leave their job in order to care for foster children, but that's not the case.

"Most families receive about $400 a month to help care for a foster child and these children are covered by Medicaid," she explained. "And I know it's not always a rosy scenario, but these children really do need to have someone that can offer them the support they sometimes don't have."

Since getting a foster child back into the home with a their biological parents is almost always the goal, foster families need to be willing to work with the child's family. Regular visits are scheduled.

However, there are times where parental rights have been terminated and those children are often then up for adoption.

"We like to place adoptive children in a foster home with the hope that the foster family would adopt, but there are times these children are placed in a home while we still look for an adoptive family," Plain said.

Foster parents also need to be willing to be patient with and work with foster children, since many have fallen behind socially and academically because of problems at home and constant moves.

Plain added that another goal is to transition foster teens toward independent living. At the age of 18, foster teens do receive help with funds for college and housing and are often paired up with a mentor.

"In my experience, foster families feel they do make a connection — it's a worthwhile experience for them," Plain said. "And the foster children really look to these families as role models and become attached."

To be a foster parent in the state of Michigan, you need to be over the age of 18 and able to work with children who may have emotional and behavioral needs, willing to work with the child's birth parents and also able to help transition foster teens into independent living.

The Department of Human Services also offers training and support to foster parents and families.

This year, the department's goal is to increase the number of licensed homes by 24 in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

"You really don't have to be the perfect parent. You don't have to be married or own a home," Plain said. "People shouldn't look at fostering as a job. I think there are a lot of people out there that could provide a wonderful home for a child or two and make a big difference in someone's life."

For more information on becoming a foster parent, call Sharie Plain at (231) 348-1614 or visit www.michigan.gov/DHS.

Nick Homan, of East Jordan, talks to Don Crewes, of Traverse City, about his cedar drift boat on display Saturday at the annual South Arm Classic Boat Show in East Jordan. The boat is designed for river fishing, Homan said.

Cause of apartment house fire still under investigation

Charlevoix Fire Department officials are still working with insurance investigators to determine what caused a July 4 fire that caused extensive damage to a house with three apartments in it.

Firefighters were called to a three-story home at 801 State St. at about 10:20 p.m. when a passer-by called 9-1-1 to report that the building was on fire.

Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said the house had been renovated extensively over the years and currently housed three apartments. He said all three apartments were in use, but only the second floor apartment was occupied at the time of the fire. The two occupants of that apartment were able to escape from the fire. They were treated at Charlevoix Area Hospital for minor injuries.

Ivan said, so far, investigators have determined that the fire started in the second floor apartment and that it was not caused by electrical, mechanical or some other malfunction. He said although conflicting witness reports have made it difficult to nail down exactly what took place in the apartment leading up to the fire, investigators do not believe the fire was intentionally set.

Ivan said the future to the heavily-damaged structure will be up to the owner, Chuck Rehmann of Petoskey, and the insurance company. However, he noted that the city participates in a statewide program under which it can hold up to 25 percent of fire insurance settlement (not to exceed $7,873) in escrow until the damaged structure is repaired or demolished.

NOTICE

This firm is a debt collector attempting to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for this purpose. If you are in the Military, please contact our office at the number listed below. Notwithstanding, if the debt secured by this property was discharged in a Chapter 7 Bankruptcy proceeding, this notice is NOT an attempt to collect that debt. You are presently in default under your Mortgage Security Agreement, and the Mortgage Holder may be contemplating the commencement of foreclosure proceedings under the terms of that Agreement and Michigan law. You have no legal obligation to pay amounts due under the discharged note. A loan modification may not serve to revive that obligation. However, in the event you wish to explore options that may avert foreclosure, please contact our office at the number listed below. Attention: The following notice shall apply only if the property encumbered by the mortgage described below is claimed as a principal residence exempt from tax under section 7cc of the general property tax act, 1893 PA 206, MCL 211.7cc. Attention Billie Kurkierewicz aka Billie Jo Wagner, regarding the property at 1404 W. Mason Creek, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The following notice does not apply if you have previously agreed to modify the mortgage loan under section 3205b. 3205a, 3205b and 3205c do not apply unless the terms of the modified mortgage loan entered into were complied with for one year after the date of the modification. You have the right to request a meeting with your mortgage holder or mortgage servicer. Northwestern Bank is your mortgage servicer, with authority to make agreements under MCL 600.3205b and MCL 600.3205c, and can be contacted at: 625 S. Garfield Ave Traverse City, MI 49686 (800) 968-4754. You may also contact a housing counselor. For more information, contact the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) by visiting www.michigan.gov/mshda or calling (866) 946-7432. If you request a meeting with Northwestern Bank within 14 days after the notice required under MCL 600.3205a(1) is mailed, then foreclosure proceedings will not commence until at least 90 days after the date said notice was mailed. If an agreement to modify the mortgage loan is reached and you abide by the terms of the agreement, the mortgage will not be foreclosed. You have the right to contact an attorney and can obtain contact information through the State Bar of Michigan's Lawyer Referral Service at (800) 968-0738.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
PO Box 30458

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TAKE NOTICE, that the Water Resources Division (WRD) of the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) will hold a public hearing at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Training Room in the Basement, Jail Entrance, 1000 Grant Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720-1674, on Wednesday, July 27, 2011, at 7:00 p.m.

The purpose of this hearing is to secure the views of interested persons concerning the following application for permit:

Application for Permit 11-15-0020-P under Part 301, Inland Lakes and Streams, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451, as amended, by Kermit Sutton, 715 Tenth Street, South, Naples, Florida 34102. The applicant proposes to construct a boardwalk and additional dock on Round Lake at 4 Thistledowns for personal recreational use. A 6-foot wide by 80-foot long open-pile boardwalk/dock, incorporating the two existing 6-foot wide docks, will be constructed parallel with the shoreline connecting two existing docks and a proposed third new dock. The new open-pile dock, along the east property line will be 6 feet wide by 55 feet long. Four pilings between the two existing docks will be removed. No dredging is proposed with this project. The project is located in T34N, R8W, Section 26, City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

The application is available for review at the DEQ website, www.deq.state.mi.us/CIWPIS, or may be reviewed in the WRD, DEQ, 2100 West M-32, Gaylord, Michigan 49735-9282, by calling 989-731-4920. The public hearing record will remain open for 10 days after the public hearing date. Any written comments to be submitted for the public hearing record must be received at this address on or before the close of the record.

The hearing will be held pursuant to Section 30105 of the cited statute. The hearing will not be a court-type proceeding; witnesses will not be sworn, and there will be no cross examination. Public hearings are primarily informational and are held to encourage the expression of views and presentation of facts.

The DEQ will, upon written request, provide a copy of the Department's decision on this application.

Pickleball players, please — Pickleball has arrived in Charlevoix. Pickleball courts have been added to the city tennis courts on Elm Street. Pickleball is a tennis-like game that is played on a badminton court with the net lowered to 34 inches at the center. It is played with a perforated plastic baseball (similar to a whiffle ball) and wood or composite paddles. If you are interested in group playing times contact Kay Baldwin at (517) 402-1243 or KayLBaldwin@gmail.com. Beginners welcome.

Cancer support group — Circle of Strength Cancer Support Group meets 10:30 a.m.-noon on the first Wednesday of every month at Charlevoix Area Hospital in the large classroom on the lower level of Charlevoix Area Hospital hospital and on Beaver Island-Medical Center at the same time each month. The group welcomes anyone in the area to join for sharing, learning and making new friends.

Pancake breakfasts — The Charlevoix American Legion post hosts a pancake breakfast from 7:30-11:30 a.m. the first Sunday of the month at the Charlevoix VFW hall, located at 12735 U.S. 31 North. However, because of a scheduling conflict, the next breakfast will take place on Sunday, July 17. Adults are $5 and children are $3. The meal is all you can eat and includes sausage, eggs and "all the fixings." Take is out available and the hall is handicap accessible. For more info call the Legion (231) 675-4444.

Free exercise class — Beacon Dental Center in Charlevoix will offer free Zumba exercise classes on Wednesdays beginning June 22. The classes will take place (weather permitting) from 5:30-6:15 p.m. throughout the summer in the parking lot of the Beacon Dental Center, 06483 M-66 North. Carol Sullivan, a certified Zumba and aerobics instructor will lead the classes combine high-energy Latin and international beats with easy to follow dance moves. Previous experience is not necessary. Classes are sponsored by Dr. Michael Sullivan and Beacon Dental Center. For more information call (231) 547-9141.

He will share the skill of creating color and painting from a photograph using both the knife and a brush.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Storm claims two WingNuts sailors

Six other crew members rescued after boat capsizes in Lake Michigan

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The crew of the WingNuts knew trouble was brewing in northern Lake Michigan.

As lightning bolts erupted from a midnight sky and gusts kicked up churning waves, the eight people aboard the 35-foot sailboat dropped their main sail and clipped on safety lines. Their vessel, among hundreds taking part in the annual race from Chicago to Mackinac Island, was near North Fox Island off the northwest Michigan coast when disaster struck.

A gust estimated at 75 mph hammered WingNuts, flipping it over. The capsized boat heaved up and down in 4- to -6-foot waves as six members of the crew managed to cut or unclip their lines, cling to the hull and signal for help.

But their beloved skipper, Mark Morley, and crew member Suzanne Bickel could not free themselves. A Charlevoix County dive team found them dead about eight hours after the survivors were rescued by Sociable, a competing ship.

"The WingNuts crew is indebted to the crew of the Sociable and are heartbroken over the loss of their crew members, Mark and Suzanne," the survivors said in a statement that described the accident.

The deaths are the first caused by the weather or an accident in the race's 103-year history, although one sailor died years ago of a heart attack, said Rachelle Treiber, spokeswoman for the Chicago Yacht Club, which organizes the event.

Morley, 51, and Bickel, 40, were boat racing veterans. Morley had participated in six Chicago-Mackinac races and Bickel had taken part in two, the yacht club said.

Despite their experience and preparation, the storm was too sudden and powerful.

"It was among the nastiest, if not the nastiest, that I've seen," said Adam Hollerbach, 33, of Detroit, who sailed aboard the 70 foot vessel Details. He said his boat reached Mackinac Island's harbor just as the storm unleashed its fury, with wildly shifting gusts, lightning bolts and stinging hail.

On the open lake, the WingNuts team bore the brunt.

"They knew it was coming but it just sort of caught the boat the wrong way," said Chip Cummings of Rockford, whose

Grand marshals with a grand Charlevoix vision

Castle Farms owners Richard and Linda Mueller named Venetian parade grand marshals

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

It was a little more than 10 years ago when Richard and Linda Mueller had a vision of something grand for a collection of a run-down stone-and-mortar buildings south of Charlevoix.

They weren't sure exactly what that "something" was, but they knew it was there and purchased the Castle Farms property with an eye toward restoring it for future generations.

Originally built in 1918 by then president of Sears Roebuck, and Company as a model farm, it was later used for storage, an art studio and gallery, an in the 1980s and early 90s was well-known as a venue for many rock concerts.

The Muellers have deep roots in Charlevoix. Richard's family has been spending summers in Charlevoix for generations and his great-grandfather was one of the founders of the Belvedere Golf Club.

The Muellers said they had many ideas for Castle Farms as the restoration project took shape, but when the project was completed in 2005 and they began hosting events on the site it became clear what their business bread-and-butter would be: weddings.

The Muellers discovered that their project was the perfect backdrop for brides and grooms seeking that fairy tale wedding. Today Castle Farms draws thousands through its gates every year for weddings, festivals, re ceptions, corporate and social events and tours of the castle and the many gardens Linda has designed and nurtured on the grounds over the years.

Richard and Linda Mueller, who transformed the once run-down Castle Farms south of Charlevoix (pictured in background) into a well-known wedding and events venue, have been named grand marshals for this year's Charlevoix Venetian Festival Street Parade.

The ripple effect of their business extends beyond the aesthetics of the site. Castle Farms employs 11 full-time and 15 part-time employees, and that's to say nothing of the many caterers and other businesses that serve their clients and the hotel rooms and dining room seats they fill in the area.

It's for all these cultural and economic reasons that officials with the Charlevoix Venetian Festival have named the Muellers as the grand marshals for the 2011 street parade.

"We were stunned. Totally surprised. But what an honor," Richard Mueller said of receiving the phone call on Friday from Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson asking them to serve as grand marshals of the parade.

"We seemed to have been called to restore this place," Richard added. "It's been a joy."

"Our mission is to be a blessing to Charlevoix," Linda said. "God has really blessed us."

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival Street Parade takes place on Bridge Street beginning at about 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 23, immediately following the Ryan Shay Mile run.

Canoeists rescued from Lake Michigan

A crew from U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix transports a pair of canoeists (back to camera) and their canoe down the Pine River Channel and back to shore after rescuing them from Lake Michigan whre their canoe capsized Friday.

A crew from U.S. Coast Guard Station, Charlevoix rescued two people from Lake Michigan after their canoe capsized off shore from Charlevoix Friday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the rescued people as, Dale Anderson, 68, and his wife Beverly Anderson, 67, both of Charlevoix.

According to a sheriff's office news release, emergency crews were called to the area north of the Pine River Channel about a half-mile off shore from the area of Mount McSauba around 1:15 p.m. to a report of a capsized vessel and people in the water calling for help.

In a separate news-release, Coast Guard officials said a crew from U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix who was already in the area conducting training with an MH-65C Dolphin rescue helicopter from Air Station Detroit responded in the station's 41-foot rescue vessel.

The Coast Guard crew located the canoeists in the water and pulled them aboard their boat to safety. Around 2 p.m. the Coast Guard crew returned to Charlevoix with the two canoeists and their canoe, which was outfitted with a small outboard motor.

Officials said both canoeists were in good condition.

Witnesses also reported that there may have been a dog aboard the canoe, but Coast Guard spokesman at Ninth District Headquarters said the responding boat crew did not mention a dog in their report.

Coast Guard officials said neither of the rescued canoeists were wearing a life jacket.

The Coast Guard reminds boaters that a personal flotation device, or life jacket, should be one of a paddler's primary pieces of safety gear.

"Any PFD worn is better than none at all. However, the Coast Guard recommends paddlers use PFDs that are inherently buoyant rather than inflatable, which makes reentering a paddlecraft, especially a sit-inside kayak, easier in the event of a roll-over. PFDs should be brightly colored to increase visibility to boaters in power and sail craft," Coast guard official said in the release.

Minor collission delays Beaver Island ferry

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Beaver Island ferry "Emerald Isle" was delayed about four hours in departing for its last trip to the island for the day Thursday, July 14, following a minor collision with a private pleasure craft as it arrived in Charlevoix.

U.S. Coast Guard and a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office marine patrol deputy were called to the area of the Beaver Island Boat Company's dock on Round Lake at about 2:15 p.m. to a report of the collision between the Emerald Isle and another vessel.

At the dock, the captain of the approximately 30-foot pleasure boat "Northern Benefits" could be overheard telling Coast Guard crews that there had been contact between his vessel and the side of the ferry in the Pine River Channel as the ferry was arriving around 2 p.m. The captain told Coast Guard crews that there were no injuries about his boat. Damage, if any, to the smaller vessel was very minimal. There were no reports of injuries aboard or damage to the Emerald Isle.

Barbara Schwartzfisher, executive director of the Beaver Island Transportation Authority, which owns the Emerald Isle, said the ferry's 2:30 p.m. departure from Charlevoix was delayed until about 6:45 p.m. while Coast Guard officials conducted their investigation.

The ferry made a return trip from the island later Thursday night to bring passengers and freight that had been scheduled to leave the island at 5:20 p.m. back to the mainland. Ferry service was back to its normal schedule Friday morning.

On Friday, Coast Guard officials from Sault Ste. Marie said the incident is still under investigation.

OPINIONS yours & ours

What would Darwin write if he were around today?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I have just completed re-reading "The Origin of Species," Charles Darwin's great 19th century book proposing a new explanation for how the world came to have such a remarkable array of plant and animal organisms. The first edition of the book was issued in November of 1859, and it continues to make an impression on any reader.

The word "evolution" does not appear in the book although, the last word of his conclusion is "evolved." Darwin writes repeatedly about what he calls "descent with modification," a pretty-much non-controversial idea, even in 1859.

The breadth of Darwin's knowledge of natural history is the most remarkable impression to emerge from reading "The Origin of Species." In a single sentence he can comfortably refer to the inheritance of horn shape in cattle and the development of larval cirripedes (those are barnacles), about which Darwin was one of that time's leading authorities. He was also a recognized authority on the pollination of orchids and the soil-building activities of earthworms, among other special studies.

Darwin literally spent a lifetime accumulating the knowledge to attempt an answer to the profound question of why there were so many kinds of organisms and why they differed so much from one place on earth to another. Most people of his time, and nearly everyone in the modern world, agree that he provided a most useful and insightful answer to that question.

Darwin did not write about the origin of life or the origin of the universe. He considered both of those to be well beyond our capacity to understand. I have wondered what he might have said if our present cosmological and biochemical knowledge had been available to him.

"The Origin of Species" is not easy reading. The formal language of the 19th century combined with his many references to other naturalists, and all the Latin names might put off most casual readers. If you do not wish to attempt the whole 500 pages, I would suggest reading Chapter XV, "Recapitulation and Conclusion." Darwin begins the chapter with this sentence: "As this whole volume is one long argument, it may be convenient to the reader to have the leading facts and inferences briefly recapitulated." Note that he has carefully distinguished "facts" from "inferences," something many present day writers fail to do.

I can only conclude, as Darwin did, with the final sentence of the book. It states his own attitudes and understandings so well. "There is grandeur in this view of life with its several powers, having been originally breathed by the Creator into a few forms or into one; and that, while this planet has gone circling on according to the fixed law of gravity, from so simple a beginning endless forms most beautiful and most wonderful have been, and are being evolved."

Street Legends car show a success

Dear Editor,

The Charlevoix Street Legends would like to thank all of our many generous sponsors for supporting our 19th annual car show. Thanks for sponsoring a class, buying an ad in our flyer or donating a door prize/auction item. Thanks also to all participants who brought their great cars to downtown Charlevoix. Thanks to everyone who bought a silent auction item, a T-shirt or a 50/50 ticket. Because of your help we hope to have raised around $10,000 to donate to local charities. It takes all your great support to make our show a success. Many participants thanked us for a great show in such a beautiful venue. We are looking forward to our 20th annual show in 2012!

Thanks so much!!

Treasure Eggers, 2011 Car Show Chairman

Editor:

Thanks to these fine men: Brandon Hughes, David Corcoran and David Slough, the plant plastics recycling collection at Kmart in Charlevoix was a very organized, productive day on June 25. These men stacked the plant plastics to size and number. They packed 10 large, overflowing gaylord boxes.

Boyne City thanks the eight member of the garden club, Boy Scouts and Boyne Avenue Greenhouse for volunteering. East Jordan thanks the transfer station, our board members and the garden club for helping. A special thanks goes to Susan Vrondran for organizing this whole project. She spends many hours volunteering, is very dedicated and is always one step ahead of the board with great recycling ideas.

East Jordan Plastics takes back a semi trailer full of overflowing gaylord boxes from our Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan sites. We are so fortunate someone is in the area to do this. East Jordan Plastics makes next year's plant plastics out of this year's recycled plastics.

Again, thanks to everyone for recycling and helping our world be a better place to live in for future generations.

If you would like more information on recycling, go to www.charlevoixcounty.org and click on the "Recycling" link. Our board meetings are the third Wednesday of every month. The meetings are open to anyone and we welcome ideas to help improve recycling. Please become involved.

Groundbreaking set for new college building

North Central Michigan College in Petoskey will hold a groundbreaking ceremony on Wednesday, July 27, to mark the start of a $10.4 million construction project to build a new Health Education and Science Center and renovate existing science classroom space. The event will take place at 11:30 a.m. on the east side of the Petoskey campus. The public is invited to attend.

Since the project was announced in June 2010, the college's foundation has received gifts and pledges totaling $4,650,000 toward its goal of $5.2 million to fund half of the cost. Revenue bonds will be used to cover the remainder.

When construction is completed in approximately 18 months, the college will have 23,000 square feet of new space for science labs, classrooms and offices, and 17,000 square feet of renovated space for nursing and allied health programs. The investment will greatly expand North Central's ability to train students for careers in health care and provide basic education for students planning to continue their studies in the sciences elsewhere.

Bond granted for murder suspect Sandra Gregory

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix woman facing a murder charge in connection with the death of her mother earlier this year has been released from jail on bond.

On Friday, July 8, Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas granted a request from Sandra Gregory, 74, to be released from jail on bond pending her upcoming trial on a charge of open murder. Gregory is accused of killing her 94-year-old mother Amelia Patricia Gregory, on March 27 in the home south of Charlevoix where she lived with and cared for her mother.

Judge Pajtas set Gregory's bond at $100,000/10 percent with the conditions that she live with her sister and her sister's husband in Greenville, that she wear an electronic tether device and that she attend weekly mental health counseling sessions. Her bond was posted on July 8 by Norice Rasmussen.

Gregory had been denied bond since her arrest, partly because her mental condition had prompted court and sheriff's office officials to send her to a psychiatric ward at War Memorial Hospital in Sault Ste. Marie. She was released from the psychiatric ward and returned to the Charlevoix County Jail on May 13.

Gregory's attorney, Kraag Lieberman, had requested bond be granted to his client at the time she was bound over to circuit court late last month. Although county prosecutor John Jarema did not oppose the request, 90th District Court Judge Richard W. May denied the request because arrangements for psychiatric counseling were not yet finalized.

In his motion for bond, Lieberman said Gregory's condition has been much more stable since she has returned from the hospital. Early on in the case Lieberman requested that Gregory be evaluated by state officials to determine if she is mentally competent to stand trial. He also filed notice of her intent to assert an insanity defense at trial. In June, based upon a report submitted by state officials who examined Gregory, Judge May found that she is competent to stand trial.

Also on July 8, the defense, prosecution and the judge met to set out the timeline for the trial. Gregory is scheduled to face a three-day jury trial beginning on Sept. 26. The cut-off date for a plea agreement in the case is Aug. 19.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

If convicted on the murder charge, Gregory could face up to life in prison.

STORM DEATHS

16-year-old son, C.J., was among the survivors.

WingNuts is based in Saginaw, and seven of the eight crew members were from Michigan. The other was from Chicago, where the race started at Navy Pier for some competitors on Friday but for most on Saturday.

The vessel overturned about 13 miles northwest of Charlevoix and about 270 miles from Chicago. Air and water temperatures early Monday were in the low 70s. The occupants wore life preservers, the Coast Guard said.

Cummings told The Associated Press his son, a cousin of Mark Morley, and other crewmates pressed devices on their vests, alerting the Coast Guard that they were in peril.

Cummings said Stuart Morley, 15, Mark Morley's nephew, was able to undo the harness that was attaching him and the other sailors to the boat, then released C.J.'s harness. That enabled both of them to clamber onto the hull.

Sociable rushed to the scene, radioing other competing crews. Ten boats dropped from the race to aid the search as Sociable plucked five of the stranded sailors from harm's way and shortly afterward rescued a sixth.

Cummings said his son, who lives in Grandville, was exhausted but otherwise physically fine. The other rescued sailors were Mark's brother Peter Morley, 47; John Dent, 50; Stan Dent, 51; and Lee Purcell, 46.

A 41-foot utility boat from the Coast Guard station in Charlevoix arrived. Crew members knocked on the hull to see if anyone was trapped inside. Hearing no response, they began a broader search. Mark Morley and Bickel eventually were found close to the vessel.

Organizers say 355 boats and roughly 3,500 crew members took part in the race, which finishes off Mackinac Island in the straits where Lakes Michigan and Huron meet. The first race was in 1898, and organizers began holding it every year starting in 1921.

Morley loved it, those who knew him said.

"Mark lived to sail — he lived and breathed sailing," Chip Cummings said. "He was certainly the most accomplished sailor ... I've ever met."

Grant Hilger, who sailed with Morley previously but was with a different crew for this race, said he was a member of a sailing family and took pleasure in repairing and restoring boats. On the water, he was "a big storyteller, had stories that went on and on," Hilger said.

Bickel, also a veteran sailor and scuba diver, sailed on the Atlantic Ocean and Mediterranean Sea as well as the Great Lakes, the crew's statement said.

Participants in some past Chicago to Mackinac races have dealt with severe weather, according to the race's website. An 80-mile gale in 1911 caused the vessel Vendector to crash on rocks near Fisherman's Island off Charlevoix. The crew survived.

A crewman was swept overboard during a 65-mph gale in 1937 and rescued by the Coast Guard. Just eight of 42 yachts were able to finish the race that year.

In 1970, a storm caused 88 of 167 starters to withdraw. A gale in 2002 capsized the 44-foot Caliente and damaged other vessels

Racers were in a somber mood as they arrived at Mackinac Island and learned of the WingNuts' fate, Hollerbach said.

"You know that it could have been you," he said.

Year-long settlement exhibit opens

The historic exhibit, "Undine A Settlement Remembered…" opened with a grand opening and reception event attended by more than 150 people on Friday, June 24 at the Harsha House Museum in downtown Charlevoix.

The Undine exhibit was the result of a collaboration between the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society and the Charlevoix Historical Society, and represented highlights of the five-year research project being undertaken by group members, Patrick McCleary, Jerry Hummel and Georganna Monk.

The wine, cheese and sweets reception was sponsored in part by Mike and Rhea Dow, current owners of the original Undine schoolhouse building in Hayes Township. The Dows were also responsible for the full restoration of this same building several years ago. Floral arrangements, contributed by Monarch Garden and Floral Design of Petoskey, were a highlight of the evening's reception.

Organization officials said the exhibit was designed in a progressive manner which introduces visitors to individuals and events which transformed a section of Charlevoix County's Hayes Township from virgin forest to a thriving, lumber-based community. In addition to numerous photographs and excerpts from historic documents, display items include the original Undine schoolhouse bell and heirloom items and artifacts once belonging to several Undine pioneer families.

The year-long duration of the exhibit was set to coincide with the final stages of an upcoming book on the same topic. Organizers hope that further information and additional photographs will come to light as future visitors recognize family names and make contact. A set of six vintage-image postcards have also been created and are available for sale ($5.00/set) at the Charlevoix Historical Society and at www.cchps.info with profits to assist with the publication of the Undine book.

The exhibit will be on display through June 2012. Harsha House museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 1-4 p.m.

2nd sensing phase complete at possible Griffin wreck site

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — A team of explorers and technicians says it has completed the second phase of remote sensing work at the site of what may be the Griffin, a 17th century French ship that sank in Lake Michigan.

The Michigan-based Center for Maritime and Underwater Resource Management used high-resolution sonar to map the lake bottom where explorer Steve Libert discovered what may be the Griffin's gravesite in 2001.

Libert is a seasonal Charlevoix resident who has said he plans to make the community a base of operations for his continued exploration of the site.

The center's project manager, Ken Vrana, says Monday it still isn't clear whether the scan has identified the remains of a ship.

He says data is being processed and his team will confer with Michigan Tech University experts. The center will issue a technical report within a few weeks.

The explorers then will confer with Michigan and French officials about what to do next.

Wicked wind

Bob Williams (left) stands in front of his home at 1002 State St. Monday talking with city of Charlevoix street superintendent Pat Elliott about a large oak tree that was blown down during a thunderstorm that rolled through the area late Sunday. Williams said he was standing on the front porch watching the sky around 11:30 p.m. when the same gust of wind that toppled the tree knocked him back and nearly pulled his glasses off his face. The falling tree caused minor damage to William's truck which was parked in the driveway.

Annual pool auction to feature many favorites

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool will host its 22nd annual pool auction on Sunday, Aug. 7, at Castle Farms. The theme for this year's auction is "vintage boardwalk."

The fun begins at 5 p.m. with a silent auction and mixer with dinner at 7 p.m. and the live auction beginning at 8 p.m.

Howard Richards will be entertain on the piano, with Scott MacKenzie once again acting as the master of ceremonies and auctioneer. Grey Gables will catering the served menu of salad, pit-roasted pork loin with golden barbecue glaze, with summer vegetables and beach bound cheese cake with summer berries.

Back by popular demand, this year's auction will feature venues with spectacular views of Lake Charlevoix, Lake Michigan and Round Lake paired with delectable food and fun on each lake.

For University of Michigan and Ohio States fans organizers will be auctioning off a pair of tickets for the big game scheduled for Nov. 26. For an excursion of a lifetime, organizers have again secured a trip for four aboard the St. Mary's Cement Company ship "Challenger."

Some of the other items that will be up for bid include a dinner for 12 at Grey Gables, and a ride on the Budget van for 12.

This once a year event supports the many programs offered at the pool as well as the cost of maintaining the pool, which opened 15 years ago after extensive fund-raising and planning. Since then, patrons and students continue to use the pool's many programs and amenities. As a nonprofit organization the majority of funding comes from the support of Charlevoix and other surrounding communities.

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — County leaders contradicted themselves and agreed to spend up to $55,000 to maintain a proposed non-motorized recreational trail in its first decade of existence.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners on Friday unanimously agreed to spend as much as $390 per mile for mowing, labor and maintenance material costs for the 14-mile trail's first 10 years. This comes after the board in April rescinded a 2006 resolution that said Charlevoix County would accept ownership and maintenance responsibilities, should the trail be built.

Commissioner Richard Gillespie said his support for the trail comes with a condition.

"I would like to see it attached (to the highway)," he said.

The current thought is that some sections of the trail will have to be connected to the busy highway as an extended shoulder, particularly in areas where the geography will make a detached trail a challenge to build. However, trail proponents argue it's far safer to have cyclists use a trail that is detached from the highway and state grant funding may be given only for a trail designed that way.

The county must yet address what entity will accept liability responsibility for the trail, said Ross Maxwell, county parks and recreation director.

Maxwell also said he is unsure whether the county's offer to pay for the first 10 years of maintenance will satisfy requirements that come with a state grant intended to pay for the trail's construction.

In March, commissioners voted to submit an application for a $300,000 Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant to help build the first portion of the trail.

The trail's first phase would stretch just over three miles from Boyne City, past Young State Park and to the Bay and Evangeline township line. Nearly $1 million in funding is expected to be needed.

Boyne City officials agreed to contribute more than $11,000 and applied for a $565,900 federal Transportation Enhancement Act grant, while Evangeline Township pledged more than $33,000. About $45,000 is needed in private donations.

A decision about the grant application is expected in December when the trust fund's board makes recommendations, said Mary Dettloff, Michigan Department of Natural Resources spokeswoman.

Making Venetian pop

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival is known for many things: Top class entertainment, great games, lighted boats, children's games, carnival rides and reunions with friends and family. But perhaps the most enduring image a mention of the festival conjures up is the festival's annual fireworks displays over Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake.

But much like the festival itself, there is a whole lot more than planning and preparation to the shows than it might appear at first glance.

Crews from Clayton-based Colonial Fireworks Company, who have been doing the Venetian fireworks show for the past 13 years arrived in the area with two 24-foot trucks loaded with equipment and pyrotechnics on Monday.

Crews began setting up for the shows, which will both be fired from a barge — Friday night's traditional high-altitude display will be shot over Lake Charlevoix offshore from Depot Beach. Saturday's low-altitude, high-intensity show takes place in Round Lake immediately following the lighted boat parade.

Colonial owner and master pyrotechnician Frank Loffredo Jr. and his seven-man crew will work through the rest of the week setting up and loading the mortar tubes, computers, control panels and two-miles of wire that they will use to set off the Friday's show.

After Friday night's show, there's a two-hour trip back to the dock. Crews then tear down the set-up for the high-altitude show and, after a few hours sleep, start setting up for Saturday's show.

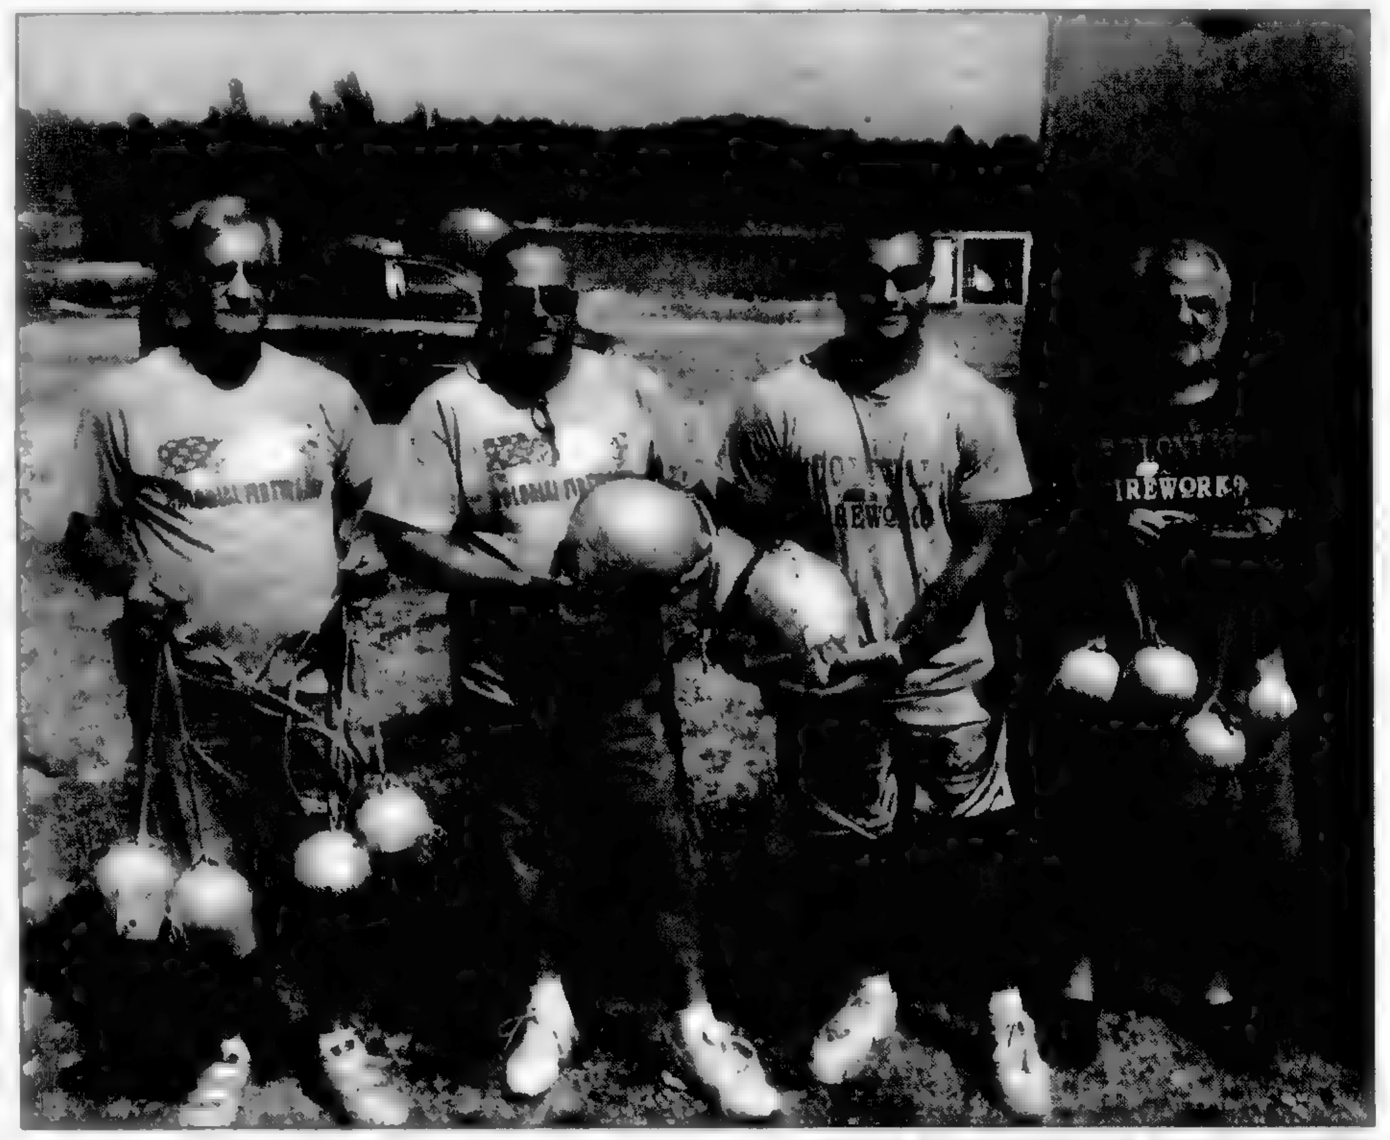
Friday night's show will include more than 800 shells ranging in size from four to 10 inches in diameter, while Saturday's show in Round Lake will include about 500 three-inch shells, 15 fan displays, and other devices. Both shows are expected to start around 10:15 p.m.

Loffredo said planning for the show actually takes place well in advance of their arrival. In fact, he said, he's already started working on next year's shows.

Speaking to the Courier Monday, Loffredo wouldn't hint at what he has in store for this year's shows, but said spectators can expect a few surprises.

Loffredo, who is the third generation in his family in the pyrotechnics business and has done more than 1,000 shows all over the world, said Charlevoix has become like a second home for him and his crews. It also ranks among their favorite shows.

"There's nothing quite like it anywhere in the world," Loffredo said of the Saturday show in Round Lake.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

For the Colonial Fireworks Company, who have provided the Venetian Festival's Fireworks for the past 13 years, pyrotechnics is family business. Company owner and master pyrotechnician Frank Loffredo Jr. (center, left) and his son Frank Loffredo III hold two of the 10-inch shells that will be used in Friday's high altitude show over Lake Charlevoix, while Frank Jr.'s father-in-law Ken Linton (left) and uncle, Richard Loffredo hold groups of six-inch shells that will fire in sequence.

East Jordan pilot dies in plane crash

RYAN BENTLEY
STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — An East Jordan man is dead after the plane he was flying crashed Saturday just south of the Boyne City Municipal Airport.

The crash, involving a Taylorcraft L-2 Grasshopper single-engine plane, occurred shortly before 11 a.m. Saturday in an industrial park on Boyne City's southeast side.

"We were told that there was just the pilot on board, and the pilot was a fatality," said Chicago-based FAA spokesman Tony Molinaro.

The plane was registered to Eugene "Gene" Balogh, 84, of East Jordan. The News-Review has received a death notice for Balogh, and his wife, Ginny, confirmed today, Monday, that he was involved in the crash and had died.

In a press release, Boyne City city manager Michael Cain said there was no damage to property or injuries to individuals on the ground as a result of the crash. He added Saturday that city officials would not be releasing information about the aircraft or pilot pending the arrival of federal crash investigators from Grand Rapids. He added that further press releases would be forthcoming from the city after local officials consult with the appropriate authorities.

Molinaro said Saturday that FAA investigators will participate in the probe, but it ultimately will be headed up by the National Transportation Safety Board.

"Our team gathers all the information and hands it over to the NTSB," he noted.

Circumstances leading up to the crash remain to be determined as part of the investigation, Molinaro said. The FAA did not have a flight plan available for the aircraft.

As of press time, the FAA's Chicago office had not responded to a message left today, Monday, seeking additional information on the crash. Cain declined to comment today, noting that he still needed to obtain word on how federal authorities wanted media inquiries fielded.

Ginny Balogh said her husband had taken off from Boyne City's airport in his plane Saturday, but she was unsure how long the plane had been in the air when the crash occurred. She was awaiting word of investigation of the crash, and said an autopsy of Gene Balogh was to be performed in Grand Rapids.

Balogh and his Taylorcraft plane were the subject of a 2009 news story published online by EAA, a Wisconsin-based organization for aviation enthusiast. The story at EAA's website indicated that Balogh had received his sport pilot certificate in 2009, at age 82, and purchased the Taylorcraft plane around that time. A World War II and Korean War veteran, Balogh had volunteered as a spotter in the back seat of an L-2 aircraft early in his military career, and developed a soft spot for this type of aircraft.

Ginny Balogh said her husband of 35 years was quite conscientious as a pilot.

"Anything he did was true perfection," she said. "He loved to fly. It was just a wonderful, wonderful thing for him."

Gene Balogh had a work background in business management — including stints with Ford Motor Co. in advanced product planning and with Chrysler Corp., and as a management consultant. He earned a Ph.D. in organizational psychology, and was an author on business topics. He had resided in Northern Michigan since 1990, and lived in Bloomfield Hills prior to that.

Balogh had five children, 14 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Ginny Balogh recalled her husband having both serious and fun-loving sides, and that his interests included travel and football.

"He was just a brilliant man, that's all I can say, and he was a really wonderful husband," she said.

Planning ordinance delayed again

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders did not approve a proposed planning ordinance, as planned, but took public comments during a hearing.

The board of commissioners met on Friday after its Wednesday meeting had been postponed by two days to allow for the public hearing. The proposed planning ordinance is intended to bring Charlevoix County in line with the state's Planning and Enabling Act approved by state lawmakers three years ago.

Charlevoix County officials already missed the state's July 1 deadline to come into compliance.

Evans

Officials made some changes to the proposed ordinance and opted to publish the document again before they consider it for approval and seat the new planning commission. Joel Evans, county board chairman, also requested input for planning commission appointments from Larry Sullivan, the county planner.

"I would like your recommendation on the candidates who have applied," Evans told Sullivan.

The board spent hours taking public comments and going over the proposed new ordinance, including more than a dozen suggested changes made by Kiersten Stark, planning assistant.

Most of the changes were purely grammatical. For example, one change involved a phrase that read "he or she shall be representative of" being reworded to "that he or she shall represent." There also were inserted commas and changing all references to the county's master plan to call the document the Charlevoix County Land Use Plan.

Bay Township resident Roger Conaway argued during the public hearing that the state mandate almost requires county wide zoning — which Charlevoix County instead leaves up to the townships — and the new ordinance intrudes on private property rights.

"This is something I don't want to see," he said.

Jarema

Commissioners made no substantive changes to the proposed planning ordinance, but decided to publish the document again, regardless. No additional public hearing will be scheduled, though.

"We did not change the thrust of the substance," said John Jarema, county prosecutor and board civil counsel. "I don't think we have to post for a new public hearing because we didn't change the substance."

Gillespie

Some commissioners drew issue with the way in which the planning ordinance issue has been handled.

"This should have gone through committee and it didn't and now we're rushing it through," said Richard Gillespie, commissioner from Beaver Island.

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt also expressed frustration with the process.

"We are being pushed to do something by a deadline date that we don't have to do," he said.

Evans agreed it should have been handled differently, or at least in a more timely fashion.

"We should have had this done a long time ago," Evans said.

Commissioners are expected to again consider the proposed new planning ordinance that will establish a new seven-member planning commission at their July 27 meeting. The newly reconstituted planning commission is then expected to meet and organize on Aug. 4.

History society program to discuss Civil War

In honor of the 150th anniversary of the Civil War's start, the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's Speaker Series Presentation for July will feature speakers Tom Jenkins and Dale Aurand, members of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, who will explain the origin of these organizations and what they represent.

The event will take place at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 25, in the Community Room of the Boyne District Library in downtown Boyne City. The annual meeting of the membership will follow this presentation which is free and open to all.

Tom Jenkins has been a resident of Traverse City since 1999 after retiring from a career in the parks and wildlife division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. For many years he has had a keen interest in the history and historical preservation of the great American Civil War. His interest arose when he was serving in the U.S. Navy in the Virginia area. He and his wife spent many weekends touring and studying the Civil War sites of the region. When Tom became aware of the Robert Finch Camp 14 in Traverse City, he applied for and received a membership based on his Great Grandfather Charles's service in the 184th Regiment of the New York State Volunteers. Tom was appointed as the Camp Graves Registration Officer and has been actively identifying and recording a data base of those veterans' burial sites in an 11 county area. Primarily, he works with the genealogical societies of the counties to discover the burial sites and, in some instances when requested, coordinate the placement of military grave stones on those sites currently unmarked.

Tom now also serves the Camp as the Secretary, and his wife Judy is active in the Frances Finch Chapter of the Sons of Union Veterans Auxiliary as the Chaplain. Judy will also be attending the meeting and will be available to answer any questions the members may have regarding the auxiliary mission and membership opportunities.

Dale Aurand began his career with Michigan Bell Telephone in 1969 and transferred to Traverse City in 1991. Since his retirement in 2003 he became active in the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. Dale is currently Commander of Robert Finch Camp 14 in Traverse City. At age 10 Dale learned his Great-Grandfather was in the 9th Michigan Cavalry and has had an avid interest ever since. Through extensive reading and research he has acquired many insights about the 9th's involvement in the Civil War.

In all, about 110 youth ages 8-17 participated in the program's 16th season. The participants in Junior Golfers from 16 year of Junior Golf Program who competed in season-ending tournament on Wednesday at Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. 110 total Juniors participated in the five-week program.

Running's elite will dash for cash in Shay memorial mile

On Saturday May 23, between 20 and 40 elite mile runners will gather in Charlevoix to commemorate runner phenom Ryan Shay, a Central Lake native who passed away while competing in the 2008 Olympic Trials marathon event in New York City.

"Ryan was a great runner, but also, by all accounts, he was a great person," said Matt Peterson, one of the organizers of the event. "We just wanted to have a fitting tribute to him."

This year will be the fourth annual Ryan Shay Elite Mile. The event attracts runners from all over the United States and will include runners from Australia and Kenya.

The race begins at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31. The course is a straight shot down Bridge Street, and, after the runners coast down the hill to downtown Charlevoix, they will cross the finish line just south of the draw bridge.

"I always thought it would be pretty exciting to have a road mile down Bridge Street in Charlevoix," said Peterson. "There is probably going to be 15,000 people watching this."

The race will begin at 10:30 a.m. just prior to the Venetian Festival annual street parade in downtown Charlevoix, and will consist of approximately 10-20 runners in each men's and women's categories, said Peterson. Each top finisher will receive a prize of $1,000, second place $500 and third place will receive $250. Additionally, the lead runner at the half-mile mark will receive $250.

Earlier in the day will be the Jeff Drenth Memorial Foot Race, which consists of a 5K, a 10K and a mile race. Jeff Drenth graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1979 and competed at Central Michigan University. After graduating from CMU, Drenth began a professional running career at a club in Eugene, Ore. He passed away in 1986.

Register online for these runs at www.venetianraces.com until 11 p.m. on Thursday, July 21. Register in person at Lake Michigan Beach Pavilion from 4-7 p.m. on Friday, July 22, and 6-8:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 23.

For more information or to register, visit www.venetianraces.com or contact Matt Peterson by phone at (231) 547-3407 or by email at mpeterson@ejps.org.

Ragamuffin Theatre presents 'Whodunnit' dinner theater

Ragamuffin Theatre and Company is teaming up with Stafford's Perry Hotel to present an original dinner theater mystery musical, "Whodunnit."

"The show will feature familiar musical dance pieces from Broadway shows like 'Wicked' and 'West Side Story,' but with a sinister twist," said director Kathleen Whittaker. "A script rich in humor performed by a cast of dynamic actors who love what they do always adds up to an enjoyable evening."

The interactive show offers diners the opportunity to participate with fellow showgoers at their table if they choose to. Audience participants are allowed to take a crack at solving the crime. For those attending who prefer to remain a spectator, participation is not required.

Ragamuffin Theatre and Company is a nonprofit organization dedicated to training young people in all areas of the performing arts, according to Whittaker. She began the program in September of 2000 and offers an opportunity to participate for people of all ages and levels of experience.

Dinner theater can be a fun night out for a family or friends, or an alternative choice for date night.

"The entertainment alone will be well worth the price of the evening," said Cameron Crain, who plays the role of the victim.

The show, in its second year at the Perry Hotel, is a combination of musical theater and comedy with an interactive twist. The audience is treated to a somewhat hands-on musical while they enjoy their meal and interact with each other.

"We always leave our audiences wanting more, not less," remarked Kathryn Sell, a recent Charlevoix graduate. She described the play as centered around a theater company rehearsing a show to be performed at "Stafford Perry's Palace" in the mid to late 1950s.

"Last year's show was a tremendous success, and I'm looking forward to playing my part in what I know will be a crowd pleaser again this year," said Sell, who plays the part of a quirky writer named Birdie Speakwell.

For those interested in attending in combination with an overnight stay, the hotel offers various rates and packages.

Cost of the show along with the four course dinner, which includes choice of four entrees, is $49 per person. Tickets for all shows can be purchased at Stafford's Perry Hotel, 100 Lewis St., Petoskey, or by phone at (231) 347-4000.

The murder mystery "Whodunnit" will be presented at the Perry every Tuesday evening July 19-Aug. 16.

Tickets are available on a first come, first served basis and advance purchase is recommended. For more information about this event, visit www.staffords.com or www.ragamuffintheatre.com

Chicago Club continues support of Camp McSauba

For more than a decade, a fund created at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation by members of the Chicago Club, has been making a difference in meeting the needs of school age children in the Charlevoix area.

Historically, the fund has contributed more than $100,000 to assist financially challenged children with urgent medical and dental expenses, swimming lessons and family swim nights at the Charlevoix Community Pool. The fund's work hasn't stopped there. For the past three years, the fund has provided additional support for scholarships to Camp McSauba. Those scholarships will allow more than 20 campers to enjoy a week at Camp that may otherwise have been financially out of reach for their families.

"Concerns about the economy continue to impact the number of young people who need scholarship support," said Leslie Hoftman, the director of Camp McSauba. "The numbers grew again this year, so we're very grateful to have the support of the Chicago Club again this season."

Camp McSauba's daily activities include small and large group games, arts and crafts, b.b. gunnery, archery, field sports and, of course, fun at the beach. Sessions are planned around a specific theme. Some of the themes this summer included X-Games, Movin' and Groovin', Treasure Hunters and more. Each camp session runs five days, with a sleepover on Thursday night, and an awards ceremony for campers, parents, grandparents and friends each Friday morning. Older campers also have the option of swimming at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool on Thursday night, before the sleepover.

"We expect to serve nearly 650 youngsters this season," Hoffman said, adding, "That's an increase of 15 percent over last summer and an indication that parents are relying on us more than ever." In response to the increased need for services, Camp McSauba added an additional week of camp, and also extended the day to be of benefit to working parents. Referencing the Chicago Club gift, Hoffman noted, "We're just blessed to live in a community filled with people that care about each other."

The Chicago Club was established in 1880, and today, many descendants of its founding families continue to maintain cottages in the association. Although most members are summer residents of Charlevoix, the club has a long history of supporting local causes. "We're especially appreciative of the Chicago Club's ongoing support," said Chip Hansen, president of the Community Foundation. He added, "they continue to do so much good in the community at a time when the need for their good work has never been greater."

The Chicago Club's Fund is among the 235 funds held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, each one designated to support a specific cause or address general needs in education, the environment, arts and culture, health, civic projects, youth, or recreation.

For more information about grant application deadlines or other programs of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, call the foundation office at (231) 536-2440, visit the foundation's website at www.c3f.org or email Hansen at chansen@c3f.org

Clean for a cause

Charlevoix Street Legends

The Charlevoix Street Legends 19th annual car show brought a little extra sparkle and shine to downtown Charlevoix and East Park on Friday and Saturday. Show organizers said the show had 128 registered participants plus another 20 to 30 host cars. Entertainment was provided by the Dominic Fortuna Band following the cruise in Friday and Elvis tribute artist Jake Slater entertained on Saturday. The People's Choice award went to Mike Whitehead with his 2001 body conversion black Corvette. Best of Show award went to Barry Ewing with his orange 1933 Ford 5 window, and grand door prize of $500 went to Tim Maxwell. Although final tallies weren't completed at press time, show organizers estimate that the Street Legends raised about $10,000 for local charities during the show. The Street Legends have already donated more than $101,000 over the years.

School board benches athletic transportation fee

District leaders seek alternative ways to replace revenue

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education is hoping a $22,000 gamble it is taking by rescinding a recently-instituted athletic transportation fee will pay enrollment dividends in the long run.

At its regular monthly meeting Monday, the board voted 4-2 to waive a $75 per-student, per-sport athletic fee that it had approved when it passed its 2011-12 school year budget on June 27. Board president John McLean and member Nancy Allison cast the "no" votes. Board member Valerie Snyder was absent.

The fee, which was capped at $150 per-student, per-year for high school sports ($50 and $100, respectively for middle school sports) was already to be waived for students qualifying for free or reduced-cost meals. District officials had estimated that the fees would bring in about $22,000 for the year.

With the district having only about $300,000 in cash reserves as it prepared its budget, school leaders were faced with filling a $1.1 million budget deficit hole.

The board ultimately balanced its budget through a combination of about $500,000 in staffing cuts, another $500,000 in concessions in the district's teacher and support staff contracts and about $100,000 in expected additional revenue — which included the athletic transportation fee.

However, the board revisited its decision to implement the fee after several board members became concerned about the effect it could have on the district's enrollment.

"I've probably been the most vocal about it — in public education, we need to make sound business decisions," board member Glen Catt said.

Catt pointed to the fact that the neighboring East Jordan and Boyne City school districts, who opted to forego an athletic fee, as something that could draw students away from Charlevoix if the fee remained in place.

"Athletics are the number one attraction to a school district," Catt added. "I think it should be academics, but it's not."

With the district's per-student foundation grant at about $8,000, a loss of three students would wipe out the expected additional revenue.

McLean said he can see the merit in doing away with the fee.

"Some kids are still in school because of sports," McLean said.

He added a short time later, "If, in fact, we waive (the fee) where are we going to get the money?"

One option would be the district's meager cash reserves.

"It's hard to dip $22,000 in to the fund balance when we are cutting staff," Allison said.

"We'll have to cut even more if we lose kids," Catt countered.

Board member Kevin Pearsall said, he, too is concerned that the fee could drive some kids away from the district.

Several board members worried that the fee could hurt efforts to recruit volunteers and solicit donations for the booster organizations.

Board member Bo Boss said he doesn't want to tap the fund balance either, but thinks a direct request to the community for donations to help offset the lost revenue might bear fruit.

He even offered to throw in the first $500.

McLean said the vote was a difficult decision.

"I don't like the fee. It's hard to vote, but without having something (to replace the revenue) in place, when you are looking at 25 kids in a kindergarten classroom, for me its tough to support.

Both Boss and Catt remained optimistic that donations, better-than-expected enrollment or a combination of the two would make up the difference in the budget.

"Even if it has to come out of the fund balance, I think the positives far outweigh the negatives," Boss said.

Bond bargain

District residents may soon have a few extra dollars available to donate to the Rayder athletic fund thanks to board's approval a debt refinancing measure Monday.

In 1999 district voters approved a bond to pay for the construction of the new high school and other improvements. The 20-year bonds sold for the project in 2001 had an option to refinance after 10 years.

Through re-financing the bonds, the district was able to reduce the interest rate it will pay for the remaining 10 years from 5.13 percent to 2.65 percent — which is expected to save taxpayers more than $1.2 million over the life of the bond.

District superintendent Chet Janik noted that the savings won't help the district's budget. All the savings will be realized by district taxpayers — although the impact on the debt-retirement millage rate will vary depending how property taxable values change in the district.

No custodial outsourcing

After seeking bids recently to contract with private companies to provide the district's custodial services, the board approved an agreement with the support staff union Monday that eliminates the outsourcing plan for now.

Under the agreement, the board agreed to not pursue a private outsourcing for any support staff positions.

In exchange, any newly hired support staff members will be subject to a pay schedule that will be reduced by 15 percent, reductions in insurance coverage and sick day payment reductions.

Janik noted that although the agreement offers no immediate costs savings, it will save the district money in the future.

He said after the bids were opened, it appeared that outsourcing would have saved the district about $125,000 annually.

Bridge Club to donate bike rack

When the East Jordan Bridge Club ended its season recently with a luncheon and afternoon of cards at Murrays in East Jordan, the group's projects committee presented a plan to purchase a commercial-grade bicycle rack for bikers to use. Plans call for the rack to be located in the pass through park located behind Sodalicious on Main Street. The committee members are working with the City of East Jordan to work out the details. The club always welcome new players, either singles or pairs. Our season schedule allows for flexibility if you are gone for part of the year.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

LOOKING BACK…

First Venetian royalty

Charlevoix first selected a winter sports festival queen, Angie Scott Supernaw, in 1930. But in 1935 this was changed to a summertime selection of royalty for a fledgling Venetian Festival, just then beginning to take the shape by which it is known today. A roster of candidates was chosen. Pictured above, they are (from left): Carol Whitley, Marge Carey, Alice Meyer, Jean Zeitler, Marguerite Hull, Julia Glados, Edna Wyers, and Jean Stelter. Marge Carey was elected queen, and received her crown in a fort/stockade erected for the county homecoming festivities where East Park is today. Except for a few years during World War II, Charlevoix has had a Venetian Queen ever since. This image is one of more than 800 included in a new DVD covering the 16 decades of Charlevoix's history which will be available through the Charlevoix Historical Society by the end of the month.

Jordan River Arts Council writers publish book

The Jordan River Arts Council Writers' Group has just published a book, "Writings," A Collection of Selected Works by Local Writers and Artists. All participants since the group's beginning in 2002 were invited to submit their writings.

The group started with a workshop by Barbara Garipy whose inspiration encouraged the members to write and write more. The group continues today, meeting monthly from 7-9 p.m. every second Tuesday. Any interested person, whether a arts council member or not, is invited to join the group.

More than 30 people have participated from the beginning with 11 people submitting several writings each including poetry, essays, short stories, and biographies. Writers included: Shirley Butcher, Diane Cox, Suzanne Dalton, Howard Ellis, Lisa Knauf, Jennifer Lewis, Carol McCarrus, Peggy Midener, Donna Moll, Norma Petrie, and Suzanne Rogers.

As an introduction to each members' writing is a colored picture of an original work of art with the lady slipper as the subject. Artists whose works are included are: Babs Young, Nancy Carey, Diane Cox, Caroline Risk, June Storm, Rosie Evans, Prudence Barber, Christine Brown, and Sylvia Walworth.

The lady slipper has been the symbol of the Jordan River Arts Council since its beginning, 22 years ago representing "the Jordan River's endless, clear flow, and the lovely, fragile, and elusive lady slipper, symbolizes for us the treasures hidden here in the valley," the group writes. "The original lady slipper design was created by Pat Tinney, and members of the Writers' Group felt that having our artist volunteer paintings, tapestries, and photos would support their continuous flow of writing for the reader's enjoyment."

The book is now on sale at the art center, 301 Main St. in East Jordan during exhibition showings, the Busy Bridge, Main St., East Jordan, and Adams Madam, Central Lake. For further information contact, Howard Ellis at (231) 536-2152 or visit jordanriverarts.com.

What do all those public notices cost us?
Can't they just be posted on a Web site?

State law requires that citizens be informed of certain governmental activity through paid public notices like the ones in this newspaper.

It's one way to make government accountable to the people.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters* would be concerned if government placed these notices on Web sites because important information could be concealed from the public.

So, what's it worth to you to be able to pick up this newspaper and find out what's going on in your town, your county, or your local schools?

He will share the skill of creating color and painting from a photograph using both the knife and a brush.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Signature festival goes smoothly despite hot weather

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The fireworks, bands, carnival rides, and people greeting people all made a lot of sound during the eight-day 81st annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival, which wrapped up Saturday night, but as far as police are concerned it was a pretty quiet week.

And that's a good indication of a good festival, Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said his officers only handled a handful of misdemeanor arrests — primarily for drunk/disorderly person.

He said the week saw no major traffic crashes aside from a motorcycle rider who sustained relatively minor injuries in a traffic crash on U.S. 31 at Lewis Street on Thursday (see story on page 3).

Doan said despite it being Venetian week, traffic seemed to move through downtown pretty well. Even following the fireworks Friday and Saturday nights — typically the most traffic-congested times of the festival — Doan said traffic cleared out of town in fairly short order. He said on Friday night officers directed traffic for about 15 minutes and for about 30 minutes on Saturday.

He also said the hot and humid weather that moved in starting mid-week didn't seem to cause any problems with people's demeanor, or prompt a spike in health related emergency responses.

"I did hear many of the vendors comment on how much water and pop they were selling," Doan said.

Doan said the traffic congestion might (and perhaps some of the criminal complaints) have been eased somewhat because, in his estimation, crowds at the festival were down some from previous years.

"How fast the traffic clears out after the fireworks is usually a good indicator of how many people we had in town."

But "Mr. Venetian," festival board chairman Dan Barron, said the smoothness of the festival might have been a bit misleading as to the size of the crowds.

Barron said the heat on Tuesday and Wednesday did appear to make a noticeable impact on crowd sizes at downtown events and in festival revenue. But, Barron said, those numbers rebounded substantially as the week continued leaving overall attendance (based on the same gauges) at or above last year's.

Barron said officials with Arnold Amusements reported that other festivals where they had their rides around the state saw marked decreases in attendance because of the heat — some seeing as much as a 50 percent decrease.

"Looking at that, I think we fared very well," he said.

He said numbers at the tiki tent were up, and merchandise sales were strong. In fact, he said the t-shirts sold out with a day and a half left in the festival.

Barron pointed to several events as highlights of this year's festival:

— He said he was particularly pleased with the integration of the Saturday night fireworks show and the start of the boat parade. Barron said officials worked hard to time the one-minute fireworks volley that announced the start of the parade to coincide with the lead boat's approach to the fireworks safety zone. "What we have found is that people like a nice, brisk boat parade, and this year it was orchestrated probably the smoothest it has ever been.

— Barron said the Aquapalooza event that kicked off the festival with a day full of activities at Ferry Beach on Saturday, July 16 was a "huge success." After sputtering its first year in 2009 because of bad weather, the event continues to grow in popularity. Barron said more than 100 boats anchored off Ferry Beach to enjoy the music and participation on shore was up, too. "This event is such a natural for Charlevoix, being a water-based activity," Barron said. "I see that continuing to grow in the future."

Council approves permit sharing, ward boundaries

COURTESY IMAGE

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday, July 18, approved a measure that allows those who purchase annual airport parking passes to share the passes among their family members and another that re-draws the city's ward boundaries.

In June a number of Beaver Island residents complained to the city council after staff at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport began issuing parking tickets to vehicle owners who didn't have parking permits properly affixed to their vehicles in the parking lot. About 20 citations were issued in all.

The dispute centered around the practice among some island residents of placing the annual permits on a piece of clear plastic instead of the windshield and moving the permit among their vehicles.

City staff, who recently took over day-to-day management of the airport, said they were merely enforcing parking permit rules that had long been in place, but never enforced.

Island residents, however, said they've always operated under the premise that the permits were person-specific, not vehicle-specific.

The council was sympathetic to the islanders' position and directed staff to draw up a permit sharing policy.

The policy, as passed unanimously by the council, allows up to four transfers per year, per permit "to any vehicle owned and registered to any qualifying immediate family member."

The policy goes on to define an "immediate family member" as a "parent, sibling, spouse or a dependant by blood or adoption that is claimed by the adult on (his or her) income taxes as a legal dependant and is under the age of 18."

The council also unanimously approved an ordinance that to modify th[illegible]he Second Ward (bounded boundaries of the city's three wards. According to city clerk Carol Ochs, the recently-completed 2010 census showed that the number of people living in the city's three wards was unbalanced. Currently the First Ward had 726 people; the Second Ward had 923 people; and the Third Ward had 855 people. The change took two blocks of the Third Ward (bounded by Mason, State, Hurlbut and Bridge streets) and three blocks of by Mason, Sherman, Hurlbut and Grant streets) and made them part of the First Ward.

Ochs said the new lines not only give the wards a more regular shape on the map but leave them with a more evenly distributed population with the First Ward at 841, Second Ward at 830 and the Third Ward at 842. She said although the changes affects voting slightly for the roughly 115 people, it did not affect

Motorcyclist injured in traffic crash

Charlevoix Police department officials identified the injured man as Michael Kucera, 34, of Petoskey. Kucera was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance where he was treated for his injuries and released.

The crash happened at about 10:15 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. 31 (Petoskey Avenue) and Lewis Street.

Police said the crash happened when Tyler Engstrom, 16, of Bay Harbor was traveling northbound on U.S. 31 in a Kia Sportage and turned left into the path of the Honda motorcycle Kucera was riding southbound.

Kucera was sitting in a nearby yard and was conscious and talking with bystanders when Charlevoix Ambulance crews arrived on the scene. Traffic in the southbound lane of U.S. 31 was re-directed around the scene until emergency crews attended to the crash.

Aging makes it easy to get lost on Memory Lane

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It's all about the aging process.

Woo hoo!

It's time to celebrate this challenging time of life because the census tells us so many of us are in it. Did I mention challenging? For the second time this month my car keys didn't make it onto the hook designed just for that purpose. Now how did they end up still in the ignition? If you see me talking to myself I assure you I don't have an imaginary friend (yet). Talking aloud serves the purpose to remind me of what I am supposed to be doing next — at least that is what I was told on some infomercial about aging.

Conversation becomes interesting, too, as we age. I know that word… it will come to me; just give me a moment or maybe two. "My hair appointment isn't for today, hmm. Oh…. I missed my dentist appointment?"

I knew I was supposed be somewhere that dealt with the upper part of my body.

Are the younger people today talking faster or does my mind need more time to comprehend? It's time to dig out those cross word puzzles and watch Wheel of Fortune. I need to get those words back again.

Thank goodness being forgetful is not just me. Yesterday a friend forgot something at our house, another had forgotten our get together and yet another forgot our entire conversation. Friends like this can make you feel pretty darn good. I like hanging out with other 60-somethings. We understand incomplete sentences and incorrect usage of words that we usually dismiss as "We have too much on our minds."

Not.

Actually we are losing a little mind matter but it's OK, it really doesn't matter.

Hubby joins me too.

When I said, "It's almost time for dinner" he replied, "Yes, you look fine and actually thinner." Nice answer, but where did that come from? As we age our hearing diminishes and I feel safe in saying we all look a little better to each other because our sight has diminished as well. It amazing how beautiful everyone looks around me. Actually anyone younger looks fantastic.

If your health insurance coverage has changed because of retirement, I'd like to share a bit of useful information. Our trip to Europe provided some extra medical help. At the airport my luggage held too many kitchen magnet souvenirs setting off an alarm, and thus, moving me to the front of the line for a free x-ray and breast exam. I made certain not say anything bad as I already had a scheduled colonoscopy.

Oh, cooking can get interesting, too — especially when you leave eggs out of a cake or worse yet, flour. This is why we seniors purchase cakes from a bakery.

We also cherish our time with friends since we don't really know when we'll see them again. That's probably why tables in restaurants empty quicker when it's a couple or a family versus we seniors who love to reminisce and have another warm up on our coffee. Or, if your doctor told you to cut back on caffeine, it's that extra glass of cranberry juice that will keep you sitting there longer until you need to use the bathroom for the umpteenth time.

In my last column I mentioned the benefits of losing weight and quitting smoking to prevent snoring. Well, now recent studies say those two factors are also culprits in Alzheimer's. A key to preventing this debilitating disease is daily exercise and learning positive methods of coping with stress to ward off depression.

Being sad naturally comes with age as we reflect on our lives and loved ones because we have more time to do so. So, get moving, stop reflecting and get out there on your bike.

My husband bought me a new one since he saw me suffering with the 17 speed bike we purchased 25 years ago. I was finding it difficult to maneuver my leg over the bar that met up with the seat and I was only using half of the 17 speeds. Now I have a good-old Schwinn bike similar to what I owned when I was 12 and it has seven speeds and, better yet it, has a big comfy seat. No more bending my face into the handlebars like I could handle Tour de France. Yes sir, I'm getting myself a basket and a bell and I'm good-to-go just about anywhere. As we age we could all benefit from a little more humor, a lot more empathy and a second helping of understanding. So, if you are a senior and feeling a bit out of the loop, come join me as every day is a celebration and, according to the census, there are plenty of us here to celebrate with.

LETTER to the editor

Work of Coast Guard, other responders appreciated

Coast Guard to the rescue!

Again we see our public service people going the extra mile for us every day. Whether it is our wonderful police, sheriff's department, fire department or our volunteer firefigter and EMTs; we are consistently blessed to be served by these people.

For example: last Friday (July 15) just off my beach in Charlevoix on Lake Michigan the Coast guard saved a couple whose canoe had turned over. I can tell you another five or 10 minutes in the water and these people would not have made it.

I heard this morning (July 19) that the coast guard rescued some folks whose sailboat turned over by the Fox Islands so, how lucky we are to have these young people go in harm's way and do so every day.

We thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

VENETIAN

— This year's musical performances were another highlight, Barron noted. He said he was particularly pleased with the Family Stone and country performer David Nail. "It's hard to top a band that can announce one of their songs as their encore at Woodstock in 1969," Barron said of the Family Stone.

Overall, Barron said he was very pleased with this year's festival, noting that much of the thanks for its year-to-year success goes to the army of more than 300 volunteers who make it run, and the continued financial support from individuals and businesses.

"Our ultimate goal every year is to sit back when it's all said and done and say, 'this was the best Venetian yet,'" Barron said.

A parade 'brake-down'

Although most aspects of this year's Venetian Festival went smoothly, there were a few scary moments for Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Director Erin Bemis, when the brakes in the car she was driving in Saturday's Street Parade went out as she drove down the Bridge Street hill.

Bemis said she was driving a 1971 Mercury convertible carrying 2010 Venetian Queen Emily Mielke when the brakes failed on the car.

"I kept pumping and pumping the brakes, but they weren't working," Bemis said.

Bemis who was following the float carrying this year's queen and her court, said she had to make some quick decisions.

"I didn't want to hit the float, but I also didn't want to hit any spectators, so I decided that if I had to, I'd hit the float."

Bemis said she steered around the float and started to pass it when she finally got the brakes to work and the car stopped. But a few moments later, the car started to roll again. That's when a group of spectators came to her rescue, helping to stop the car again and clearing a path so it could be pushed off Bridge Street onto Antrim.

New Venetian Queen crowned

On Friday, 17-year-old Charlevoix High School senior Lauren Bartling was named the 2011 Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen. Lauren is the daughter of Kris and Amy Bartling.

Commenting on being named Venetian Queen, Lauren said the competition was tough, but that she is honored to have shared the experience with "such bright girls."

"When Erin (Bemis) called my name and Emily began to fasten my crown to my head, I knew it was everything I'd hoped for to be representing Charlevoix in this way," she said. "I greatly look forward to growing with our community this coming year. Miss Charlevoix isn't just about the title, but also the duty. I am equally excited for all this opportunity will entail."

Tammy Potter, 20, was named first runner-up. She also won the essay contest and was named "Miss Congeniality" by her fellow contestants. Tammy is the daughter of Barry and Lisa Potter and is a 2009 Charlevoix High School graduate.

Following the coronation, this year's original Venetian Festival artwork — a painting by Gary Odmark — was sold at auction to Bill Schuiling, who paid $15,000 for the work.

Venetian victories

The winners of the 2011 Venetian Festival lighted boat parade are:

WingNuts survivor puzzled by deadly sailing accident

MIDLAND (AP) — Stan Dent says his sailboat had endured rough weather before and he can't understand why it capsized on Lake Michigan during the annual Chicago-to-Mackinac Island race this week, killing two of his close friends.

Mark Morley, skipper of the 35-foot vessel WingNuts, and Suzanne Bickel died after the boat overturned during a fierce storm around midnight Sunday, July 17. A competing boat rescued the other six crew members. The Chicago Yacht Club, which sponsors the event, and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department are conducting separate investigations.

Sheriff W.D. Schneider told the Saginaw News that Morley and Bickel died of head trauma.

Dent, 51, said he was among four co-owners of WingNuts, a 4,000-pound Kiwi 35 model. He teamed up with a cousin, Morley and Morley's brother five years ago to buy the craft. They entered it in the Chicago-to-Mackinac race each year, Dent said.

"We took all the necessary safety precautions, but unfortunately tragedy still struck," Dent told the Midland Daily News. "We're in shock."

The boat was making good time before the storm blew up, he said, describing the lightning as the most intense he'd ever seen on the water. Heavy gusts kicked up 6-foot waves.

Crew members dropped the sail and clipped on safety harnesses tethering them to the boat.

Dent told the Saginaw paper there had been another severe storm during WingNuts' first Chicago race. When the boat tipped previously, it quickly righted itself, he said.

"I couldn't say why it didn't this time," Dent said. "I've thought about it a million times, and I'm sure people will be discussing for months what happened."

After hitting the water, he was able to reach his knife and cut his tether. The other survivors also freed themselves and clung to the boat until help arrived.

Dent said the tragedy wouldn't stop him from sailing again. His boat is still floating upside down in the lake, but a commercial salvage company is expected to retrieve it soon. It appears largely intact and could be salvaged, Dent said.

If so, he said he'll talk to the other survivors about entering it in the Chicago-to-Mackinac race yet again.

"I think both Suzanne and Mark would want us to continue to sail," he said.

Circle of Arts to host 'Plein-aire' exhibit

Donna Pearlman, a member of the group who will have their work on display at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, shows off some of the paintings she has created recently.

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will host an opening reception for the upcoming exhibit "Northern Latitudes & Attitudes" 6-8 p.m. Saturday, July 30, at The Circle of Arts building, located at 109 Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix. The event is open to the public and admission is free.

The exhibit will feature the work of Charlevoix area artists Emelie Braun, Jan and Mike Coltman, Beverly Eby, Barbara and Gary Eisenberg, Ingeborg Fritz, Margie Guyot, Patricia Immonen, Nancy Kaulins, Diane Mittenthal, Donna Pearlman, Jeannie Putman, Mary Lou Sick and Barbara Steele.

Five years ago, a small group of Charlevoix residents - both year round and summer - decided it would be fun to pursue together their love of painting landscapes together. They began meeting weekly during the warm-weather months to paint the beautiful views and vistas of Northern Michigan.

They call themselves the Plein-Aire Artists of Charlevoix, taking from the French tradition of painting "out of doors." According to Barbara Eisenberg, one of the group's founders, "the inspiration of the site and clarity of light thrill the soul and inject energy and poetry onto the canvas."

Participation in their group was, and is, open to everyone. There is no cost, no obligation to join. Many in the group are accomplished artists, others beginners, and still others are returning to art after years of just being too busy to find time to paint. All levels of experience are welcome and all media (oil, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, sketching).

The group's main goal is to have fun, but they have found that the enthusiasm and encouragement of the group inspires each of them to paint more, discover more about creating art, and learn from each other. Their outings take them to locations they would never have experienced otherwise and fosters an appreciation and affection for the area.

They have developed strong friendships and have, through the Plein-Aire group, become more involved in community volunteerism, especially with the Charlevoix Circle of Arts where many of their artists teach classes, act as docents in the gallery, and participate in and attend events.

To join, all one needs to do is show up at their weekly sites. For more information, call Emelie Braun at (231) 237 9245 or email ronaldbraun@charter.net.

The "Northern Latitudes & Attitudes" exhibit will be on display July 30 through Sept. 5. For information on future exhibits, classes and events, call the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, (231) 547-3554, or visit the orgainzation's website at www.charlevoixcircle.org.

County officials begin work on 2012 budget

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders began to delve into next year's approximate $14 million budget and expect to have it finalized by the end of September.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' Committee of the Whole met on Friday and quickly reviewed the proposed budgets from each county department, as well as recommended reductions from Cheryl Potter Browe, county clerk. Commissioners made no decisions, other than to schedule the next budget session.

"I think we need time to look at this," said Shirlene Tripp, commissioner.

Joel Evans, board chairman, said he agreed and wanted each commissioner to take the documents home and study the various department budgets before making any decisions.

Browe said she reviewed the last couple of years' budgets after auditors expressed some concerns about inflated expense budgets.

"When I looked at 2009 and 2010, budgets were inflated in anticipation of expenses that were never spent. We should actually be within 5 percent of actual expenses," Browe said.

She said that's a recommendation from the county's auditor. Therefore, Browe recommended up to $500,000 in cuts to the county's various expense budgets. None of the potential cuts have yet been shared with the county's department heads.

"It would be nice to have it more accurate," said Richard Gillespie, commissioner.

If Browe's proposed 2012 cuts stand, the county's total expenses will increase by 0.17 percent over this year. That contrasts the department heads' proposed budgets that came with a 3.6-percent decrease in projected revenues and a 3.97-percent hike in expenses, Browe said.

Undersheriff Chuck Vondra attended the budget session and learned about Browe's suggested $39,000 in cuts to the sheriff's budget. Those possible cuts include $2,000 in supplies, $2,000 in machinery or equipment, $5,000 in vehicle repairs and $30,000 from the jail's food service budget.

Vondra said he is concerned about potential cuts to vehicle maintenance and the food program, particularly because the jail population currently is less than average and a return to more normal inmate levels could completely blow such a reduced expense budget.

Browe said any department's budget could be amended as the year progresses.

Charlene Novotny, register of deeds, also spoke to the commissioners about her 2012 budget, in which she'd like to include pay raises for two employees.

The next budget session is set for 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 8, at the county's administration building, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Historical Society recently completed production of its second DVD, "Charlevoix, Michigan--A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades," available now at the society's Harsha House Museum located at 103 State St.

This DVD is the culmination of nine months of work by its producer and writer, Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles. Miles was assisted in the last stages of production by Mary Ann Chew, Steve Goslee, also a museum co-director, Kay Heise, and Carolyn Minch.

This committee reviewed more than 850 photos and documents from the society's archives, plus photos loaned by local organizations and private collections, established image placement and continuity, and finalized the narration that accompanies each image.

In a release about the DVD, society officials said the land where Charlevoix is situated has been inhabited since approximately 1500 B. C. E. when nomadic Native-Americans used it as a spring-through-fall hunting, fishing and planting grounds. French Jesuit priest, historian and explorer Father Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix passed this way in 1721. The county, then the town were named for him in the 1800s.

The first permanent settlers were Medad and Phoebe Thompson, followers of King James Strang, who quickly became disillusioned with the violent way of life they found in the Mormon colony he had founded on Beaver Island. In 1854 the Thompsons retreated to the mainland. They established a farmstead in the Ferry Beach area not far from the Pine River fishing settlement at the mouth of the narrow but fast waterway that ran from Round Lake to Lake Michigan.

From that moment, Pine River burgeoned into Charlevoix. The fishing and logging industries brought in the first hint of prosperity. After the two channels that connected Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan were cut in 1869, Pine River/Charlevoix became the most prominent port in the area and one of the most important in northwest lower Michigan. Now the entire Lake Charlevoix basin was opened to world commerce.

As more and more people discovered the town's charms, the growth of the resort industry began until Charlevoix developed into one of the premier travel and resort destinations of the Midwest.

The history of how this all happened, and what followed through 2009, is traced decade by decade in the fully-narrated DVD. It is available also through the Society's website, www.chxhistory.com, by telephone at (231) 547-0373, or by fax at (231) 547-4033. Retail price is $20 plus tax ($21.20). Mailing charge for one or two discs is $3.50. Call for information regarding costs above two discs.

This is the second DVD which the society has produced. The first one, "The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Master Builder in Stone," came out in 2009 and is also available at the Harsha House Museum.

LOOKING BACK…

Twenty-five years ago, in the summer of 1986, the water levels of the Great Lakes rose to record heights which caused serious damage along hundreds of miles of shoreline. In Charlevoix, Round Lake rose over the East Park lakeside cement walkway to submerge it entirely plus the adjoining margin of grass. City crews constructed elevated emergency docks above the sunken ones to allow boaters to walk directly from their boats into the park. This is one of more than 850 images contained in the Charlevoix Historical Society's new DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan - A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades" available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. 1-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

OBITUARIES

Steven Kroll

Steve Kroll was born in Hancock on Dec. 16, 1945, and passed away in Denton, Texas on June 18, 2011, with his wife Rebecca Harrison Kroll and sister Kay Ellen Kroll holding vigil at his side.

Despite battling lupus (SLE) since first being diagnosed in 1973, Steve was a vibrant 65. He grew up in Ironton and Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School with the class of 1964. Steve served his country in the U.S. Army in the mid 1960s and then used the GI Bill to graduate from the University of North Texas in 1978 with a bachelor's degree in music education.

It was the Army that brought Steve to Texas where he met and married Rebecca Harrison on July 25, 1971. Steve and Becky have made Denton their home since 1976 but have spent the hot summer months in Northern Michigan. Steve is survived by Becky and their Texas family, siblings Faye Harrison, Kelly Harrison, David Harrison, Steve Harrison and nieces and nephews Roy, Heather, Clay, Evalyn, Chris, Jennifer, Nathaniel, Olivia, Joe and Stephanie.

Steve and his mother, Ethel Margaret Kroll of Charlevoix were simpatico with each other and great friends. When she died six days after Steve did, on June 24 , one could not help but believe that there was a grand plan to allow that friendship to continue in heaven as it was on earth.

Steve was a perfectionist in all his endeavors and truly aspired to be great in all that he tried. As a musician, he taught, wrote, and performed with a multitude of instruments as well as voice. As a photographer, he excelled as an amateur and later became a professional. He used creative license and always had an eye for that perfect shot. As an artist he worked on commission projects but preferred to work with a free hand.

As a pilot, he built and flew his own ultra-light aircraft and was a member of a glider club in Denton, Texas. As a sailor he built and sailed his own craft but was at home both in and on the water in any capacity.

Steve cared about his community and his country. As a fervent ecologist and naturalist, he was always willing to live and to lead by example about how to leave a smaller carbon footprint.

A great day for Steve was to be able to write, draw, and take a picture, to make music, sail or fly. A perfect day would be doing any of these things with family and friends.

A celebration of Steve's life will take place at 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 30, with a memorial service at the Ironton Congregational Church, the Rev. Michael Ochs officiating, followed by a gathering of friends and family at Elm Pointe in East Jordan.

Donations in Steve's memory may be mailed to the Lupus Foundation of America, 2000 L Street NW, Suite 710, Washington, D.C. 20036 or online at www.lupus.org.

Ethel Kroll

Ethel Margaret (Young) Kroll, age 90, died on June 24, 2011.

Ethel was born March 9/10, 1921 in Detroit to Scandinavian immigrants Gustav and Eline (Lund) Young. She grew up and attended school in Detroit, graduating from Hazel Park High School in 1939. As a young woman, she worked for the Johnson Milk Company as a bookkeeper before she married Earl Kroll of Houghton on Dec. 27, 1941. Together, they raised 10 kids and lived in the same house in Ironton for 60 years.

Everyone around her was blessed by Mom's generous spirit and sense of duty within the community. Through many years of service to the Ironton Congregational Church, Ethel and Earl each shared the duties of governing and spiritual offices that guided the church. If there was a need for something in our community, the presentation inevitably fell to her. Bake sales, rummage sales, pancake breakfasts, sunrise picnics, pot luck dinner, cake walks and bingo, our mother could be found there with her sleeves rolled up.

Be it her gravy, the family birthday cake or her legendary pasties learned from her mother-in-law in the true "Yooper" tradition, the kitchen was her ally and everyone from the minister, family friends and neighborhood kids enjoyed a spot at her table. There was always enough for another plate, but watch out, because the same rules of etiquette applied to all.

Ethel had a brilliant mind and loved crossword puzzles and symphonic music. She also loved the music of the 40s, and remembered lyrics and tunes from that time throughout her illness until her very last days. Though she was known as "the serious sister," she had a great sense of humor and a generous, easy laugh. Many times she woke her children late at night with her uninhibited laughter at the Johnny Carson Show.

Mom had a loving soul, and a cool, healing touch. She dedicated her life to her family, and her legacy is infused with that gentle, loving energy. We will especially miss her voice on the telephone, the letters signed, "Well, the mailman will be here shortly…," her soft hands, lake-blue eyes, and the unconditional love that she taught by her example.

She was preceded in death by her son Steven, who passed away six days earlier, on June 18. She is also preceded by her parents, and four of five siblings, Harold Young, Albert Young, Irene Gladwell, and Dorothy Nothelfer.

She is survived by her husband and sweetheart of nearly 70 years, Earl Kroll of Ironton, sister Rita Seiler (Mike Seiler), sons Bruce, Alan (Spring), Paul (Brenda), Mark (Janet), Kevin (Suzanne), Todd (Melissa Hansen), and daughters Kay, Amy (Jamie Vener), Ann Kroll Lerner (Dan Lerner), daughter-in-law Rebecca Harrison Kroll (Steve), honorary daughter Laura Kemp, 15 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and many nieces, nephews and other extended family.

A memorial service is planned at the Ironton Church at 7 p.m. on Friday, July 29. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the Ironton Congregational Church in Ethel's name.

Bonnie Louise Barber Keie: May 14, 1929 - July 8, 2011

Bonnie Louise Barber Keie, 82, of Lake Placid, Fla., died Friday, July 8, 2011, in the companionship of her daughters and friend. Bonnie died in the Bud and Donna Somers Hospice House in Sebring, Fla.

Bonnie was a native of Michigan. She was the daughter of Cornelia and Elmer Barber, born in Saginaw on May 14, 1929.

Bonnie was employed as a waitress for more than 20 years at the Argonne Supper Club in Charlevoix.

She was an auxiliary member of the Lake Placid American Legion Placid Post No. 25. She attended St. James Catholic Church in Lake Placid.

Bonnie will be interred alongside her husband in Michigan.

Survivors include her children, Kathleen Meggison of Duluth, Ga., Sally (Ed) Ososki of Mecosta/Boyne City, Mary Beth (Dean) Jones of Ellsworth, Linda (Robert) Burtt, Jerome (Vera), James and Thomas Keie, all of Charlevoix; brother, Bruce Barber, of California; significant other, Floyd McCain, of Lake Placid; 14 grandchildren; and she was blessed with her seven great-grandchildren.

Bonnie was predeceased by her husband, Fred "Bud" Keie, in 1997; and brothers, William and Eugene Barber.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Michael A. Brochetti Funeral Home, 404 Plaza Ave., Lake Placid, Fla. 33852; (863) 465-9997.

A memorial service for Bonnie will take place at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 6, at St. Mary Church in Charlevoix. A gathering of family and friends will take place following the service.

Day of Caring Volunteers needed

In honor of the National Day of Service and Remembrance on Sept. 11, hundreds of volunteers will join together on Thursday, Sept. 15, in an effort to make our community a better place to live.

The 8th annual Day of Caring matches teams of volunteers from businesses, schools, faith communities, community groups, families and individuals with non-profit organizations in Charlevoix and Emmet counties that could use a hand in completing some necessary projects.

Volunteer registration is now open for Day of Caring projects. All projects are posted online through Char-Em United Way so volunteers can choose preference for projects based on their availability, team size, and skills.

To register, volunteers should log on to Volunteer Connections, Char-Em United Way's "virtual volunteer center." All projects will be filled on a first-come-first-serve basis. Volunteers should consider group size and availability when choosing a project. Char-Em United Way will be unable to match volunteer teams with a chosen project if there are conflicts with time availability or group size.

Volunteer teams will complete various tasks for non-profit organizations, schools, and government agencies as well as home maintenance for senior individuals. Projects might incorporate painting a hallway, building shelves, organizing a pantry, weeding a garden and much more.

To register as a volunteer for Day of Caring, visit www.charemunitedway.org and click on "Volunteer." Then follow the link to the organization's Volunteer Connections website and do a search using the key words "Day of Caring." Choose the project that best fits your skills, time availability, and group size, then click on "I'm interested in this opportunity" to send Char-Em United Way an email. You will then receive a response email to set up the details.

For more information contact Char-Em United Way at info@charemunitedway.org or (231) 487-1006.

the ward residency of any current city council members.

The council approved a contract with the Charlevoix Area Community Pool that will allow the city the opportunity to use the pool's upcoming annual auction to make some cash for the city's Camp McSauba day camp. Under the contract, the city will provide a "hospitality package" of items to be auctioned off with the first $660 in proceeds designated to pay for the camp's usage of the pool on Thursday nights throughout the summer. Any additional income would be earmarked for the camp's scholarship fund.

Items included that will be up for bid include resident and non-resident golf season passes, resident and non-resident family of four ski passes at Mount McSauba, dockage at the city marina, two weeks of tuition for Camp McSauba, a fire truck visit and an evening police ride-along.

Ellair and Company Art Gallery relocates

Ellair and Company Art Gallery is celebrating its re-grand opening after moving across the Pine River Channel to a new location in downtown Charlevoix.

Edith Pair, the gallery's owner, originally opened Ellair and Company in 2008 beneath the Weathervane restaurant in Charlevoix.

"The opportunity to have our gallery in the primary downtown shops was too good to pass up, so I decided to move," said Pair.

Originally from the Grosse Pointe area of Michigan, Pair's father relocated the family to Northern Michigan in 1984 for business reasons. Pair graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1992 and relocated to Chicago to attend the art institute there.

Having long had a desire to open her own gallery, she moved back to the Charlevoix area in 2005 with that goal in mind.

"I really wanted to showcase Michigan artists and their work, and have been fortunate to be successful so far doing that," Pair noted.

The gallery now offers 100 percent local art from area artists exclusively. Ellair and Company offers a wide variety of work from photography to custom hand-painted furnishings. About 75 percent of the art offered for sale at the gallery is the work of Pair herself.

The gallery is offering open houses throughout the summer highlighting a different local artist's work each week.

Every Friday evening Pair hosts a show that includes hors d'oeuvres and wine for guests and sometimes features local music.

She also has a great interest in local architecture and history and to that end offers both walking and trolley tours of the area. The well-known Earl Young "mushroom houses" and local parks are among the locations featured on the tour.

"We're featuring tours of the amazing Earl Young mushroom houses and local parks," Pair noted.

The tours are offered Tuesday through Saturday for walkers, and Friday and Sunday via trolley. Cost for a guided tour ranges from $10 to $20 and are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Large group and private tours are also available.

One of the guides on the tours is local resident Jeanine Wallace, who also happens to own and reside in one of the Young homes. Wallace is knowledgeable about the local architecture, especially the Young homes.

Ellair and Company Art Gallery is located at 103 Bridge St., Charlevoix. Hours are 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday. For more information visit www.ellair.com or call (231) 547-4655.
